THE RING.

Dempsey Wins.

Philadelphia, Nov. 28.—Jack Dempsey won the popular decision from Billy Miske, of St. Paul, in a slow six-round bout here today at a Thanksgiving matinee. Only half a dozen hard blows were landed during the fight. There was scarcely any action in the first two rounds, but in the third Miske jolted Dempsey with an uppercut to the jaw which gave him the advantage in this round. After this the bout was all in Dempsey's favor. The St. Paul man frequently resorted to holding in order to save himself from punishment.

In the semi-final Jeff Clarke, of Atlantic City, had the better of Sam Langford, of Boston. Clarke sent Langford to the mat in the first round and was the aggressor throughout. Jack Thompson, of St. Joseph (Mo.), knocked out the Jamaica Kid, of New York, in the fifth round. Up to the knockout blow, a savage right to the heart, Thompson appeared to toy with the New York boxer who, however, put up a game fight. The men are negro heavyweights.

BREMEN ONE OF THEM.

It is interesting to the people of St. John to note that among the ships handed over to the Allies by Germany was the Bremen. It will be remembered that this cruiser visited St. John in 1912, and in that year made a tour of this coast and visited several Canadian ports, remaining at each some days. The Bremen was launched in 1903 and was completed in the following year. She has a displacement of 3,200 tons, is 341 feet long with 43-3 foot beam. She cost $254,500 and had an armament of ten four-inch guns and in peace time had a complement of 303 men. She developed twenty-three knots an hour.

TELLS OF HEROIC NIGHT RESCUE OF "LOST BATTALION"

The following letter has been received by Mrs. Catherine Flynn, of No. 666 West 181st street, New York, from her son, Lieutenant William J. Flynn, of Company A, 80th Machine Gun Battalion. In the letter Lieutenant Flynn, who, before enlisting, was a sergeant of police attached to the West 181st street station, describes how he assisted in the rescue of Lieutenant-Colonel Charles Whittier, of the lost battalion fame. The letter follows:

Somewhere in France, October 15, 1918.
Dear Mother—Well, the rest I wrote you. We expect it from day to day. Oh, Lord, grant it to us soon. We have gone as far now as human endurance can go. We are praying for a rest. This division surely has fought a good fight, and if we can only force the issue this fall, the war will be over.
One of our battalions and two platoons of different companies were cut off in a pocket by the Boches. The pocket was formed by four high hills, very steep and almost impassable along the north hill. About twenty metres from the hilltop was a road. The hills were about the same height, ninety to one hundred metres high, and this battalion was caught in the valley formed by them. Out of five hundred and some odd men, only 175 were able to walk out.

For six days they were without food. The spring where they went for water was under continual machine gun fire. The Boche handed them everything in the line of iron rations he had. High explosives, hand grenades and rifle fire. The fourth day the Boches captured, by a trick, a wounded American by the spring. They took him back, dressed his wounds and fed him and then, blindfolded him, sent him back with a note to the major, who, by the way, is a New York lawyer, that if they would surrender they would be sent behind the German lines and would be well treated. He handed back a typical American answer to a German insult. I found him two days later and in the same place still fighting.

When we learned of the hardships that these fellows had gone through we have not had a grumble since. The honor of being ordered to take over the high explosives of these two platoons fell to me. For a week we had been fighting through underbrush and woods that baked the nerve and strength of us all. On the seventh day we could hear the fighting in the front and that night the infantry

RUTH CLIFFORD
"MIDNIGHT MADNESS."

How can an innocent and lovely girl become so linked in a murky ring of crime that even the man who loves her fears that she is stained by its shadow? Kenneth Harlan, in "Midnight Madness," a thrilling Bluebird photodrama, as "Prentice Tiller," has misgivings when Ruth Clifford, as "Gertrude Temple," appears to be the queen of a gang of desperate gem thieves.

The priceless collection of jewels of the Academy of Fine Arts is stolen. Prentice Tiller is told to recover them. The girl he loves seems to be in league with the criminals.

Hunted as a criminal, shot through the hand and disheveled at the iron of fate, he surmounts seemingly hopeless obstacles and wins out in an unusually gripping climax to the strong drama.

If you want to see the intimate workings of a big city police department, if you care to visit the hidden catacombs of an old mission, if you desire constant, logical action in a seldom, stirring photodrama, see "Midnight Madness."

went forward, without food or sleep, and effected the rescue.

