WATERLOO VETERAN.

MR. WM. CHAMBERS, OF DRESDEN, ONT., AGED 106 YEARS.

An Interesting Personality-A Man Who Had Sir John Meore for His General, and Who Was With the Duke of Wellington

A short time ago I read an article in your paper entitled, "The Last to Die," having reference to the last of the heroes of Waterloo. It was therein stated that Lieut. Maurice Shaw's death closed the last life of those grand men who stood so firmly by the Duke of Wellington and helped him win glery for grand old Britain, and for the sommander whose memory the British nation loves to honor.

I am greatly pleased to be able to bring mader your notice the name of a worthy man who not only fought at Waterloo, but was through the whole of the Peninular war. This gentleman's name a Mr. William Chambers. He lives words, it he lives until the 12th of September next he will be 106 years old.

He gave me one of his photographs, which he had taken recently in the Town of Chatham, where he occasionally goes to transact some business matters. His education was carefully looked after in his early days, and the late Dr. Ryerson, the father of our educational system of Ontario, recognized his fitness as an educationist, and appointed him to act as inspector of some of the schools in the County of Kent, a position he was well capable of filling. His family history is most remarkable, from the fact that no less than eighteen of his relatives were in the army during the regiment was in France in 1816. He came to Canada in 1831, was a captain in the Canadian rebellion, having a company under his command and several Indians. He spent two years in the service of Canada. His many recollections of early Canadian incidents and history are not only interesting but profoundly full of fact and point. The fact is his great years and wide experience both in the Old and New World make him one of the interesting personalities of this present age. In discussing questions of the past and present age with this worthy man of years, he said to me that he did not think that men of to-day, whether these men occupy representative or minor positions in our land, or in other lands, had the same high regard for honor or truth as when he was younger; I, said lands, had the same high regard for honor pr truth as when he was younger; I, said he, when I was a young man a man's word was his honor, and his honor was only forfeited by his death if circumstances required it. His knowledge of church history is not only interesting, but most unique. He aften heard Gideon Ously, the famous Irish preacher, preach. He also knew both Charles and John Wesley, as each of them often we. guests in the home of his family and relatives in Ireland. He further said to me that he had attended the Methodist Church for 100 years.—A. B. Powell, in London Free Fress.

Bravely Died in Far Distant Africa.

Capt. W. H. Robinson, R. E., who was recently killed in Sierra Leone, was a Canadian, and to show the estimation in which he was held in the British service an extract from The Broad Arrow of March 26 is given. It says:

The death of Capt. W. H. Robinson, who was killed on Friday, 18th inst., during an engagement at Tambi, Sierra Leone, is another great loss to the distinguished corps of Royal Engineers. The officer is the second graduate of the Royal Military College of Canada, who within the last few months has saddficed his young life while serving in Africa. Only a short time ago we had to record the death of Capt. Huntley Brodie Mackay, D. S. O., and now his fellow-graduate and countryman has fallen on duty in serving the mother country. Both these officers were regarded in the serving the mother country. Both these officers were regarded in the serving the mother country. Both these officers were regarded in the serving the mother country. Both these officers were regarded in the serving the mother country. Both these officers were regarded in the serving the mother country. Both these officers were regarded in the serving the mother country. Both these officers were regarded in the serving the mother country. en duty in serving the mother country. Both these officers were regarded in the corps as men of more than ordinary attainments, and high hopes were entertained that they would have risen to very great distinction in the service. Capt. Robinson was born at Fredericton, New Brunswick, on July 18, 1863, and having received his early training at the Fredericton. Brunswick, on July 18, 1863, and having received his early training at the Fredericton College, joined the Royal Military College of Canada in 1878, at the age of 15. He soon displayed remarkable ability, and although the youngest among the cadets, at once took a lead in every branch of study and maintained it until the final examination in 1882, when he graduated with honors, gaining the gold medal of his year, and receiving his commission in the Royal Engineers on June 27, 1882. After passing through his usual two years' further study at Chatham, he was selected for employment at the War when he graduated with honors, gaining the gold medal of his year, and receiving his commission in the Royal Engineers on June 27, 1882. Atter passing through his usual two years further study at Chatham, he was selected for employment at the War Office, and tour years ago he was sent out to the West Coast of Africa with Capt. Mackay, to fortify our coaling station. Soon afterwards he was appointed Commanding Royal Engineer at Sierre Leone, and was under orders to return to England at the time he met his early death.

Capt. Robinson was well known to a number of Ontario military men, and it was only last September that he registered at the Military Institute while on a visit to friends in Toronto. In reference to his death, The Broad Arrow has a very sensible sditorial blaming the British Government for attempting to punish the savage tribes in Africa, and elsewhere with such small forces as are frequently sent out.

with his daughter in the Town of Dresden Gounty of Kent. The writer of this had the great pleasure and satisfaction of having several conversations with Mr. Chambers. His intellect is as clear as it ever was; the only defect is his hearing is not very good. He can carry on a conversation with much strength and intelligence, and gives a most vivid description of his life in the army.

Mr. Chambers was born in the County of Antrim, Ireland, on the 12th September, 1787. At this date he has, as you will see, entered on his 106th year; or, in other words, if he lives until the 12th of September words, if he lives until the 12th of September are most by in the life on the strength and intelligence, and gives a most vivid description of his life in the army.

with indication of a further improvement. Unquestionably there is a very large shortage in July. Doubtless a single trader is short more than the entire stock of contract wheat in store in Chicago. The season is backward, and if it continues a little longer the filling of July contracts from the next crop will be out of the question. Navigation is open at Duluth and it is expected that stocks will diminish, as they have here. Country elevator stocks at the rate of depletion during. April will be exhausted by the middle of May, and farmers will be too busy with their spring work to market before June the surplus now in their hands. The old clique in May corn have been selling quite liberally and the sales have been absorbed largely by the party that ran the New York deal. Whether there is an understanding between the parties or not is undetermined, but it is certain several prominent houses which have been bearish on corn until to-day are advising their customers to buy on all little breaks, and it looks as if the price was to be put higher. Oats steady, with rather light trade. Provisions in the offerings were too free and he gave it up.

Walker & Co. to John J. Dixon & Co.: Wheat market was dull, but firmness favored the buil side, but the trade has been so light that the scalping element has run it all day, closing at the copning prices.
