OCTOBER TERM

Of the Charlotte County Circu Court Opened Tuesday at St. Andrews.

The Grand Jury and Members o the Bar Present Congratulatory Address to His Honor Judge Gregory.

ST. ANDREWS, Oct. 8.-The October term of the Charlotte county circuit court was opened today, His Honor George F. Gregory, K. C., judge. The olvil docket was George Marshall and Lucy Ann Marshall, his wife v. William Holland, Mr. Grimmer appealed for leave to withdraw record;

The grand jurors were called, all ned being present, by direction of the court, retired to the grand jury room, and on their return to court BLUENOSES AND OTHER THINGS. Sheriff Stuart announced that Robert E. Armstrong of St. Andrews was elected foreman, who with the other ed judge charging them in brief terms. The grand jurors then retired, and in short time afterward returned to the court room, where Foreman Armstrong read on behalf of his fellow jurymen, an address, as follows:

To Judge Gregory-May it please your honor, we, the grand jurors of the body of the county of Charlotte, summoned to discharge the duties in would embrace the opportunity to ex-tend to you our hearty congratulations upon your elevation to the responsible position you now occupy. Your lengthy experience as a member of the bar, coupled with your ripe knowledge of law and of the practice of the courts, is a guarantee that you will discharge your new and onerous duties in a manner that will reflect cre-dit upon yourself and shed a lustre upon the bench of the province. It is the proud boast of all who owe allegiance to the British crown that the members of the bar in the county of Charlotte take great pleasure upon county since your elevation to the bench, in extending to your honor sincere congratulations upon your well deserved advancement in the noble profession to which you have given your life's work, and at the same time in bidding you a hearty welcome to this county to preside over our circuit court and lend your tion of justice. The rare and superio legal attainment and ability which you have displayed for many years past in your practice at the bar of this province abundantly approve your thorough qualifications for the exalted position which you have been called by your country to fill and your eminently judicial mind and the strong sense of fairness and justice which have always characterized your professional career, give abundant asbench will secure to the profession and to those engaged in litigation be-fore you correct decisions, courteous and generous treatment, and the full-est measure of justice to which men may be entitled according to law and fully appreciate the fact that to the honorable practitioner there is no advantage so great as to be privileged to try his cases before an able, learned, upright and honorable judge, and we desire to assure your honor that in cognize a move that has added strength and ability to what we have long regarded as an already strong and able judiciary. Your own keen and able judiciary. Your own keen sense of justice, your superior know-ledge of law, and the Illustrious example of the many eminent jurists who have preceded you upon the bench of this province will surely prove such strong incentives to right that we have every confidence your career as a judge of the supreme court will be a credit to yourself and a source of pride to every member of the profession. We earnestly and sincerely trust that a kind Providence may long spare your honor to preside over the courts of this province and to enjoy the honors of the exalted position you now fill. Through your honor we would also beg leave to extend our very best wishes to your worthy consort, Mrs. Gregory, and to express the hope that she may long be blessed in health and strength to share the honors and pleasures incident to the high office

That nowhere upon earth are life and preperty safeguarded, and nowhere regard as the strongest bulwark of British institutions, the very foundation stone of British liberty. This precious heritage should be jealously guarded.

We are confident that you will do your utmost to maintain unsullied the purity and honor of our courts, and impartiality and mercy, where mercy is needed to be shown, which they have so long enjoyed. Hoping that you may be long spared to grace the position