At 10 o'clock the same night I was ordered to lead a platoon which was to take charge of the guns of the marooned men. I think it was the darkest night the world has ever known, cloudy, a heavy frost and a dense fog. We had about a mile to go over steep hills and down a series of cliffs. When the fog cleared we were fighting in it all like this.

Wet to Waist Fording Streams.

We reached our destination at midnight, wet to the waist from crossing streams, and nearly frozen. At daylight, after placing my guns, I went into the valley. The Boche still shelled, but after the morning attack by our boys he was forced to fall back to another prepared position. We helped the surgeons get the wounded out and assisted those who could barely walk to the rear. My two friends, Lieutenants Penkay and Noon, were killed in this fight and when the story of their deaths is told it will thrill America and will go down in history.

The big rush is still going on and we have been travelling so fast that we have had no mail for three weeks. When it does reach us we will be swamped. I am enjoying good health. We have lived outdoors for two and a half months and as hard as nails. We figure on three or four more weeks of fighting and then the war will be over. Remember me to all my friends, and with the hope that all at home are well and happy.

Your loving son,
WILL.

PRIORITY FOR PRISONERS OF WAR IN HOME COMING.

Ottawa, Nov. 28.—Immediately after the declaration of the armistice, the minister of militia took prompt measures to ascertain, and if possible expedite, the procedure respecting the return of prisoners of war. Information has now been received that prisoners on repatriation will at once receive necessary issues of clothing and be granted leave of absence if desired. They will then be given priority with respect to return to Canada, if such is their desire, as soon as they are judged medically fit to travel.

18—WEEKS—18

ARE DUE TONIGHT

Two large liners of the C. P. O. S. are due at Sand Point late this evening or early Saturday morning. The Metagama is bringing 125 returned soldiers. The Scandinavian more than 800 returned men. It is understood that there are not more than forty soldiers for New Brunswick.

AUSTRIA TO TRY ALL OF HER WAR LORDS

London, Nov. 28.—The Vienna government intends to bring to trial all persons responsible for the war, including Count Berchtold, Austro-Hungarian foreign minister when war was broken out, and Count Czernin, foreign minister at a later period, according to an Exchange Telegraph Company despatch from Copenhagen today.

Former Emperor Charles, the Austrian grand duke and a number of generals are also to be tried, according to these advices.

ROADS DAMAGED

Fredrickton, Nov. 28.—Hon. P. J. Veniot is here attending to his official duties. The recent high tides and storms did enormous damage to highways and other public works along the North Shore. The greatest damage was done at the Eel river bar, Restigouche. Hon. Mr. Veniot says that it will take $30,000 or $40,000 to repair the damage.

The matter of repair is now under consideration. A diversion of the highways is a possibility. The intention is to make the highway better than it was before the storm.

GERMAN BARBARITIES.

In a report published as a Blue Book, the British administrator of the captured German colony of South West Africa, gives evidence of German atrocities, mostly based on official documents found in the government offices at Windhoek.

There was no law for the natives, who from the beginning were cheated, and more and more brutally treated and subjected to brutal cruelties, tortures and murders. They were deliberately goaded into rebellions, in the ruthless suppression of which the tribes involved were virtually exterminated.

The official German figures of the population tell a plain tale. In 1904 the native population decreased from 130,000 to 97,000. Settlers who had natives working for them were allowed to treat them with unconquerable cruelty. Native women suffered abominable treatment at the hands of the European officials and settlers. The universal feeling of the natives is against being returned to German rule. This account is only in accordance with the barbarities committed in Belgium and France on our prisoners of war, who got food not fit for dogs, and who are allowed to suffer untold agonies from cold and filth.

Kennel Club Officers.

At the annual meeting of the New Brunswick Kennel Club, held last evening, the following new board of officers was elected to serve for the coming year: President, W. George Gray; first vice-president, J. W. Cameron; second vice-president, E. J. Wallace; secretary, W. C. McKay; treasurer, J. V. McLean; executive committee, L. B. Wilson, H. Bert Porter, B. A. Smith, Wm. Kiernan, Joseph Ritchie, R. Alward.

The report of the show committee showed that the dog show held in October was a financial success. Plans were made for holding a series of evening shows during the winter months.

The firemen responded to an alarm from box 121 yesterday morning for a grass fire in Spar Cove road near the home of Charles Nichols.
