PATING FOR KISSING HIS WIFF. A Remarkable and Laughable fcene in a St. Petershung Court. From the Misson News.

There have been many cases in which FINANCE AND TRADE kisses have been considered in courts of justice, and not only considered but valued in money and pail for, But we have never heard until now that husbands could be sentenced to pay for kissing their wives. The district court of this city, by a recent decision, now warms all husbands that it is not always safe for them to kiss even their own lawful wives.

own lawful wives. On Aug. 6 the case of "Kochergin agt. Kochergin" was tried in the district court. Catherine Kochergin aued her husband, Ivan Kochergin, for 1000 roubles, due on two bills of exchange given by him to her. The plaintiff, a young and pretty woman, and well dreamed, appeared in person. "Ivan Kochergin !" cried the court. In answer to the call the defendant ap-peared. He was a merohant of middle age, with the manners characteristic of his class. He was in a jolly state.

class. He was in a jolly state. "Here we are," he said, coming up before the bench; and turning to his wife added, sweetly smilling: "Catherine Stepanovne, why should we quarrel?"

"You are in a court," said the presiding judge severely. "This is not the place for personal explanations." "Mrs. Kochergin then presented two bills
