

HON. T. M. DALY DEAD

Hon. T. M. Daly, police magistrate and judge of the juvenile court of Winnipeg, died suddenly of hemorrhage, on June 23. He was formerly minister of the interior in the Conservative government, prior to 1906. Mr. Daly was one of the best known and most highly esteemed citizens of Winnipeg. The body lay in state in the city hall yesterday afternoon, and was shipped last evening for interment to Stratford, Ont., the birthplace of the deceased.

PASS ON

Pass on, sweet Youth,
The Child—the Boy—the Man.
Each change on soft and sure,
"Twould seem the race has scarce began,
When it is o'er!
Ah, Mother, weep, and clasp
Thy Babe unto thy breast!
In a little while, he's gone,
And Thou too,—rest!

Pass on, dear Heart,
I cannot keep thee long,
For Love will never stay,
A Kiss—a Whisper and a Song,
Then he's away!
Dead Ashes on the Hearth,
The Fire burnt low,
And I with empty arms, alone,
Tis ever so!

Pass on, fair Fame,
Thou most delusive Snare!
A Crown for me today,
A blaze of Trumpets, and the glare
Of Puppet play,
To-morrow dawns, and hark!
What is't they sing?
"The King is Dead, the King is Dead!
Long Live the King!"

All's passed, my Soul,
Yet thou must ever on
The Eternal Way,
The Day—the Hour—the Year has gone,
But still I pray
That Youth and Life and Love,
Are but the Wings
To bear me to a glorious Dawn
Of Better Things.

FAMOUS "DOG" SPEECH

Some years ago the late Senator West was attending court in a country town, and while waiting for the trial of a case in which he was interested, he was urged by the attorneys in a dog case to help them. He was paid a fee of $250 by the plaintiff. Voluminous evidence was introduced to show that the defendant had shot the dog in malice, while other evidence went to show that the dog had attacked the defendant. West took no part in the trial and was not disposed to speak. The attorneys, however, urged him to make a speech, else their client would not think he had earned his fee. Being thus urged, he arose, scanned the face of each jurymen for a moment, and said:

Gentlemen of the Jury: The best friend a man has in the world may turn against him and become his enemy. His son or daughter that he has reared with loving care may prove ungrateful. Those who are nearest and dearest to us, those whom we trust with our happiness and our good name may become traitors to their faith. The money that a man has he may lose. It flies away from him, perhaps when he needs it most. A man's reputation may be sacrificed in a moment of ill-considered action. The people who are prone to fall on their knees to do us honor when success is with us may be the first to throw stones of malice when failure settles its cloud upon our heads. The one absolutely unselfish friend that man can have in this selfish world, the one that never deserts him, the one that never proves ungrateful, is his dog. A man's dog stands by him in prosperity and in poverty, in health and in sickness. He will sleep on the cold ground where the wintry winds blow and the snow drives fiercely, if only he may be near his master's side. He will kiss the hand that has no food to offer. He will lick the wounds and sores that come from the encounter with the roughness of the world. He guards the sleep of his pauper master as if he were a prince. When riches take wings and reputation falls to pieces, he is as constant in his love as the sun in his journey through the heavens. If fortune drives the master forth an outcast in the world, friendless and homeless, the faithful dog asks no higher privilege than that of accompanying

Sixty Years of Protection in Canada, 1846-1907

By Edward Porritt

Western farmers at the present time are intensely interested in the tariff, and are anxious to secure information upon tariff matters. The above mentioned book by Edward Porritt is the best work on the subject. Mr. Porritt is a British Free Trader, and was for two years a lecturer in Harvard University on political economy and Canadian constitutional history. In 1905-6 he travelled with the Canadian tariff commission and has devoted a great deal of study to the Canadian tariff and the abuses which have followed protection. Mr. Porritt's book is entirely non-political and is a study of the tariff history of Canada for the last sixty years. It is written in a most interesting manner and at the same time contains exact information on trade and manufacturers and the methods by which tariffs are made. Every farmer who is interested in tariff reduction will find Mr. Porritt's book the most valuable one that he can secure. He will also learn how the manufacturers lay aside politics in their efforts to have the tariff burden increased. If every farmer in Canada would read Mr. Porritt's book, the "system of legalized robbery would come to an end inside of one year. The book contains 478 pages and is fully indexed. It will be sent to any reader for $1.50 postpaid.

DRY FARMING: Its Principles and Practice

(By William McDonald, M.S., Agr. Sc.D., Ph.D.)

