ASTOUNDING FIGURES.

Reliable authorities estimate the value of the poultry products of the United States for the year 1886, at the enormous sum of six hundred millions of dollars. But even this amount, large as it is, does not represent the total value of this great industry for a single year. In 1876, the United States imported from foreign countries about five million dozen eggs—but in 1885 the quantity had increased to over sixteen million dozen. If these figures are correct, (and there is no reason to doubt them) the poultry industry amounts to more than either the wheat crop, the cotton crop, the hay crop, or the entire product of all our gold or silver mines. We say these figures are astounding; probably not one person in ten thousand is aware that the poultry industry stands at the head. But what is it that has lifted the poultry industry to this suprising eminence? No doubt the discovery of Sheridan's Powder to make hens lay, had much to do with it, but not all. The fact is the women and children are beginning to learn there is no way by which they can secure a constant inflow of ready cash with so little effort, as by keeping and intelligently caring for hens. I. S. Johnson & Co., 22 Custom House Street, Boston, have published recently a valuable book on this subject, entitled, "The Farmers' Poultry Raising Guide." They will send one copy for 25 cents, or they will send the book and two twenty-five cent packs of Sheridan's Powder for 60 cents, postpaid, and for $1.20 a large 2½ pounds tin can. The information contained in this book is just what is needed to enable any one to start in the business, and to make money. d 1-4w.

Is it true? Is it kind? Is it necessary? These are very proper questions for one to ask and answer, when he finds himself about to speak evil of some one else. And if he answers any one of them in the negative, then he had better omit the evil speaking. The observance of this rule will save him from doing evil himself.

BETTER WHISTLE THAN WHINE.

As I was taking a walk, I noticed two little boys on their way to school. The small one stumbled and fell, and, though not very much hurt, he began to whine in a babyish way, not a regular, roaring boy cry, as though he were half killed, but a little cross whine.

The older boy took his hand in a kind fatherly way, and said:

"Oh, never mind, Jimmie! don't whine; it is a great deal better to whistle."

And he began in the merriest way a cheerful boy-whistle.

Jimmie tried to join the whistle.

"I can't whistle as nice as you Charlie," said he, "my lips won't pucker up good."

"Oh, that is because you have not got all the whine out yet," said Charlie; "but you try a minute, and the whistle will drive the whine away."

So he did; and the last I saw or heard of the little fellows they were whistling away as earnestly as though that was the chief end of life.—Early Dew.

Farm and Household.

POULTRY NOTES.

Do your fowls all roost in the hen house? Gather them in.

The best turkey in the lot is none too good for the farmer's Christmas dinner.

Is your poultry house snug and warm? Does the roof leak and will the snow drive in under the shingles? Go and see.

As the cold weather comes on the poultry will require more internal heat. Corn will furnish the fuel and it is cheap, too.

If the ground is not already frozen cut a load or two of sods and pile them up in one corner of the house. You have no idea how much the fowls will enjoy it.

Be sure to cut the size of your flock down to fit your accomodations. We know plenty of farmers and poultry keepers who get no eggs in winter simply because they keep a larger stock than they can care for properly. There is no profit in it.

RECEIPTS.

QUEEN OF PUDDINGS.—One quart of milk, one pint of bread crumbs, the yolks of two eggs. After it is baked, spread jelly or any kind of fruit over the top. Beat the whites of two eggs to a froth, mix with sugar, and put on the top and set in the oven till a little brown.

ORANGE TARTLETS.—Two fine oranges, juice of both and grated peel of one, one cup of sugar—three-fourths cup if the oranges are very sweet—one tablespoonful of butter, one-half lemon—juice only—to wet one teaspoonful corn starch. Beat all well together and bake in tartlet shells without cover.

BROWN BREAD.—Three cups corn meal, two cups rye, half a cup molasses, 1 1-2 cups each of sour milk and warm water. Mix molasses, milk and water thoroughly, adding one teaspoonful soda; then stir in the meal; steam four hours. Be very careful not to let the water stop boiling while steaming.

LEMON TART.—One cup of sugar, two lemons, all the juice, and a teaspoonful of grated peel, one teaspoonful corn starch dissolved in a little cold water, and one and one-half dozen raisins, stewed, cut in two, and seeded. Beat up well and bake with upper and lower crust.

A DELICATE SOUFFLE.—Dissolve a quarter of a pound of chocolate in luke warm water; add the yolks of four eggs and a cup of powdered sugar, and mix well together until you have a smooth, frothy paste. Beat up the four whites to a stiff froth and add them to the mixture. Pour all into a baking dish; leave it for 20 minutes in the oven and serve.

SIR J. B. LAWES ON FEEDING FOR MILK.

In the course of an English discussion on the value of ensilage, a correspondent of the London Agricultural Gazette remarked that as an experiment he would have tried a diet made up of mangels alone for a length of time, then changing to ensilage alone for a comparison. Sir J. B. Lawes takes this for a text for an article on feeding cows for milk, from which we make extracts. It will be seen that scientific conclusions tally closely with the best practices of the day in feeding. Why, then, should practical men fight shy of science? Dr. Lawes says:

A very interesting paper might be written upon the use and abuse of food for stock, and I could not desire a better illustration of the abuse of a food than that of feeding a cow which was yielding milk with mangels.

Milk is a highly nitrogenous substance, while mangels—though they contain a large amount of most valuable food in sugar—have a low percentage of nitrogen, and a considerable proportion of what they do possess is incapable of producing the nitrogenous compound which we find in milk. How, then, is milk to be obtained from mangels? The cow would for a time furnish the necessary nitrogenous compounds from her own body, but at the same time would be losing in condition. Whether a cow could go on yielding milk from a mangel diet alone, I do not pretend to say; but, if she could, the result would only be obtained by a great waste of respiratory matter.

