THESDAY MORNING MAY 27 1919

Open Invitation to All Parties to Suggest a Remedy.

WHAT PARSONS SAYS

e for Present Evil is

"What would happen if the farmers were to strike for an eight-hour day?"
Mr. Good declared that there was no lack of employment on the farm, but there was at the present time a general dissatisfaction over existing conditions.

J. W. Bruce was asked if this was the case, how did he propose to encourage the people from the city to go to the farm.

Mr. Good answered by saving it and the strike for an eight-hour day?"

No Time for Shadows

In reply to questians as to the scheme put forward by the Methodist Church, Mr. Parsons said, "We have got our hands too full at the present time to be looking forward to shadows of a milennium."

"Do you not believe in Christ's teachings as to the originality of man?" enquired Mr. Moore.

"Yes, but Christ also upheld the man who buried his," was the answer.

In dealing with the present high rice being paid for labor on high-ray work. Mr. Powers declared that wen the farmer's sons were being induced to leave the farms.

S. Morrison, secretary of U. F. O. said that in 1913 there was one may for every 125 1-2 acres. A short time back there was one for every 110 acres. There was great unrest amongst the farmers who were in quite as a desperate condition as the workers in the city. He did not, however, state the cause of the unrest.

S. R. Parsons, ex-presidest of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, began by saying he only represented himself. He said any man would be a bold man who would hazard a complete analysis of the present social and industrial situation of unrest, let plete analysis of the present social and industrial situation of unrest, let alone prescribing an adequate remedy. Mr. Good answered by saying it was largely a question of increasing the relative returns of agriculture.

No inducement.

A. A. Qowers, representative of the U. F. Gotshall was vice-president of the Grace Motor Limited, 55 East Queen street, and it is alleged that he stole $13,000 from his employer. Wooster is charged with conspiracy. He was employed as bookkeeper and is charged with making false entries on the ledgers. Wooster was released on $2,000 bail, while bail was placed at $10,000 for Gotshall.

ALLEGED OPERATOR OF BIG LIQUOR RING

Donald Wilson was described in police court yesterday morning by Crown Attorney Corley as being a member of a liquor ring, operating on a pretentious scale in Toronto. Wilson was caught engineering a shipment of several thousand dellars' worth of good whiskey down Spadina avenue Friday afternoon. Several motor trucks were carrying the liquor and Wilson was directing from another motor car. Magistrate Kingsford imposed a fine of $500 and costs and made an order for the confiscating of the seized liquor. Thomas Boyland and Joseph Royle were each fined $200 and costs for carrying bottles of whiskey.
