CHAMPION CREDITS HIS VICTORY TO LUCKY PUTT

Chick Evans Says All the Survivors Except Robert Gardner in National Golf Tournament Suffered Torture of Anxiety in Defeating Their Rivals.

By CHARLES (CHICK) EVANS, JR.
I doubt if golf in America has ever known four such exciting matches on a course at one time as those so strenuously fought at St. Louis in the second day of elimination matches in the National Amateur tournament.
Out of the crack of the wood and the chuck of the iron the international factor came last Thursday more than previously to the surface. I mentioned early in the meet that Mr. Hunter was a sterling golfer, and I think there were fewer others who rated him as highly as I did. Not until he defeated Jimmy Manion, the St. Louis star and Missouri State champion, in Wednesday's play did the galleries observe what long ago knew—that Hunter is seldom if ever disturbed by flashes of brilliance, which may put him down a few holes. Hunter is a hard golfer.
Every one of our very young golfers were swept from the field. Not even Bobby Jones was spared.
The one golfer who had a fairly comfortable time, and he deserves it, was Robert Gardner, who won by a good margin. In the end he suffered tortures of anxiety most of the way.
To take my own case: I was 2 up at noon. I was 4 up in no time in the afternoon round. Then I became 3 up, 2 up again and won by 1 on the eighteen green. And that one was obtained by one of the luckiest putts that ever a poor golfer was blessed with. I ran one down from the edge of the green at the home hole.
Mud Adds to Difficulties in Putting.
The heat on the course was a great topper. This ran up the scores a little, but the mud made it more difficult for the extra strokes in the peculiar mud of adhesive plaster, effect that is still on the course. The balls seem to

Gives Up Hope of Seeing The Series

Christy Mathewson, Once Great Pitcher of Giants, Will Be Disappointed.

By EDWARD M. THIERRY.
Saratoga Lake, N. Y., Sept. 24.—Christy Mathewson can't leave here for another year—at least.
The baseball veteran here is winning his fight for life, but it's a slow, grinding battle against the white plague.
"Yes, Christy is better," his wife told me when I called at the trim little apartment on the fourth floor of the apartment house on the hill overlooking the village and lake.
The doctor was making his daily visit. Though "Big Six" is able to take occasional automobile rides he is not permitted to receive visitors.
Mrs. Mathewson, a tall, pleasant-faced woman, has nursed the famous pitcher ever since the germ of tuberculosis first threatened his life.
"No, he will not be able to attend the world's series this fall," Mrs. Mathewson said, smiling a bit sadly. "He would like to—but it is out of the question."
"Last winter we thought we could leave here by spring. In the spring we counted on full recovery by this fall. Now—well, it will be next year, anyway."
Mrs. Mathewson wished to send word to baseball fans and players and friends generally of Christy's condition for the evidence of high regard in which he is held.
Thoughtful Friends.
She said full appreciation of the number of friends the baseball veteran has come on his birthday, August 12. Messages came from all over the country. Many was 41 that day.
There wasn't much celebration. The Chicago players being and friends generally of Christy thanking them for the evidence of high regard in which he is held.
Matty didn't talk much baseball, his wife said.
"It is the subject closest to his heart," she said, "but we talk or it very little. Yes, we read about it very often. He is very interested in the opinion." Well, he doesn't say much, but he felt the baseball scandal keenly.
"It was a blow to this ideal."
"He thinks the accused players were punished by the ignominy of the trial and the ostracism."
"Yes, he believes Judge Landis has ruled wisely in saying they shall not come back into baseball."
Matty was thirteen months in bed.
Gains Slowly.
He came to Saratoga Lake a year ago last July in a very weakened condition.
A slow rest cure ensued and last winter there was a crisis when it was decided to collect one of his lungs. He has gained strength since then.
In the spring he was able to play an occasional game of checkers. For years he has been a champion at the game. Checkers and fishing are his greatest recreations.
Auto Rides.
Early in the summer he took his first automobile ride and now he rides every other day for about an hour. He hopes soon to be able to do some angling in the nearby waters.
Christy, Jr., is 14. His mother said he wasn't so crony like baseball.
His dad just now is wireless, and he has a complete outfit.
She and Matty are proudest of the fact that last term Christy, Jr. took first prize in Latin in school.

Trotting Mare Is Very Lame

Hinted That Those in Charge of Fredericton Races May Have to Pay the Bills.

Special to The Standard.
St. Stephen, Sept. 25.—Saskia the famous trotting mare owned by Keys and McBride, that was brought home lame from the Fredericton races is in the hands of a veterinary and is very lame and suffering much pain. When all the bills are settled it may be found that those in charge of the Fredericton races were not altogether wise in insisting that Saskia go and finish her race on Thursday against the protest of Mr. Keys that the mare was lame and unfit to race.

Special to The Standard.
New York, Sept. 26.—New York became favorite in the American League pennant race here this afternoon by defeating the Cleveland Indians eight to seven, making it three out of four games in a little world series. The second four bagger came in the fifth when he sent the ball over the right field wall. In the sixth inning Wally Schang the veteran catcher hit a homer into the right field bleachers.

FIGURES SHOW CARPENTIER GIBBONS EVENLY MATCHED

There is Only a Slight Difference in the Two Great Fighters—European Champion Has An Advantage in Age.

