Lausanne Conference Strikes A New Snag.

Strong Protest Against French Action in Ruhr -- German Miners Refuse Work and Call 'Strike -- New York in Fresh Crusade With Alcohol.

LAUSANNE, Jan. 21.
The Near East Conference has struck a snag on one of the questions which everyone thought close to a satisfactory settlement that of the proposed compulsory exchange of minority populations between Greece and Turkey. Demetrius Caclamano, the Greek Minister to Great Britain, took the floor at yesterday's session and suggested on behalf of his country that the compulsory transfer be abandoned, and that only voluntary intermigration be provided for in the Peace Treaty now under negotiation. Marquis Curzon has acknowledged that the private discussions between Britain and Turkey concerning the Mosul oil district have failed, and the whole problem of this coveted territory will be threshed out in a meeting of the full commission on Tuesday. The forthcoming week promise to be as one delegate put it "active and decisive."

RUHR SEETHING WITH EXCITEMENT.
ESSEN, Jan. 21.
The entire Ruhr Valley is seething with excitement. Manifestations of protest against the arrest of German industrial officials are being organized although these are forbidden the French who announce their intention to repress them ruthlessly should necessity arise. The labor leaders who favor co-operation with France apparently have been overwhelmed by popular sentiment and may declare a general strike tomorrow. Sunday proved a quiet day. There were no clashes although the people were in much greater ferment than last Sunday. Nationalist manifestations in Dortmund and in Bochum districts were abandoned owing to the firm attitude of the French, who hurried troops to strategic points in these cities.

GENERAL STRIKE OF MINERS CALLED.
ESSEN, Jan. 21.
A general strike of miners in the Ruhr district has been decided on effective tomorrow. The strike decision was taken after a twelve hour session of the Labor delegates here. This points to a complete defection of labor. An ultimatum from Berlin announced that workmen would be prosecuted and sent to jail if they transported French coal and if miners brought it to the surface.

ENFORCING THE LAW.
NEW YORK, Jan. 20.
Thousands of New York's saloons and cafes, many in the white light districts, may be closed in the near future as a result of decisions made at a conference on prohibition enforcement yesterday. The padlocking of virtually all establishments convicted of violations of the prohibition law, it was stated, would follow, beginning today, of united action by Federal and local authorities.

MINERS STRIKE.
LONDON, Jan. 20.
An Essen despatch to the Times says the Belgians yesterday occupied the premises of the Gute Hoffnung mine at Steinkraade. The miners struck immediately, refusing to resume work until the troops were withdrawn.

STRIKING A BALANCE.
ESSEN, Jan. 21.
Concrete returns from France's ten day's occupation of the Ruhr Valley, briefly summarized, are: One hundred tons of coal requisitioned and shipped to France; Confiscation of six coke ovens and four mines, all State owned; Sequestration of customs receipts and tax collections amounting to about $20 billion marks from the Dusseldorf and Essen branches of the Reichsbank. To achieve the above results the French had to resort to various coercive measures, including the arrest of nearly a score of persons. Counter strokes directed against the French by Germany included the closing of the Reichsbank branches in Mayence, Dusseldorf, Essen and

EIGHT DEAD IN TENEMENT FIRE.
LAWRENCE, Mass., Jan. 20.
The bodies of eight people were removed from the ruins of a tenement house here, gutted by flames early to-day. It was a five story brick structure, housing five families, and the exact number of people indoors at the time of the fire is unknown. It is believed others may have lost their lives.

