fourp. tente : Case, parde, of Menford, Ont., tes s arounch and liver, which and Bitters effectually cure l, her tried remedics had fail-

Cu ed, health and sweet ce 50 cents. Nasal injector ele by J. Wilson, Druggist.

ATURE'S REMEDY ATURE'S REMEDY
f success of Dr. Chase's Liver Cure is the rests solely with the fact that it is omnature's well-known liver regulators.
DANDELION, combined with manile roots, barks and herbs, having is on the Kidneys, Stomach, Bowels am500,000 SOLD million of Dr. Chase's Recipe Book Canada alone. We want every mane:
tild who is troubled with Liver Comits excellent remedy.

THING NEW. GIVEN AWAY FREE Islied New. Metter Sevent Page.

de every bottle of Dr. Chase's Liver CunHousehold Medical Guide and Recips), containing over soo useful recipesmedical men and druggists as invaluaten times the price of the medicine.

B CATARRE GURE. A safe and positivety of cents.

KIDNEY AND LIVER PILLS, 95 cts. per box LD BY ALL DEALERS AMES WILSON GODERICE.

iers Attention rsigned has a Choice Sclection of wing varieties:—White Duchess, Isike, Trefoil, Pea Vine and Rea nothy, Lawn and all varieties of able for permanent pasture, Oats, a, Barley, Fye, Beans, Buchwheat, and Flaz; also Fied and Garden I years growth—true to name, oriment of Flour and Feed, orated Union Churn-the best in ment of Choice. Fresh Teas, con-llack, Green and Japans—whole-ail.

EEDS

R. PRICE, to Block, East street, Goderic's.

S'MNU

KEY TO HEALTH.

all the clogged avenues of the Kidneys and Liver, carry-lually without weakening the lithe impurities and foul the secretions; at the same recting Acidity of the curing Biliousness, Dys. Headaches, Dissiness, n, Constipation, Dryness in, Dropsy, Dimness of Jaumdice, Salt Rheum, s, Scrofula, Fluttering of t, Nervousness, and Genlity; all these and many lar Complaints yield to the fluence of BURDOCK SITTERS.

N & Co., Proprietors, Toronto. 1825

DERTOH JOLEN MILLS.

Growers of the Surrounding y: say that we are prepared to take exchange for Goods, or work it ny of the following articles, viz
—White, Grey or Horse.
—Grey or Check.
weeds or Full Cloths, or Hoavy

or Heavy.

-White, Grey, Colored,
, Plain or Twill. Broad or Narrow.
Yarn — White, Grey,
ad or in Colors.

arps made to order. L CARDING. s for this work cannot be survill endeavor in most cases to do brought in, if required.

ning and Reeling, or Spinning aree or fine, hard or soft twist, position to do all kinds of cus tally done in a full set custom fill guarantee to do for you fully little better than any in our t'ully solicited. McCANN JUST IN TIME.

BY ADELINE SERGEANT. AUTHOR OF "JACOBI'S WIFE," "UNDER FALSE PRETENCES," &c.

CHAPTER XVIII. (Continued.)

MAGGIE LOGAN. no breathe a word? Ye'll promise?"

"I'd better tell ye, maybe," said Magherse f, "and then ye'll understand. Granny, ye mind the time when Auntie Bell an' me weut to Glenbervie. Auntie Bell was a nurse then, ye'll mind, an' she was sent frae the hospital to tend an in Giaskie, su' the grandson was in jail, purpose in the character of his cousin-The auld man get a stroke when he heard want which he had never observed beo't. He was ill in the hotel for a day or fore. Bertie was as lovable as ever, but twa, an' when he was ta'en awa' to his Anthony could not help thinking that at ain hame, Auntie Bell gaed wi' 'm." "Whar's a' this to do wi't?" inquired Perhaps, however, Anthony judged old Mrs. Logan.

sent up for me to gae an' help her. She by Lord Morven's dismissal of his suit errands for me to dae."

some hing wrang. I speered at her mony the habit of treating Bertie in a protecta time what gaed on at Glenbervie, but ing, elderly-brotherly kind of way, which she wadna say. She cam' awa' at the had its charm for the young man, alauld laird's death no a penny the rich- though he did not quite understand it.

"She an' the laird's dochter, Mrs. Bell. No but what I did it weel eneuch. The laird never suspeckit a wee cratur a novelty at least, Bertie bore it with wi' hair lite gowd and cheeks like roscs, great good humor. as he used to say. An' it cam' to this, that he hid a box fu' of gowd an' jewels Douglas nor Auntie Bell could find it, will gave to his elder grandson the whole an' I l'ent o't a' the time."

said the old woman.

"No me." "Nor Mrs. Douglas ?"

"Na." "Then-ye'll hae the box beside ye?" said Mrs. Logan, in a voice of suppress-

"No, I've no the box." Maggie paused for a few moments, as if she were reluctant to go on with the tale. "I daurna say a word. Th' auld laird cursed me if I said onything to ony leevin' sowl, an' I keep my word-until-until-" "Until what ?"

murmured Maggie, with an irrepressible sob. "An' hoo could I say him nay?"

woman. "A secret that wad ha' made with her some day." yer fortune? Ye fule!" The contempt of her tone could not be put into words.

