

sive privileges not possessed by the Medical Profession), and giving greatly extended influence to the Homœopathic and Eclectic boards, claimed by the promoters of the Bill to have been extinguished, and

Whereas—In addition to all the foregoing objectionable features of the Bill, its operation will in all probability, cut off the recognition of our Medical diplomas by the Mother Country, and thus deprive our young men of privileges they have not been slow to avail themselves of in the past—to their own credit and ours, and which they would no doubt earnestly desire to have still continued open to them; be it therefore

Resolved—That a committee consisting of———be appointed to draft memorials to His Excellency the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, and the Legislative Assembly, in accordance with this resolution, and respectfully requesting the repeal of so much of the Medical Acts, as unites the Homœopathic and Eclectic bodies with the Medical Profession of this Province.

Dr. Agnew said that he would like to have this motion come up for debate to-morrow. As it was somewhat lengthy and contained recitals of some importance, he had had sufficient copies of it printed, and would be happy to distribute them for perusal among the members. He was desirous that the discussion on it should be ample, free, and full.

A brief discussion as to the practicability of the motion in case it was carried, and particularly as to the best time for taking it up ensued.

The President and others thought that the effect of the resolution, in case it was carried, would not be practicable.

Dr. McGill thought that the discussion should, if possible, commence to-night, and when it did come up he would have something to say concerning it. (Laughter.) He thought it very strange that after the labor which Dr. Agnew had apparently spent on his resolution—of which he had given notice of motion—he should be afraid to have the debate come on to-night.

Dr. Agnew, in reply, said that he was prepared at any moment to go on with the debate, which it was evident the putting of the motion would produce. As it would most likely be a protracted, and, he thought ought to be a conservative one, and as he had had copies of the resolution printed for the perusal and calm deliberation of the members during the adjournment of the Council, he thought it would be inadvisable to commence the discussion that evening. He did not think that he fairly merited Dr. McGill's sneer that he was afraid to go on with the debate that evening.

After some further discussion, the Council adjourned until the evening at half-past seven.
