TOO MUCH HASTY LEGISLATION.

This complaint is not only sounded through the secular press relative to the acts of Legislatures, but also by Grand Masters in Grand Lodges, and it is one well worthy of calm and solemn consideration.

In looking over the proceedings of Grand Lodges, we are reminded continually that many resolutions and laws are passed which are either mere repetitions of former ones in force, or in contravention of established constitutions, thus confusing the Craft and leading eventually to a total disregard on their part of what was done by their representatives at the "last communication."

The cause of this fault is found principally in the fact that Masters and Wardens do not fully realize their positions. They seem to forget until too late that when assembled they are the Grand Lodge.

They awaken to their responsibility first on the eve of the annual