36

everything, an' I thocht it nae hairm. What for should he no hear o' the laird's box as for it to lie by unknown an' unthocht o'-but hairm has come o't, the warst hairm o' a', wae's me fer't." And Maggie burst into tears and hid her face murely to the ground. Her features in her hands.

asked her grandmother hungrily. "A if they were carved in wood. boxfu'?"

"There was papers," said Maggie, wearily. "An' I think-though I never thocht siccan a like thing at the timethat it was the papers mair nor the gowd an' jewels that Mistress Douglas wanted to get a grip o'; and Gerald thocht sae too. He kenned the family an' a' the ins an' oots o't, an' he wad hae likit weel to see Glenbervie gae to the auld laird's eldest grandson, ane Anthony Lockhart, instead o' the young Mr. Douglas that has it the noo. He said semething that I could not richtly understand about a he was a laddie, an' he wad be fine an' as his way was. 'Goodbye, Maggie,' side of the house. says he, 'maybe I'll come back a rich man and maybe no, but rich or pair I'll his first attack, for instance?" lo'e ye till I dee-you an' the bairnie.'

o' Gerald." There was a long silence, broken at last by Mrs. Logan's quivering voice.

tae may terms for yoursel' an' yere bon-think so. For the box, with its contents pul' nole or twa.

CHAPTER XIX. A WARNING.

Bertie was convalescent. He was able to sit up for a portion of each day-to "If I tell ye," she said at last, "ye'll lie on a broad, old-fashioned soft in his bedroom and look out at the view of reddening woods and purpling heather in the distance-even to be moved into his gie, as if still arguing the matter with sitting-room on the same floor and to see his factor and his lawyer on business matters. But there was a great weakness and languor about him still. It seemed to Anthony sometimes as if a slight weakening of mental energy and will auld genrleman that lived down Stirlin' have followed upon the loss of physical strength; he could not tell how or why it was, but he thought biaself conscious "He'd been looking for his grandson of some want of resolution and steady times he was a little week.

him harshly. In Bertie's place he would "Wair a bit an' ve'll hear. Auntie Bell certainly not have been as easily depresshadra ocen there owre lang when she el and disheartened as Bertie had been wanted a lassie to rin errands, she said. but then Anthony was made of steruer I went the nez' day, but she had queer stuff than his cousin, and had been moulded by adverse circumstances into a "I mind, I mind. I thocht there was very different character. He grew into Anthony took to himself, almost unconsciously, a certain amount of authority. Douglas," said Maggie, "wanted me to and, as if to counterbalance it, a certain spy on the auld man's doings-me, a wee amount of responsibility. He made it bit lassie o' twal' year auld. It wasna fit his business to see that Bertie did the wark for me, as I hae telt my Auntie right and the sensible thing on every occasion. And, while this treatment was

It came perhaps from the possession of the paper which Beatrice had placed in an' notes in a place whaur neither Mrs. Anthony's hands. Old John Leckhart's of the Glenbervie estate; leaving to Ber-An' ye never telt yere Auntie Bell !" tie only a small income, of which Anthony himself, in conjunction with Lord Morven, was to be trustee. It was an extraordinary will, considering the little that Mr. Lockhart knew of Anthony, and Anthony himself was fully alive to its strangeness. He tried to learn everything possible concerning the old laird. and heard some queer stories about his oddities, his freaks of obstinacy and wil-

"It looks to me sometimes as if there were a streak of something more than eccentricity in the old man," said Anthony to himself. "As if his mind had "Until Gerald garred me tell him," been disordered by some shock, or weakened by grief and anxiety. But I don't hear anybody giving this explanation. 'Ye mean that ye keepit the secret By the by, Mrs. Pirie, our landlady, thae twal' year an' mair?" said the old said that she knew him. I'll have a talk

The opportunity soon occurred. Anthony met her as he was walking through the lower passage of the house on his "I wish I had kept it langer," said way to the door, and she stopped him Maggie passionately. "He said he would with a question about some of Bertie's punish me if I tauld; an' see what has requirements. It was easy for him to happened! Gerald is deid-deid, an' a' follow her into her own little sittingthrough me. He tauld me to tell him room, and to say with an excellent agsumption of carelessness:

"You nursed my grandfather through hiding-place—he might as weel hae the his last illness, did you not, Mrs. Pirie ?"

"Yes, fair." Mrs Pirie lifted her eyes to his face and then dropped them dewere remarkably expressionless; Antho-"Was it a' gowd an' jewe's, Maggie?" ny said to himself that they looked as

"Was it a long illness?" "A maitter o' three months, sir, or thereaboot. I canna exactly mind.' "Was he conscious-and sensible-the whole time?" said Anthony. Mrs Pirie looked at him "Whiles," she said significantly, and she held her tongue.

"Whiles," repeated Anthony. "He varied from time to time then?" "Ay, sir."

