DENVER'S GREAT WEEK.

THOUSANDSOFKNIGHTS TEMPLANS
IN THE WESTERN OITY.

Money no Object in the Entertainment of the Visitors—Delegations from All Parts of the United States—Some of the Details.

This has been a great week at Denver, Colorado, and the population of that city has been increased by the advent of probably 60,000 knights templars and their magnificent display, but the western people will undoubtedly strive to excel even the 500 members and has pledged $25,000, or about $50 per capita, for the purpose, and other bodies will contribute in like proportion. What is known as the Mystic Shrine, a body to which only masons can belong, but which has nothing to do with masonry, gave $3,500 for a day's entertainment.

Every commandery, No. 1, has about 500 members and has pledged $25,000, or about $50 per capita, for the purpose, and other bodies will contribute in like proportion. What is known as the Mystic bern assigned accommodation, so that the estimate of 60,000 in all will be under taker than above the actual figures.

Western cities do nothing by halves, and even the second that city has been increased by the advent of probably 60,000 knights templars and their friends. The occasion is the triennial conclave of the grand encampment of the United States, and members of the order from Maine to Florida, from Cape Cod to San Francisco, will be there and virtually take possession of the place. The last conclave, in 1889, was at Washington, where there was a long triend to the triend of the place. The street car companies, for instance, agreed to carry every knight templar and his ladies spirit was shown by the citizens generally. The cost of the entertainment of the visitors will be very largely borne by the local commanderies. Color-like the full freedom of the city. A Red-White-and-Blue Horse.

Ambrose Jollite, the Hestonville livery stable keeper, has what is probably the most remarkable horse in the United States, and his one sorrow is that the Park Commissioners will not permit the animal to be driven through their beautiful domain. The horse is a middle-aged, well-proportioned Kentucky gelding, about eight years old, and once upon a time was as white as a snowdrift at the North Pole.

Princess Margaret of Prussia.

Princess Margaret of Prussia, the sister of the German Emperor, whose engagement to Prince Charles of Hesse has just been announced, was the favorite and youngest daughter of the Emperor Frederick's lince her father's death she has not left her mother's side for a single day, sharing nearly every one of the Empress Frederick's tastes. She is an excellent artist, while her literary faculty has made her very useful in sorting out and arranging her father's papers and diaries with an ultimate view to their publication. Although it cannot be said that Princess Margaret is pretty, she has a frank, pleasing countenance, and her sweetness of disposition caused her to be nick-named when a little gift, "Laughing Goose-blossom," but the sad events and trying months that preceded her father's death have left their mark and she has never been the same since. Her attachment to Prince Charles of Hesse dates from some time back, and although she was spoken of as a possible bride tor the Czarowitch, the Crown Prince of Italy, or Prince Christian of Demmark, she has always declared she would marry near home so as not to be separated from her mother. Princess Margaret spends two hours a day in grounding herself in the best English literature; her favorite novelists are Miss Austen and Thackeray. She admires Froude above all living historians, and,
