O'LEARY FATHER

Will Get the Victoria Cross for Bravery at Paardberg.

He is One of the Cheplains of the First Casalian Contingent.

The announcement is made that the Victoria cross is to be awarded to Fr. P. M. O'Leary, the Roman Catholic chaplain with the first Canadian contingent in South Africa, and to a French-Canadian named Fiset, a surgeon, for conspicuous bravery on the field of battle during the engagements in which the Canadians participated before the capitulation of the Orange Free State capital.

Fr. O'Leary's untiring devotion to duty and his great bravery have earned him the admiration of his battalion Unflinching at the post of danger, his signal service at the front and in the firing line has won for him the distinction of being recommended for the reward of distinguished valor. In a recent letter to his brother, James M. O'Leary, of Ottawa, he writes thus of O'Leary, of Ottawa, he writes thus of the stirring scenes with the Canadians on the battlefield:

"We kad marched the preceding hight 23 miles, some say 25, good miles, a forced march, heading off Cronje. Oh, but that beautiful moonlight night was long! Ere we were allowed to hrow ourselves on the veldt to snatch an hour's sleep, long had our one biscuit been disposed of, as also our ration of water, and mind you, we had been marching and countermarching

"At daybreak; we again struck the hateful Modder river. We had just bettled down for a rest when the order was passed along to be up and go forward. Away in the distance the heavy booming of guns told us plainly that the battle was on. Hand in hand with the brave Gordons and the ill-fated Black Watch, we dashed into the swollen river, up to our necks water, though it ran like a mill race, carrying many a poor fellow off race, carrying many a poor fellow off his feet. Then a scramble up the steep bank, a hasty formation, and we were off again. In less time than it takes to write it, we had occupied the position assigned us.

"The plunge in the river had, I must say, revived us, but lying in the burning sun in our wed clothes under a terrific fire soon told on us. So exhausted were we that many slept, myself among the number, on that bloody hillside, while bullets did their deadly work around us. Oh, that day eadly work around us. Oh, that day

"We occasionally shifted our posi-ion, always drawing nearer and near-r the enemy's lines until by evening er the enemy's lines until by evening the welcome order was given to charge. Then what a scens! Never, never shall I forget it. We arose with a bound and dashed forwad, rending the air with a genuine Canadian cheer, the first heard on the continent of darkest Africa. The boys were no longer men; tigers they might more truly be called. Already two of the regiments on the other bank of the river had gone down decimated under the terrible fire. We felt that the day could be saved by us, and we

"But what was your poor wayward brother doing all this time? His best. I know you will scold me again for disregardn to take cafe of myself. Really, I had the intention of so doing, but you have no idea of the fascination that seizes upon one in the wild delirum of battle. For a time I lay behind a friendly ant hill, beside a good hearted Black Watch, who had made room for me. How I gos there I shall never know, for it was away forward in the firing line, but retire I would not account of the effect it might produce on Quetly we chatted together unti the fire became hotter and hotter, when it became evident that the ant when it became evident that the ant hill could no longer shelter us both. With a, here goes, I made a dash still forward, toward another shelter. I fancy I still hear his warning ringing in my ears, For God's sake he low; it's terrible? Just then a terrible discharge rent the air, but I was safe. Next morning at dawn as chanced to pass the ant hill there l my poor comrade, just as I had left him; but no, his side was torn into three gaping wounds. Poor boy, he received what had been intended for

Last summer I had company, — a man and his wife. The man's hands and face had dry, scaly scres on them, and his head was covered with the same, his hair being full of those white scales or scabs. His wife said, "Some mornings she would find a tablespoonful or more of them in the bed." I asked him what alled him, and he replied "that he did not know." "Why don't you cure yourself?" "I would give a hundred dollars to be cured. I have paid cut a lot of money, but don't get cured," he said. Well, I told him 'I would cure him for less than that," and told him to get the Curicura remedies and he would be cured. As he was living in Bristol, Vt., I did not see him for some time after, and then he fairly shouted to me: "I am cured. Cuticura has done it. The Lord blees you and Cuticura." Mrs. SARAH E. MINER.

In some of the Swiss valleys the inhabitants are all afflicted with goitre or "thick neck." Instead of regarding this as a deformity they seem to think it a natural feature of physi-cal development, and tourists passing through the valleys are sometimes jeered by the goitrous inhabitants, because they are without this offensive swelling. Thus a form of disease may become so common that it is regarded a natural and necessary condition of life. It is so, to a large extent, with what are called diseases of women. Every woman suffers more or from irregularity, ulceration, debili-tating drains, or female weakness, and this suffering is so common and so universal that many women accept it as a condition natural and necessary to their sex. But it is a condition as unnatural as it is unnecessary. The use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescrip-tion strengthens the delicate womanly organs and regulates the womanly functions, so that woman is practicaldelivered from the pain and misery which eat up ten years of her life-between the ages of fifteen and fortyfive. THEY BOTH FLAYED TRUANT

But They Heartily Repented the Prank and Were Glad to Get Home.

HATE school!" The speaker, a good-looking, dark-haired boy, snapped his book shut as he spoke leaned pensively upon the desk.

"So do I," came a pretty little voice, and looking across the aisle, Roland Havens saw Mamie Gray, the prettiest and sauciest girl in school, smiling and nodding at him. "I heard what you said," said Mamie, "and I agree with you. School is a hateful old thing."

"Let's play truant to-morrow." The words were out of Roland's mouth before he thought, but once having said them, he was not going to take them back.

"I'm afraid," said Mamie, looking at him out of the corner of her blue eyes.
"Pshaw! you needn't be," said Ro-"We can say we went visiting. I will tell the teacher to-morrow that I went to see Sister Sue and you can tell her you went to spend the day with your grandmother.' Mamie's eyes flashed.

