

FOR THE

Kidneys, Liver and Urinary Organs

THE BEST BLOOD PURIFIER.

There is only one way by which any disease can be cured, and that is by removing the cause—whatever it may be. The great medical authorities of the day declare that nearly every disease is caused by diseased kidneys or liver. To restore these therefore is the only way by which health can be secured. Here is where WARNER'S SAFE CURE has achieved its great reputation. It acts directly upon the kidneys and liver, and by placing them in a healthy condition drives disease and pain from the system. For all Kidney, Liver and Urinary troubles; for Malaria, and physical troubles generally, this great remedy has no equal. Beware of imitations and concoctions said to be just as good.

A SABBATH DAY ROMANCE.

Strange Meeting of a Divorced Wife with her Husband and the Lover of her Youth.

The Atlantic City Review relates as an actual occurrence at that bathing resort the meeting of three persons who had been intimately connected in their former lives, ending in the marriage of two long-parted lovers. The heroine, Mary B. Donoghue, ten years ago, when only 16 years of age, was the belle of a Virginia village. While at the White Sulphur Springs, five years ago, she was persuaded by her mother to marry a young Austrian, named Frascati, whose debts and dissipations had driven him from home to America. Two years ago her only child died, and a divorce procured her a release from the cruelty of a brutal husband. Since then she had seen neither her husband whom she had never loved, nor the lover who had fled the country on her ill-fated marriage. Among the throng on Sunday gazing out upon the ocean from the porch of the New Inlet house, by a strange irony, were the two men—Frascati, the Austrian druggist, the divorced husband, on one side of his former wife; John Saunders, the lover who had grown sick with longing for a face now not twenty feet away—yet each unconscious of the other's presence. Driven, no doubt, to despair by remorse and penury, Frascati wandered away along the shore. When he plunged in he did not know whether he could swim out, or whether he would drown his sorrows once for all, and find a grave beneath the waves. But a woman's startled shriek rang shrilly out over the evening air; his own wife had seen his wild leap, all ignorant that this was the man who had wrecked a young life. Her accents touched a chord no other voice had ever waked in Saunders' heart. He rushed toward the spot from which it seemed to come, and dragged Frascati dripping from the water. A mutual and triangular recognition followed, and there, in the presence of the man who had always loved her, Mary Donoghue's divorced husband knelt and prayed her forgiveness. At the quiet marriage which took place the same evening in the house of an Atlantic City clergyman, Saunders was joined for life to the woman he had always loved. Frascati witnessed the ceremony, but how was the minister to know that the divorced husband knelt and prayed her forgiveness after all is truth than fiction; how true it is that all things come to those who wait.

THE AMERICAN NEWS-BOY.

Mr. Stevenson, who travelled across the continent with an emigrant train, gives in Longman's Monthly the following anecdote, which says a good word for a much abused class:—"I must quote here an experience of mine with another newsboy. I tell it because it gives so good an example of that uncivil kindness of the American, which is, perhaps, their most bewildering character to one newly landed. It was immediately after I had left the emigrant train; and I am told I looked like a man at death's door, so much had this long journey shaken me. I sat at the end of a car; and the catch being broken, and myself being feverish and sick, I had to hold the door open with my foot for the shake of air. In this attitude my leg debarrd the newsboy from his box of merchandise. I made haste to let him pass when I observed that he was coming; but I was busy with a book, so once or twice he came upon me unawares. On these occasions he most rudely struck my foot aside; and though I myself apologized, as if to show him the way, he answered me never a word. I chafed furiously, and I fear the next time it would have come to words. Just suddenly I felt a touch upon my shoulder, and a large juicy pear was put into my hand. It was the newsboy, who had observed that I was looking ill, and so made me thus present out of a tender heart. For the rest of the journey I was petted like a sick child; he lent me newspapers, thus depriving himself of his legitimate profit on their sale, and came repeatedly to sit by me and cheer me up.

GETTING INFORMATION UNDER DIFFICULTIES.

"I do not see any peculiarity about people," said an Eastern Judge, addressing his travelling companion, a well known Arkansas lawyer. "I have traveled quite extensively in this State, and I have not, as yet, found that eccentricity of action and prevarication of reply that has often amused me in the newspapers."

"You have done most of your travelling by rail," the lawyer replied. "This is your first trip away from the main roads, is it not?"

"Yes."

"Well, I'll show you some of our genuine L. lives. Tonder is a house. Call the landlord and hold a conversation with him."

"Hallo!" called the Judge.

"Comin'!" the man replied, depositing a child in the doorway, and advancing.

"How's all the folks?"

"Children's hearty; wife's not well. Ain't what you might call bed-sick, but jest sorter stretchy."

"Got anything to eat in the house?"

"Ef I had it anywhar, I'd have it in the house."

"How many children have you?"

"Many as I want."

"If w many did you want?"

"Wa'n't hankerin' arter a powerful chance, but I'm satisfied."

"How long have you been living here?"

"Too long."

"How many years?"

"Been here ever since my oldest boy was born."

"What year was he born?"

"The year I come here."

"How old is your boy?"

"Ef he had lived, he would have been the oldest until yit; but, as he died, Jim's the oldest."

"How old is Jim?"

"He ain't as old as the one what died."

"Well, how old was the one that died?"

"He was older than Jim."

"What do you do here for a living?"

"Eat."

"How do you get anything to eat?"

"The best way we kin."

"How do you spend your Sundays?"

"Like the week days."

"How do you spend them?"

"Like Sundays."

"Is that your daughter yonder?"

"No, sir; she ain't my daughter yonder nor nowhar else."

"Is she a relative of yours?"

"No, sir; no kin."

"Kin to your wife, I suppose."

"No kin to my wife, but she's kin to my children."

"How do you make that out?"

"She's my wife."

"How far is it to the next house?"

"It is called three miles, but the man who calls it that is a liar."

"I've got enough," said the Judge, turning to the lawyer. "Drive on. I pity the man who depends on this man for information." — Arkansas Traveller.