The readers of The Guide have demanded reliable information on "dry farming" as it is called. After considerable search and consultation with experts the book was selected. The author is one of the leading agricultural scientists of the day and has studied conditions in South Africa and United States. The author treats of the "Campbell System" of dry farming and also devotes a chapter to "The Tractor Engine in Dry Farming." Professor W. J. Elliott, who is in charge of the C.P.R. farm at Strathmore, Alberta, and one of Canada's leading Dry Farming Experts, says: "I could certainly recommend 'Dry Farming' to all those who are considering this work in any one of its phases, and in fact for any man who is farming under more humid conditions there are many points that will aid him very much in the handling and treatment of his soil." The book is written in a simple style that may be understood by every man who reads, and in fact, so well has the author prepared this work that it reads like an interesting novel. It contains 390 pages and is well illustrated. The book is kept in The Guide office and will be sent by return mail, $1.50, postpaid.

him, to guard against danger, to fight his enemies. When the last scene of all came, and death takes the master in its embrace, and his body is laid away in the cold ground, no matter if all other friends pursue their way, there by the graveside will the noble dog be found, his head between his paws, his eyes sad, but open in alert watchfulness, faithful and true even in death.

Then West sat down. He had spoken in a low voice, without a gesture. He had made no reference to the evidence or the merits of the case. When he finished the judge and jury were wiping their eyes. The jury filed out but soon entered with a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for $1000. He had sued for $200.

MRS. BILLIE'S BABY

By Harold Suman

"Before I was married and had a baby of my own," said Mrs. Billie, "nothing used to lure me so much as other women's babies."

"I know," said Mrs. Van Martry. "It seemed to me that all babies were had enough to have to look at, but were even worse to have to listen to," said Mrs. Billie.

"Quite so," said Mrs. Van Martry. "And when they were 'shown off' it was worst of all. I used to go 'gouge flesh' when that began," said Mrs. Billie. "Me too," said Mrs. Van Martry.

"But then the average baby is an awful thing. And, even though I do say it as shouldn't, my baby is not an average baby," said Mrs. Billie.

"Of course not," said Mrs. Van Martry. "In the first place, Augustus doesn't look like an average baby; does he?" said Mrs. Billie.

"No, indeed," said Mrs. Van Martry. "And in the second place, Augustus doesn't talk like one, either," said Mrs. Billie.

"I believe it," said Mrs. Van Martry. "I just want you to hear the way he imitates the animals," said Mrs. Billie. "Imitates the animals?" said Mrs. Van Martry.

"Yes, all the animals," said Mrs. Billie. "Good gracious!" said Mrs. Van Martry.

"It is wonderful," said Mrs. Billie. "It must be," said Mrs. Van Martry. "Just listen to this," said Mrs. Billie.

"Augustus, how does the how-wow go?" "Blah! Blah!" said Augustus. "See!" said Mrs. Billie. "He knows!"

"Wonderful!" said Mrs. Van Martry. "Augustus," said Mrs. Billie, "how does the pussy cat go?"

"Blah! Blah!" said Augustus. "See!" said Mrs. Billie. "That's right!"

"Wonderful" said Mrs. Van Martry. "Augustus," said Mrs. Billie, "how does the poli parrot go?"

"Blah! Blah!" said Augustus. "See!" said Mrs. Billie. "He never makes a mistake!"

"Wonderful" said Mrs. Van Martry. "And now the hardest of all," said Mrs. Billie. "Augustus, how does the choo-choo car go?"

"Blah! Blah!" said Augustus. "See!" said Mrs. Billie. "Isn't it marvelous?"

"It certainly is," said Mrs. Van Martry. "But that choo-choo car reminds me that I have to catch a train. I must go. I am not surprised that you are proud of your child. As I have said, he is er—wonderful. Good-bye, dear."

"Good-bye," said Mrs. Billie. "Good-bye, Augustus," said Mrs. Van Martry. "Say good-bye to the lady, Augustus," said Mrs. Billie.

"Blah! Blah!" said Augustus. "See!" said Mrs. Billie. "Isn't that cute? He knows that, too!"

STILL RUNNING

Edwin, aged four, owned a picture book in which a horse-looking cow was running after a little boy. He looked at it a long time, then carefully closing the book he laid it away. A few days later he got the book again, and turned to the picture. Bringing his chubby fist down on the cow, he exclaimed in a tone of triumph, "She ain't caught him yet!"