"We can go and gather violets," said Roland. "I know where there's a whole bank of them, blue as indigo and as big as—as—wild roses."
"Is it far?" "No; only in Hatfield's woods, where we had our picnic last summer. We can start in the morning before 9 and get back by 4 o'clock. They won't say anything to us at home when we bring them all the violets." The next morning saw a guilty little pair scudding along the paths which led out of the village and trying to avoid observation by climbing the tall fences and walking the other side of the bare hedges.

It seemed so good to be out in the air once more. Roland enjoyed it thoroughly and Mamie liked it as well as her guilty conscience would permit. They were the leaders in all the pranks in school, these two children, and when anything went wrong the question was always asked, "Did Roland do it?" or "Was it Mamie Grey's fault?" Yet neither meant to be naughty, and you may be sure that neither would have gone out that day had they known what trouble the day would bring forth. "I guess this is where we turned off last fall," said Roland, pointing to two large trees which formed the begin-ning of a dense woods. In the summer the woods hung thick with green leaves, and a carpet of green lay upon the ground, but now it was bare, and in spots there were muddy pools and bits of marsh.

"Olf, Roland, look! look!" cried Mamie, bending down, and pushing back the carpet of dried leaves. "Here is a violet!" And sure enough, there it lay, half blue and lovely. "And here are others, oh dear! oh dear!" "Here," said Roland, "put them in my muffler; we will make a bag out of it, so. Then we will fill it with vio-

buried in the ground, yet peeping forth

Deeper and deeper into the woods they went, picking ever one more violet and ever venturing a little deeper into the blackness.

"What makes it so dark?" asked Roland once, stopping and looking up at he exclaimed, "it's going to rain." Well, I'm hungry," said Mamie,

"and I am going to stop and eat my unch if it does rain." So with the drops falling gently around them, they sat upon the cold wet earth and ate their lunch.
"I think," said Mamie, "that we had better go back now. I feel cold and it is getting late. It must be 2 o'clock. "All right," said Roland, "where are the violets?" "I thought you had them," said Ma-"I gave them to you," said Roland.

They were gone, muffler and all, and disappointed, the two children started back to find them.

How it happened Roland never could tell, but they started in the wrong direction, and after they had walked a good hour they saw that they had made a mistake. "I guess we'd better turn around," said Roland, "and go back."

"Oh, dear!" said Mamie, whimper-ing a little, "I'm so tired!" Another hour's walking brought them no nearer the outskirts of the woods, and, in a dilemma, they sat down to think it over.

"I'm afraid we are lost," said Mamie, rubbing her eyes. "I don't know," said Roland bravely,
"but if you don't feel too tired, Mamie, I guess we'd better walk a little further on. It isn't much further. Meanwhile all was excitement in the

When Mamie and Roland did not appear at school, the teacher sent home for them, and wnen it was found that they were gone, search parties were sent out for them. Inquiry was made at the homes of all their relatives, and then, not finding them, the parties searched further. They scarcely thought that the children could have been venturesome enough to go to the woods, but there was really no telling what they would do. Finally the searching party found a nitten dropped by Roland at the fence which led into the woods, and with this clew they started on their seach in the cold, wet forest.

It was 6 o'clock when Roland's father found his muffler, filled with violets, and this cheered them on. At 9 they came across the children, nestled snugly against the roots of a big tree, both

The next day Roland went back to school a changed boy. He realized how much trouble he had made his father and all his friends and determined to do better. Mamie took her share of the blame, too, and for a while at least no one would have recognized the studious boy who stood at the head of his class as the careless Roland of a short ime before.-Columbus Dispatch.

HAIR RAISING.

Year Ago no One Would Believe What Thousands Now Know to be a Fact -Bair Can be Grown on Bald Heads.

The hardest to convince that baldness can be replaced by a new growth of hair, are the bald. Why?

Because hundreds of things have been used with no effect. Nothing that has ever been prepared would produce a permanent growth of hair on bald heads until the discovery of The Rose Hair Grower. This preparation is the first to sucessfully demonstrate the hitherto mpossible, growing hair on bald cessfully

The originator, after perfecting the formula, found himself face to face with an incredulous public, who said: "No, no, too good to be true."
"Would like to believe it, but can't,"
"Nothing will cure my baldness."

"Good man, if true, you could not supply demand."
"Useless to 'talk, been fooled to often." Now these same people, who know what they are talking about, express themselves as follows:-

Robert Ross, plumber, Parkdale, says,—'I have been bald for over 22 years, but after using The Rose Hair Grower for two months, I have a good growth of hair all over my head, and it is follows in a table place. this reference, and will continue using your treatment."

W. Livingstone, druggist, 25 Howard St., Toronto, says, "This is to certify that I have seen the results of the use of The Rose Hair Grower. As a druggist with many control of the druggist with many control." fruggist with many years' experience in the city of Toronto, I have seen a multitude of hair tonics tried with varying results, but have never sold a hair grower that has been such a pro-nounced success at The Rose. Ladies nounced success at the case. In and gentlemen amongst our best people in the city, to whom I recommend ed it, many of whom were bald, now have beautiful heads of hair. I have used it myself and now have a head of hair as thick as anyone could wish

The Rose Hair Grower stops falling of the hair with a few applications. It absolutely removes dandruff. Makes the hair soft and pliable. It is a per-fect hair dressing, and the only pre-paration in the world that overcomes baldness. Price, $1.00 per bottle of dealers, or forwarded on receipt of price by addressing Rose & Co., 48 Adelaide St. East, Toronto, Ont.