Hymeneal.
A very pretty wedding was solemnized, last evening, at St. Patrick's Church, when Rev. W. P. Kitchin, D. D., united in matrimony Miss Bride Collins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Collins, Jersey Side, Placentia, and for many years accountant with the firm of T. P. Kemp & Co. to Dr. J. L. O'Connell. The bride, who looked charming, wore a Periwinkle costume with large hat and silver fox fur, the gift of the groom and was attended by Miss Isabel Gambors, who was also daintily attired in a dress of navy blue Canton crepe and crimson hat. The duties of best man were ably performed by Mr. Michael Murphy, Anglo Operator of Placentia. After the wedding the party drove to the residence of Mrs. Walsh, Proprietress Springdale Hotel, where a most tempting repast was served and with the usual toasts, songs and music helped to make the evening a very enjoyable one. The groom's gift to the bride was a set of K. of C. Emblem cuff links, and to the bridesmaid a magnificent sterling silver dressing set. The happy young couple left by this morning's train for their future home in Placentia. The presents received were numerous and costly, and included several chokes, gold, etc., testifying to the esteem in which the happy couple are held. The Telegram joins in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Dr. O'Connell many happy years of married life.

Ev. E. C. Earp Preaches ON THE WORLD'S NEED.
The Rector of St. Thomas's preached to a large congregation yesterday morning on what the common life of day demands. "Taking as his text 'as ye stand together'" (Isaiah 59:3) "we are members one of another", he pointed out that the world is a "solidified individual" and a contradiction in terms. "We are all bound together in the bundle of life and no man liveth to himself. To-day we recognize that we are every-body's world. Recent events emphasize this large view of life. A few days ago French soldiers marched into Germany and occupied the Ruhr, and as a direct and instant consequence two thousand men on all Island, in Newfoundland, were out of employment. The world is one big family, and if one member suffers all the other members suffer. The bread we ate this morning was grown on Canada's plains, and milled by men we never saw. The clothes we wear are brought to us by countless hands which stretch half-way across the world to reach us. If we make an inventory of our household goods, we find pictures from European furniture from English oak, treasures from India, vases and ornaments from China and Japan. In almost every home we lay the whole world under tribute for our comfort and our needs. This principle, continued the Rector, is even more applicable to the religious life of men to-day. Christians must stand together—for we are members one of another. If the whole world is a neighbourhood, we can only advance in it by the spirit of fellowship. This fellowship can make neighbours into friends and nations into co-operative agencies. The common life of to-day demands that men learn to trust one another, that sincerity take the place of suspicion, and that frank and open dealing be the rule in our affairs. We need a long patience, a spirit of forbearance, a kindly tolerance and a reserved judgment. In a word, this old world needs love. A modern writer has said: "Part of thy pathos of the whole movement of our time is, that we are trying to be Christians without following Jesus."

Scotch Express Wrecked.
On Saturday afternoon, January 19, 1918, shortly before four o'clock, the 3:50 a.m. Midland train from St. Pancras to Glasgow, dashed at express speed into a landslide from the embankment of a "cutting" between Lazonby and Little Salkeld, some fifteen miles from Carlisle. The momentum of the heavy train carried the engine and first coaches over the debris. The engine mounted the embankment, the first coach fell sideways across the adjoining track, the second was telescoped against the engine tender, and the remainder, though derailed, remained upright, and suffered little injury, while fortunately the wreckage did not catch fire. The driver and fireman both escaped miraculously, and were among the first to render assistance to the passengers pinned among the wreckage of the two foremost coaches, and the work of rescue was carried out with prompt efficiency. Help was wired for, and in remarkably quick time it came, not only from local doctors, but from the medical staff of the Carlisle Military Hospital. All the injured testified to the promptitude of the help rendered them. Altogether three women and three boys were killed, and twenty persons were injured—eight of them seriously.

Collapse of a Spinning Mill.
A terrible accident, resulting in the death of a number of women, occurred at a flax spinning mill, Belfast, at a quarter to ten on January 20, 1902, the side wall of the mill suddenly collapsed, and carrying with it the flooring of two stories. A large number of women were at work in the reeling rooms at the time, and they were buried in the debris. The mill was a four-storey one, the ground-floor being used as a roughing-room, two others as spinning rooms, and the topmost as a reeling-room. The outside wall gave way from top to bottom, and fell with a tremendous crash on to a smaller, outbuilding, the roof of which was completely demolished. At least 20ft. of the wall
