MURDER IN FRANCE.

Sudden Disappearance of a Widow Lady-Singular Circumstan

PARIS, Aug. 19.-One of the most singalar criminal cases on record has just been tried in the Meuse Assizes. The crime took place in the latter part of last year, at took place in the latter part of last year, at which time Mme. Leblan, the widow of a doctor, living at Tilly-sur-Meuse, suddenly disappeared. She lived quite alone, and her absence was not noticed by the neigh-bors for some days. The door of the house was broken open, and all the rooms found in a state of the utmost disorder, the floor of the kitchen being covered with blood. The plate and various other articles of value had, however, not been touched, though several bank notes—a list of which was afterwards discovered in a drawer— had been removed from the desk in which the money was kept. It was soon accer-tained that two of these securities were in the possession of a peasant named Aubertin, who resided in the neighborhood and was known to be deeply in debt. When Aubertin was arrested he denied that he had had any hand in the crime, but it shortly transpired that on the very day when the murder was committed he had bought a couple of pork chops from a local dealer, and there on the dining-room table lay the tell-tale debris. Aubertin, in fact, had known beforehand that his sinister task would occupy several hours, inas-much as he had determined to cut the body into small pieces, which could easily be disposed of without fear of detec-tion. Accoordingly he had bought the chops to refresh himself with, and this circum-stance led to his conviction. A few days before the trial some of the fragments of flesh were found from time to timesince. An-terin was condemned to hard labor for life. which time Mme. Leblau, the widow of a