In one of my articles on ensilage I pointed out that an animal, for sustenance purposes alone, that is to say, an animal which yielded no product, and neither increased nor diminished in weight, required a considerable amount of respiratory food, and a very small amount of nitrogenous food. Let us assume a hundred pounds of mangels to be the daily sustenance food of a cow not yielding milk, and that the supply of mangels was increased in order to obtain milk; the result would necessary be a large destruction of non-nitrogenous matter.

Bran very closely resembles milk as regards the relation of its nitrogenous and non nitrogenous matter, but bran and mangels differ very much in the respective amounts they contain of these substances. If you asked a chemist to produce out of a given weight of mangels a substances having the same proportion of nitrogenous and non-nitrogenous matter as he finds in bran, his first operation would be to get rid of a large amount of sugar. A diet of mangels to a cow yielding milk would be an abuse of the roots. A similar abuse often occurs when two many roots are given to ewes. A lamb which, when born, is little more than a lump of nitrogen and phosphates, is expected to be formed from a food which is exceedingly poor in both of these substances; and then, when wholesale abortion is the result, it is said that the manure which grew the roots is to blame. That the quality of roots is greatly dependent upon the manure's employed to grow them, I am quite prepared to admit; but no matter how they are grown, roots when used alone cannot be considered a milk-producing food. In practical agriculture a considerable waste of food is often unavoidable, but at the same time there is a good deal to be learned before we arrive at such true economy in the use of food as will enable us to produce a pound of beef or mutton at the least possible cost.

CLOSING THE FARM YEAR.

There is really no beginning nor ending of the work of the farm. We must continually carry forward the account and strike on a forced balance when occasion requires. Every farmer should take account of stock—of live stock, of tools, of crops in store, of work done that will tell upon next year's harvest, of the manure pile that will help next year's crops, and even of manure in the soil for which hard labor or cash has been expended, and which has yielded only partial returns. This is not the work of an hour or two, but there should be a general preparation for the inventory during the latter part of the month, so that with the first of January the new pages in the ledger can be opened with a tolerably clear idea of what is past and what belongs to 1887.

In care for business thrift we should not forget the social side of our lives and the happiness of those around us. This month we celebrate a festival of the Christian church, unsurpassed in interest. Let us heed the lesson that it teaches, that our highest happiness can only be attained by disinterested helpful activity for the good of others.

WINTER MANAGEMENT OF SHEEP.—It is best to keep sheep in a yard sheltered by their shed, with a warm southern exposure. Let them have their regular time for exercise as much as for their grain ration or their hay. If snow continues on the ground a long time, so that they have no inducement to take exercise in search of grass, turn them into a stubble from which the fodder has been hauled out and picked. They will rove up and down in this and pick a large amount of "thimbles" from the stubs, no matter how weather beaten they may be, which they would not eat if given to them in the yard. A sheep is grateful for the privilege of picking up a portion of his living in his own way, nibbling about in all kinds of hidden nooks with his nimble prehensile lips; and even after they have picked the stubs over twenty times, it will pay to turn them in again simply for the sake of the exercise. The great use of the system of yarding is that it allows the master to regulate the time and amount of exercise, and also secures more effectual alimentation.

Don't "slash around" the wood lot like a besom of destruction, but cull out carefully the trees that have completed their growth, and all those that for any reason are not likely to grow into future usefulness. And even of these, save out any parts that may serve a useful purpose. A large tough "butt" can be sawn into valuable planks, a rough one split into posts, and a small one split and seasoned for neck yokes, swingle trees, and harrow stuff. Think, even while cutting wood.

Most does not keep pace with the population. And we are short in wool every year about 80 000,000 pounds.

A simple and infallible remedy for rats is to keep a cat that has been castrated. They grow robust and ferocious.

Sore Eyes

The eyes are always in sympathy with the body, and afford an excellent index of its condition. When the eyes become weak, and the lids inflamed and sore, it is an evidence that the system has become disordered by Scrofula, for which Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best known remedy.

Scrofula, which produced a painful inflammation in my eyes, caused me much suffering for a number of years. By the advice of a physician I commenced taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. After using this medicine a short time I was completely

Cured

My eyes are now in a splendid condition, and I am as well and strong as ever.—Mrs. William Gage, Concord, N. H.

For a number of years I was troubled with a humor in my eyes, and was unable to obtain any relief until I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine has effected a complete cure, and I believe it to be the best of blood purifiers.—C. E. Upton, Nashua, N. H.

From childhood, and until within a few months, I have been afflicted with Weak and Sore Eyes. I have used for these complaints, with beneficial results, Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and consider it a great blood purifier.—Mrs. C. Phillips, Glover, Vt.

I suffered for a year with inflammation in my left eye. Three ulcers formed on the ball, depriving me of sight, and causing great pain. After trying many other remedies, to no purpose, I was finally induced to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, three bottles of this medicine, have been entirely cured. My sight has been restored, and there is no sign of inflammation, sore, or ulcer in my eye.—Kendal T. Bowen, Sugar Tree Ridge, Ohio.

By Taking

My daughter, ten years old, was afflicted with Scrofulous Sore Eyes. During the last two years she never saw light of any kind. Physicians of the highest standing exerted their skill, but with no permanent success. On the recommendation of a friend I purchased a bottle of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which my daughter commenced taking. Before she had used the third bottle her sight was restored, and she can now look steadily at a brilliant light without pain. Her cure is complete.—W. E. Sutherland, Evangelist, Shelby City, Ky.
