

	PAGE
Shall I begin with th , or th ?	288
The came who is gone — we have met	301
Tidest I sat, dejected, and alone	326
Time life in sorrow must be spent	160
Time enslav'd me many years	168
Time has undone our wretched race	148
Ting, noise, fit such a theme, so dark, so long	17
Tir! when I flew to seize the bird	125
Sleep at last has fled these eyes	340
To have I seen the maids in vain	632
To then — the Vandals of our isle	306
Sometimes a light surprises	161
Tors adversa gerit stimulum, sed tenet et alas	375
Touche of love, and light of day	196
Touche of Love, my laughter Sun	316
Tull, still, without ceasing	516
Tum! stay thy course, this moment stay	303
Tums that set, and moons that wane	362
Turvytor sole, and hardly such, of all	110
Tweet babe, whose image here express'd	549
Tweet bird, whom the winter constrains	551
Tweet nymph, who art, it seems, accused	631
Tweet stream that winds thro' yonder glade	301
Tweet tenants of this grove!	515
Take to thy bosom, gentle earth, a swain	361
Tears flow, and cease not, where the good man lies	120
Thankless for favours from on high	300
That ocean you of late survey'd	307
That thou mayst injure no man, dove-like be	363
Th' Astrologers did all alike presage	370
The Bard, if e'er he feel at all	307
The beams of April, ere it goes	306
The billows swell, the winds are high	457
The birds put off their ev'ry hue	360
The Chancellor once was a tree full of fruit	631
The curate and churchwarden	628
The fountain in its source	191
The Genius of th' Augustan age	361
The green house is my summer seat	375
The lady thus address'd her spouse	315
The lapse of time and rivers is the same	369
The Lord proclaims his grace abroad!	411
The Lord receives his highest praise	471
The Lord will happiness divine	438
The lover, in melodious verses	550
The new-born child of gospel-grace	470
The noon was shady, and soft airs	382
The nymph must lose her female friend	312
Th' old man, our amiable old man is gone	502
The pine-apples, in triple row	297
The poplars are fell'd, farewell to the shade	302
The rose had been wash'd, just wash'd in a shower	355
The saints should never be dismay'd	433
The Saviour hides his face!	459
The Saviour! what a noble flame	451
The sculptor? Nameless, though once dear to fame	426
The shepherd touch'd his reed; sweet Philomel	554
The Sky begins to lower and thick'ning Clouds	626
The sparkling eye, the mantling cheek	273
The Spirit breathes upon the word	452
The star that beams on Anna's breast	352
The straw-stuff'd hamper with his ruthless steel	632