IN THE QUEEN'S HALL Under the auspices of Branch 50 the public of Montreal were afforded a decided treat in being afforded an opportunity of listening, in the Queen's hall, to the famous American orator, Hon.

Father Walsh, occupied seats in one private box. There was a large audience present, and for an hour and a half they listened attentively as the glowing words fell from the lips of the speaker, now applauding as the hongentleman, warming to his subject and demonstrating some particular ject and demonstrating some particular point in words almost endowed with life, roused the enthusiasm of his hearers, and the next moment they would be waiting almost breathlessly for the words yot to be uttered, and then again he would carry the audience with him and plunge them into roars of laughter, as he recited, with due mimicry and elecutionary power some mirth-proveking incident. In every sense the lecture was indeed an intellectual treat.

A vote of thanks having been accorded the lecturer, on the motion of the Acting Mayor, seconded by Mr. J. J. Curran, M P., the gathering dispersed.

WEDNESDAY'S SESSION. The greater part of Wednesday wa taken up in the discussion of proposed amendments to the constitution, some of amendments to the constitution, some of them of an important character. On a vote being taken it was carried almost unanimously. THURSDAY'S SESSION.

On Thursday morning His Grace Arch bishop Walsh, accompanied by Rev. W. Flannery, of St. Thomas, and Mr. T. J. Grand President O'Connor rose and delivered a very appropriate address of welcome to His Grace. He said: The organization of which I have the honor to be president has reason to entertain particular feelings of gratitude to the distinguished Archbishop of Toronto. Before his elevation to that see, when Bishop of London, he encouraged the society in every manner, not alone speaking words of commendation in its behalf to his priests and people, but becoming an active member himself, thus giving an example to those who vention in this great Catholic city, and he hoped that their stay in Montreal would be a pleasant one and result in I have no hesitation in assertion without the kind encouragement thus ex sponded, thanking the Acting Mayor for his hearty welcome and kind words and also for the honor he had done them by diocese saw at a glance what a great boon its operations would be to his people— he fully recognized what a blessing it would become to the afflicted and sorrow. stricken when the head of the home was removed by death and the cold charity of the world would otherwise stare them in the face—he saw that its labors would lighten the burden of the angelic Sister of Charity, and enable the widowed of Charity, and enable the widowed mother to keep about her in comfort and respectability the little souls who had been left fatherless. And seeing all this, his kind and tender heart prompted the utmost encouragement it were possible to give. How far his labors were successful may be seen from the prosperous position the society holds to-day. To his active interest and fatherly counsel is this success for the most part due, and it is therefore but fitting that on this occasion we should extend him a greeting welling up from our heart of hearts. This encouragement he hearts. This encouragement he has given us was not of the fitful sort. He has been always the same to us. At nearly all our important gatherings he has been present to impart the episcopal benediction and say the word of cheer to us in our labors. For these reasons, then, in behalf of the seven thousand members of the C. M. B. A. in Canada, I extend to His Grace the Archbishop of Toronto a most heartfelt welcome on the occasion of our seventh annual conven-President, O K Fraser, of Brockville; resentative members of the association Neustadt; Grand Changellar, D. R. tection of Catholic interests. Hitherto there was a strong temptation to Catholic men to join other benefit societies of doubtful and questionable morality. I do not mean that the members were not of good character, moral and respectable, but the principles of these societies and their rules of life and conduct were not those of the Catholic Church, and exposed to danger the faith and morals of our people. Your association is in harmony with the church, and I believe it is good from a religious point. You en join mony with the church, and I believe it is good from a religious point. You enjoin on your members the observance of Easter duties and others, and a body conscientiously and fearlessly attending to their religious duties is a good example both in the home and in the parish. Financially, too, it is a good thing; it has been a comfort to many a desolate home; it has wiped away the widow's tear and enabled many a Chrstian mother to rear her children in widow's tear and enabled many a Chra-tian mother to rear her children in respectability and give them a useful education. These convictions led me to join it and to promote its interests wher-ever I can. I am delighted with the spirit of harmony that has prevailed throughout your meetings. I trust that throughout your meetings. I trust that you may continue to prosper until the C. M. B. A. becomes coterminous with the Dominion of Canada, and that its name be blessed by widows and orphans for all time?"

words of welcome to His Grace, who then gave the meeting his blessing, after which he withdrew.

Letter from Grand President MacCabe. To the Members of the Catholic Mutual Ben efit Association in Canada:

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 6, 1890. BROTHERS—I take this early opportunity after my installation in the office of Frand President of the C. M. B. A. in Canada—to which office I have been elected by the good will and fraternal regard of your representatives in Council—to send you, one and all, my traternal greetings. Coming to office at a time when the responsibilities of the position are as great as they have ever been, and, certainly, will not grow less during the next two years, I can make the adminis tration of that office a success only by the cordial co operation of all Brothers of the order. To day, Brothers, I ask for this co-operation. Give it to me fully; give it to me heartily. We have a noble work before us—a work in which every member of our grand association can take an active part, perfecting present arrangements, seeking and put-ting into effective working new plans for our greater advancement, searching out new fields for our organization trengthening one another in our obligation to the principles of our great Brotherhood, still further promoting the narmony which exists among us, removing, once and for all, everything which may lead to friction if not to disunion in our Branches and their relations with the Grand Council officers and trustees. At a date as early as is consistent with a proper consideration of so important a matter, I shall exercise my prerogative of appointing District Deputies and official organs—Deputies, who, I hope, by word and work will lead our brothers in their respective districts and promote the harmonious working of the branches under their jurisdiction, and the success of the Association.

