EUROPEAN AFFAIRS.

The European news brought by the although highly important, was by no means unexpected. The fact Conference is what we have all dictated. On the 7th of June the fin of this diplomatic body took place of a purely formal character. Ho commenced on the 25th by an atts Germans, under Marshal Wrangle, By the latest intelligence, which the 2d instant, we see that this has been captured; but neither the circumstances are given. The of affairs is worse now than it ther no Conference held. Denmark placed in a more helpless condition of the Western Powers' dignity is humiliated. There are but open for France and England—either in silence the disruption of t Kingdom, or employ the last ar kings, and compel the Germaas from their position, and respect, pretended to do in the outset, the Danish monarch. The claim sin and her allies before the Conf have already published. The smoo they claimed as indemnity for the of the war was £3,200,000. Now that diplomacy has failed, and the hosts are masters of the situat will be no limit to the and the existence of Denma separate nationally may be looked upon as a thing of Should, however, England at the ment stir up the adamantia France to action, there is still ho said that Sweden, who has hithert either selfishness or fear, led De work out her own salvation, "is no sending crowds of volunteers to but a Swedish squadron of of-war and six gun-boats is co Gothenburg, and would be ready the expiration of the armistice. It is asserted that the King of S addressed an autograph letter to Denmark, in which he proposes the of a confederacy, consisting of Norway and Denmark, the latter adominions may teach after the which must be shortly expected. Enthusiasm is to decide on que foreign affairs, and regulate mi naval matters. It is also propos of a marriage between the Crowe Denmark and Princess Louise of facilitate the blending of the tw into one, on which basis, the Kin mark has already entered into ne The recent interview between t Prussia and the Russian Czar has made Sweden alive to the dang situation. She begins to perceive t with all her seeming quiescence, denagogue, ambitious neighbor of that what she tried to do with would essay to compass with Sv the one case, however, her dish posses were nipped in the bud by rity of England; in the other she in Prussia—or at least in the Kin mark—a party as unscrupulous. Hence, no doubt, the rumors of sudden alliance with the Danes other hand, however, there still see the popular fervor, apathy in Cabinet. Some of the member doubtfully for vindicating the ho country, now that diplomacy has the force of arms, while others, are indisposed to move in the rumor that this latter course was o Germanic sympathies of the Queo very extensively credited, and v ally credited. A Paris letter on t the Independence says: "Baron was able to assure the Emperor that the Queen of England was not a solution in the German sense Britannia, Majesty is represented added that, in her conviction, at the moment her Ministers would be pe to accede to it.