"The fishing is great, so is the swimming; in fact, I'm having my first real fun since early last fall," said Tommy Gibbons at his summer home at Lake Oskak's recently. The St. Paul boxer, who is signed to box Georges Carpentier some time in December, for Tex Rickard is down as a berry and spending most of the time trying to coax fish from the lake. Tom is a better boxer than fisherman.
A decisive win for Tommy means a fortune and a crack at the heavy-weight championship of the world. He will probably get it anyway, unless Georges should put over a kayo. The best with Georges will be for the light heavyweight championship of the world, as Georges is recognized as the world's champion after his knockout of Battling Levinsky last fall. Tom is considered the best of the American light heavies.
The boxers are very evenly matched, with only a slight difference in the figures.
Developed Kayo Punch
"What about this kayo punch of yours?" Tommy was asked. "Look over my list of 12 knockouts—that explains it. It was seldom I ever stopped an opponent, but early last fall I developed a snap or twist in my right hand, and when it lands square down the middle of the forehead, it makes a record, saying that most of my rivals were set-up. All right, let me make you see how about Willie McLean? Jack Dempsey lost decisions to him, failed to stop him. I put him down in one round. That's one point in my favor, and I believe I can get Jack all the fight he wants. Anytime I'm willing to try after I get Georges out of the way.
Today the Gibbons brothers, Tommy and Mike are two leading boxers of their weight in the world. Mike is making a come-back in hopes of winning the middleweight championship from Johnny Wilson. Tom is after the heavyweight title.
His List of Knockouts
Tom in his last twelve fights has scored knockouts and is willing to meet any boxer obtainable. He bars no one. Here is his list of kayos:
Tom got away by stopping Tony Melchior in one round. Melchior had been going around pretty well and was being groomed for bouts in the top circles. Al Reich fell next in one round, and Paul Simpson was beaten two. Sergeant Norton lasted one round and Larry Williams four. Dan Flynn holds the record of lasting the longest since Tom started on his sleep producing rampage. He went 11 rounds. Then Hugh Walker went 8-34 in his ankle. . . . 9 in.

Want Interpretation of Vehicle By-Law

Complain of Action of Magistrate—Tenders Dealt With by Committee.

The interpretation of the recent by-law governing "jitney" operation in St. John was taken up before the City Council yesterday morning on the complaint of the Union Bus Co., that the Magistrate had exceeded his authority recently. Several tenders were dealt with and a water main extension approved.
J. A. Barry, solicitor for the Union Bus Co., contended that Magistrate Ritchie had exceeded his authority in sending a man to jail recently in default of the payment of a fine. It was agreed to take the matter up with the city solicitor.
Tenders for a hot water boiler in the Water and Sewerage building, Leinster street, were referred to the Commissioner of Water for report. The tenders were: J. W. Carter, $750; W. E. Emerson, $549; H. E. Fitzgerald, $590; Jas. H. McParland & Sons, $1,025; P. Campbell & Co., $840; Wm. B. McDonough, $665.
One tender received at 11.30, half an hour after the tenders were due to close, was not considered.
The following tenders for 26 sets of Richards-Wilcox door-hangers for the West Side shed were opened:

A request from Mr. Connelly, Adelaide street, for the city to pay a proportion of the cost of a concrete wall on his property, was brought in by Commissioner Frink. There had been a log retaining wall there. The commissioner recommended that the city restore the retaining and make repairs to the sidewalk.—Carried.
Commissioner Jones asked authority to extend the 6-inch main in Water street as far as Reed's Point. He said the water taken by the G. P. O. S. Bay Pump service was through a service pipe which was leaking badly. He proposed to do the work by his own department, the cost to be paid out of unexpended issues. The estimated cost was $1,500. It was intended to put in a hydrant at Reed's Point.
Get Them Now
The Wise Course
Last year many were disappointed in not getting tickets for the City Cornet Band's big drawing. Why? They put it off and all were gone before they realized it. Get them now tomorrow night in St. Andrew's Rink. Give the Band a big rally.
What has become of the old fashioned girl who didn't roll her eyes, her stockings or cigarettes?

ROTARY CLUB HEARS CANON ARMSTRONG
Gave Third in His Series of Talks on Edinburgh Convention.
At the Rotary Club yesterday Canon Armstrong gave the third in his series of talks on the Edinburgh Convention, and in this one he took his audience to the "battle" fields of France and gave a vivid description of conditions as he found them there. It was impossible, he said, to get any idea of what had taken place until one had actually seen the ruins and devastation wrought by the war, and then one could get an adequate conception of what sacrifice really was.
He also described a number of churches, particularly the cathedrals in England.
A two minute talk on the sixth principle of Rotary was given by H. G. Adams.
Rotarian "Allie" Smith was in the chair and a good number were present.

Rev. John Glendinning, Wife and Daughters Passed Thru City En Route to India.

Rev. John Glendinning, Mrs. Glendinning and two daughters passed through St. John yesterday en route for India. No Need of Grammar.
"They say that man is a writer, but he certainly does murder the King's English."
"Oh, that doesn't make any difference, he simply writes sub-titles for the movies and an occasional popular song."

How Fighters Compare

When Joe Tinker was manager of the Chicago Federal League team the club happened to be playing a series in Baltimore, and being a Sunday morning, Joe left the hotel for a short stroll after breakfast.
He passed by a big vacant lot where a couple of scrub teams had just completed a game. Joe decided to have some fun at the expense of a small lad, who was standing alone near the sidewalk, stuffing a big glove in his pocket.
"Don't you know it's bad to play ball on a Sunday?" asked Tinker.
"What would your family say if they knew about it?"
The kid flashed a grin at Joe. "Don't know," he replied. Then, pointing to a couple of men a few feet distant, added, "You might ask them. My dad is the shortest and my uncle the pitcher."
With the exception of two arrests for drunkenness, no arrests were made by the police last evening.
This society meets every Monday evening and has a large membership. It was only organized last year but has been very successful.
