and without such a man the work can hardly be done rapidly. Eating South America like an artichoke, state by state, is a task to overstrain any people, even the Americans. The carrying out of the work, too, might bring to a head the great danger of the United States—differences in the ideal and permanent tendency between the North and South. It is true that the state system of Amerca is a wonderful system of empire, but it is also a wonderful provision for disintegration. The North may refuse to persist in a career of conquest, which wearies it, and with Canada may elect to form a republic with another ideal than governing, which, although attractive wearies it, and with although attractive wearing and attempted to convince him of the folly of his persistence in face of ive, wears out the surplus energy of the overwhelming odds. Mr. Rhodes' striking personality stood out in bold relief this week against the political background of minor interests.

The press of three countries—Great Britain, Germany and France—was full of him. His visit to Berlin makes an im-portant onward step in the Anglo-German understanding, and French papers realize this and that the idea that the assistance of Germany might eventually be counted on in a war between France and Great Britain is preposterous.