(Victoria, B. C., Colonist.) The Times discourses learnedly on the origin of this term as applied to the people of the maritime provinces. Like some of the subjects over which Lord Dundreary pondered, this is one of those things that no fellow can find out. The explanation that the name came from a variety of potato only argues ignorance on the part of the Boston man who advances it. The so-called bluenose potato was really the "early blue," and it was given this name because it was earlier than the "Christy," the other favorite variety, and was streaked with blue just inside, and a mighty nice potato it was. The Bostonese doubless confounded the Bostonese doubless confounded the early blue with the epithet applied to the people who raised it. The Boston correspondent of the St. John Sun, who talks about a "buckwheat Bluenose," and so on, is simply drawing on his imagination, and the Sun should on his imagination, and the Sun should have known better than to print his stuff. No one in the maritime provinces ever heard of a "Buckwheat laws of the land are wisely yet firmly in New Brunswick fifty years ago, and humanely administered. Bluenose," The expla and the writer of this article heard it from his grandparents, who lived in New Brunswick from the day it was first settled by the United Empire the people got the name because their moses were supposed to be blue with the cold.

There is always a great deal of uncertainty as to the origin of names. Take the name Acadie, or as it has been Anglicized, Acadia. No one knows purity and honor of our courts, and preserve the reputation for justice and but the best explanation seems to be that it is a corruption of the word "quodyah," which is as near as the termination of the Indian name of the haddock can be spelled. If there hapyou now occupy, and wishing you much happiness.

M. N. Cockburn, K. C., then on behalf of the bar, read the address as whom Longfellow has written in Evangeline, and you should ask one of them if he is a Canadian, he will reply: "Non, Monsieur, je suis 'Cadjen." We spell the word thus to give an idea of his pronunciation. The apostrophe is intended to indicate that there is a suggestion of the vowel "a," and the letter "a" in the first syllable is pronounced as in "Ah." This same suggestion of "a" is found in the Insuggestion of "a" is found in the Indian terminal which we have written "quodyah." The same term is found in the name Passamaquody, which, properly speaking, is Paskadum'quodyah, this being the full name of fish called haddock. So likewise the origin of the name of Canada is lost in mystery. No one is quite sure where the word "Yankee" came from. One suggestion is that it was the Indian corruption of the French word "Anglais." But we need not go so far away, for But we need not go so far away, for the name Seattle is of uncertain origin.

CRONJE AND THE GRAPHO-PHONE

He Weeps at the Hymn "Ninety and Nine."

(H. E. Armstrong in Ainslee's.) "The graphophone is beginning to figure as a considerable American export, and certainly it is one of the most curious and interesting. While its commercial uses are beyond the comprehension or needs of the Per-slan, the Hindoo or the South Sea Islander, each of them is fascinated by an invention which reproduces the familiar sounds of the human voice and entertains him with grand and light opera and orchestral music. Captain J. W. Webster of the transport Milwaukee, who took General Cronje to St. Helena, amused the old hero and though the instrument is common enough in Johannesberg, the general knew of it only by report. 'I heard you had a box that talked like a man, he said to Captain Webster through an interpreter. Webster, telling the story, goes on: "Yes, general," I replied, "and if you and Mrs. Cronje will come into my stateroom I will give you an exhibition." They sat down soberly in front of the talk ing box, and I slipped in a cylinder ing Moody and Sankey's hymn been told they sang in their own lan-guage. The effect was startling. They ecognized the tune at once, and Mrs. Cronje burst suddenly into tears. Her eyes, and I could see by the spas-modic clasping and unclasping of his hands that General was deeply affected. To relieve the tension I put on a record with a lively banjo solo, and in a moment the old gentleman began to smile and beat time with his feet and head, his gray beard wagging to the melody. It was beard wagging to the melody. It was the music the music the music tension of the mu was deeply affected. To relieve the funny to see him. When the music servant, who had followed the party in, said awsomely that there was a devil in the box. Cronje frowned down the suggestion, but asked whether it wasn't done by some trick

A LETTER FROM DR. BAYARD. To the Editor of the Sun:

Sir-There has been much disc and I think some misunderstandingregarding the use and management of the ambulances in this city. There are five in number, quite enough for a town of this size. Four were generously given by the ladies, one to be conveyed by a horse, and costing between $300 and $400, and three hand ones, imported from London at a cost of between $70 and $80 each.