I wish here to bear testimony to the earnestness, zeal, and prudence your representatives have exercised in our Grand Council lately assembled. The minutes of the convention will be placed in your hands in due time, when each can see the work which has been done. For myself I can say that the interests, advancement, and success of our noble association will have my constant care and attention. I have the past example and present advice of our late Grand President, to whose energy and tact are due the great strides our Association has made during the past four years; the invaluable assistance of that most efficient officer, Grand Recorder Brown, whose thorough knowledge of the affairs of the Association, whose business capacity and fertility of resource in dealing with the many, various and intricate matters which come up from time to time, need only to be mentioned; and the sympathy and aid of the other efficient officers whom your representatives have elected to help and advise me. Should you wish to communicate with me. Brothers, it will always afford me nuch pleasure to hear from you at the address given below. Every suggestion or request coming from a Brother will be cordially welcomed and will receive my most careful consideration.

Brothers, this will suffice for the pres ent. Wishing you one and all, whether in your relations with our noble order r outside of the order, every prosperity. I am, yours fraternally JOHN A. MACCABE,

Office of the Grand President,

some of our colleges we were greatly surprised at the number of branches taught. All the learned ologies were to be stowed | the away in the intellects of the pupils. Now a college course can aim only at systematizing our thoughts and at helping us to use our reasoning faculties to the best advantage. But is not this end frustrated by a multiplicity of subjects? Is it not reasonable to suppose that a smattering of doub various sciences will paraly ze brain action and condemn the student to intellectual hype starvation-to prevent him forming one independent opinion? Pupils are taught everything till they know nothing. So said that great master of English prose, Cardinal Newman, in 1852. "I will tell you," says he, " what has been the practical error of the last twenty years: not to load the memory with a mass of undigested knowledge, but to force upon him so much that he has rejected all. It has inter been the error of distracting and enfeebling the mind by an unmeaning profusion of subjects; of implying that a smattering in a dezen branches of study is not shallowness, which it really is, but enlarge. unbe ment, which it is not ; of considering an ner ; acquaintance with the learned names of ning things and persons is progress and not dis Gres sipation of minds." These caustic words | the | of the distinguished Cardinal have a truer it, n meaning than in 1852. Give a student ever full liberty to follow the natural bent of at I his talent, without, however, neglecting to | Eng round his intelligence by supplementary knowledge. Teach him to concentrate his | ings faculties upon a given subject, and he will be more educated than if he could repeat | a di Homer and Saphocles from memory. Ald him to understand, in the words of | tent the eccentric Thoreau, that "our stock in and life, our real estate, is that amount of nine thought which we have had, which we have thought out. If he has ever done any work with those finest tools, the Imagination and Fancy and Reason, it is a new creation, independent of the world, and a possession forever."

THE session of the English parliament just ended has been at best more like the tinkerings of village politicians than delib erations befitting a body of progressive statesmen. Bits of unimportant bills kind about the army, the police, the cattle disease have secured the undivided attraction of both Houses, but no debate has been enlivened by those flashes of wit and oratory oftlmes bordering on genius with which Macaulay and Gladstone, Lytton Cen and O'Connell electrified their auditors. The Mr. Goschen has proved himself an "Ignis imp fatuus," leading his party into the sure quagmire of unpopularity and defeat. Into His motion to devote the surplus of ing revenue from intemperance to the buying tryi out of the publicans aroused the ire of the com owing temperarce party and caused like the defeat of three important party pro messures. The truth is, that the im. the position and remission of taxes is a lug more difficult problem than Mr. Goschen | first has the ability to solve. It requires, dev as the American justly says, that a man | fore shall be as closely in touch with the ator moral instincts as the economic abilities | con of the people who are to pay. This star was the secret of the success of Peel and and Gladstone as Chancellors of the mer Exchequer. Mr. Goschen apprehends mat the merely economic sides of the ques. | this tion as well as Mr. Gladstone; but there and his apprehension stops.

According to Macaulay, Gladstone's the mind is of large grasp : nor is he deficient | Lor in dialectical skill; but he does not give his intellect fair play. His style bears a of remarkable analogy to his mode of thinking. He has one gift most dangerous to Du a speculator—a vast command of a kind as of language, grave and majestic, but of | che vague import—a kind of language which | ing affects us much the same way as the lofty | can diction of the chorus of the clouds affected | run the simple-hearted Athenian.

THE Toronto Presbyteman Review says the poet Swinburne is wrong in advocat. | visi ing regicide as a cure for Russia's ills. "The remedy does not lie in that way, bei but in the spread f the principles of im Christianity." Verily times are changed! wh But how will these principles of Christian- of ity be spread amongst the Russians? If age Luther were alive he would direct the sim Czar in the application of these principles | the to his subjects. Perchance the royal a n despot may take Calvin as model, and of a inaugurate the conversion of Servetus on out a grand scale. Better still, John Knox, resu who was a master in his own peculiar style | nur of diffusing Christianity, may enlighten gra his mind. The remark of our contem- and porary was well meant, but shrouded in mo
