The Clear Grits at Markham.

If we may accept Mr. Perry's speech at Markham as an indication of the tendency of the public mind in Upper Canada, and we have no reason to doubt the fact that he gives utterance to the sentiments of the independent yearnanry-there cannot be a question that we are rapidly approaching a solution of our difficulties. It is now notorious to every well-informed man that the Colonial Ministry have forfeited the confidence of the party who placed them in office; that Provihas paralyzed the intellectual powers of some; that some have again yielded to those seductive influences which re-assert their empire over feeble minds; that the actual business of the Colony has devolved upon Messrs. Price and Hincks; and that the avowed leaders of the English and French interests in the Ministry have almost ceased to be regarded as politicians. Such unquestionable disorganization in the staff might, in the palmier days of Responsible Gov ernment, under the auspices of self styled Reformers, suggest the expediency of seeking fresh recruits-but this resource is dried up-one attempt was made in the case of Mr. Wetenhall, a gentleman deservedly respected- yet that attempt laid bare the unwelcome truth to the Ministry that their favored champion, in his chosen field was foiled, defeated, and rejected, by a Reform constituency. It is to be inferred that those who control the Administration deliberated long and seriously before they decided upon a champion and a constituency- that they played their best card when they produced Mr. Wetenhall, and that his failure is but a prelude to that graver mark of humiliation when the country pronounces as its verdict-" want of confidence." Few men will accuse Mr. Hincks of being overstraight-inced on the score of political moralityhis principles have always hung about him so loosely, that they were readily altered to suit the prevailing fashion; he has been covetous of the post of leading Radical, and based his popularity upon his open advocacy of an unsparing demolition of all those restrictions which fettered the freedom of the people. Yet it must be confessed that, with all his selfishness and unscrupulous ness, he has proved himself singularly incompetent to deal with a political crisis-he may be a clever accountant, and understand figures admirably, but he is devoid of foresight, and a blind observer of passing events. The blundering stupidity which urged him to sneer at Retrenche ment, and treat it as the petulant irritation of disappointed office seekers, is on a par with the untimely presumption of Justice Draper, lecturing the public upon the treasonable character of Annegation doctrines; when, about the same period, the English Premier was voluntarily, on behalf of England, renouncing all right of interference in our affairs, and anticipating the demand for Elective Institutions and Retrenchment. If we accept Mr. Perry as an exponent of the views of his party, and remember that Mr. Perry's party ed the Ministry in power, we may mee ph mure the gulf which now severs the two; and the conviction is forced upon us, that the latter have ceased to represent public opinion. It is most true that, when the Ministry entered office, the Elective principle was not a test question, and, if the Ministry had remained unchanged, we might not have been in a position to condemn their conduct; but, within the last few mo their conduct; but, within the text leve containt, the Cabinet has undergone matorial alterations, new men have been infoduced, and they have been brought forward as the antagenize of Retrench tive Institutions, and the opponents of Retrench ment. The Ministry have thus pitted themselves against the recorded demands of the people, where they presenting from the Perry Clear Geits or the Languest; they retain the honer without these attributes which can also impert vigor or com-mand impect. The Colony is tips for a change, but the direction of the movement must be ex-

Mr. Perry and the Clear Grits have rendered an essential service to the country, by bringing prominently forward a few leading principles-they may for the moment be in advance of the masses, but the period is close