"He could not walk from room to room, 1 suppose, during the last few weeks of his illness?" Anthony was wrang that he had done to Anthony when wondering where that tin box from which the will had dropped out could have pleased if he could gie Anthony back been concealed so long. He had exhis ain. He telt me mair than that, an' amined the room in which it had been he grew sair thochtfu' an' troubled like ; found, but the fire had worked its way then at last he borrowed Dauvid Baird's so well amongst the bookshelves and the claes an' set off without telliu' me pre- disjointed masonry that no trace of the cisely what he was ga'en to dae. But I opening in the panelled wall was discovkenned-though I willna say a' that I erable. And he knew that Mr Lockken. He went aff wi' a lauch an' a jest hart's bedroom was situated on the other

"Did he never get into his study after Mrs Pirie deliberated, She saw-or An' that was the last I'll ever see or hear fancied she saw-that Anthony had got some inkling of the way in which the old days of his life, and she wondered how "I'll len' ye the twal' pun, Maggie," much or how little she had better let him she said in unrevally amiable tones. "An' know. Would he pay her anything for trice, after a moment's reflection. ye shall hae mair gin ye require it. Yere the story of Mr Lockhart's vain repent-Auntie Bell's neo leevin' at Glenbervie ance? Probably not. And the missing soun, an' she'll be glad to help ye. Ance box must have been destroyed in the at Glenbervie, ye'll hae a guid chance fire? It was natural that she should ny baira wi Lord Morven-forby the of money and jewels, which Anthony por itsel', which ye'll maybe find whaur had committed to the police officer's tellio". But the chance is worth a guid at the local Bank, and had passed without particular notice as one of the few valuable possessions which had fortuunisty escaped the fames. Mrs Pirie, in common with the general public, > on the change of its preservation. "I wad scarcely like to say, sir," she tas' unlice o' thae things."

> "Of course," said Authory, "Ah. well, it doesn't signify. Thank you,

M. Pirie looked after him with a time.' z'ed expression as he strode away. He's a deep aue," was ber conclusion. He's you his ain pleas an' his ain devia. A ' he'll never come to want. Mr erly. Bertie for money, wi' his bonny eyes an' ir. see like be father efore be married high, he had heard o' Maggie," Meanwhile Anthony had gone out for good of his tenants, the good of the ment the aha plock was gone, and nothwell, and was making his way through country at large, or he should not have ing but innocent and benevolent intera wood which extended for so ne dis- it at all. New I am willing to wait. I est beamed from his soft blue eyes. lance on each bank of the river outside don't believe in turning my cousin out be area. In this wood he suddenly for the sake of my own rights. I don't augh, sight of a women's figure a nought care to oar landed property, and I have he was. He s apped short, and re- no fancy to settle down in the country ; no facey to settle down in the country: can get immediate relief from internal garded it incently. For a moment he but if Bertie were to prove himself a bad or external pain by the use of Polson's could headly believe the reatinous of his own eyes. A limb rickling burn as discovered by the marker, a bad hooderd—or if he merely his own eyes. A limb rickling burn used his wealth for his own pleasure and profit, as so many men do now a days—it just as recommended. Neuralgia, his feet; and there, just beyond it, should why, then, I think I should tell him to Bestice Estimont. She did not see mate room for me. I am not going to similar complaints disappear as if by him; she was leaving against a tree, sound by and see my money, my propholding a book in her hand, but her erry wasted when here are thousands of at druggists and country dealers. eyes were fixed on a bit of blue sky visi- starving men and sick children and the between the overhanging branches trodden down women in the country of the trees. She was dressed in black whom I could have helped if I had had -macroing for poor Gerald Rachven_ the mind." but the shawl that she had thrown round her grapeful shoulders was of her favourite coinson, and even in that moment of

Authors and a start of their subserview of the government, the whole broad is in full pursuit, calling him ill silent observation Authory could not A whory aughed. "I fove the prohe'p noticing how brightly the diamonds ple" he spid. "and I want them to lave don't they disprove his charges? It would be more effective than calling names.—

I love the pto.

Inames and throwing mud at him. Why don't they disprove his charges? It would be more effective than calling names.—

[Brockville Recorder.] liking to advance nor to retreat. It Christianicy."

seemed to him that her face was paler, almost of sadcess, which now distinguished it, and which used to be strange indeed to Beatrice's animated features. ly, "I mean to wait a few weeks or Something-perhaps the dog's -caused her to turn at last. Then she mont. He has an income." saw him. She changed her posture, let 'Bertie is kind hearted and gener the hand with the book in it fall to her ous," said Beatrice in a low voice. side, and smiled with a frank friendli- dou't think he will do anything to injure ness which made his heart leap -- he knew the people in his charge.' "Good morning, Mr. Lockhart," she said. "You have found out my favorite retreat. Is it not a pretty place? Take really don't know whether to think you care—the brook is between us. "May I come over ?"

"Certainly. Then you will get my point of view."

"Which things are an altegory," said Anthony, with a smile as he strode over the brook. He did not know whether be either," rejoined Beatrice with an anshe understood him : probably she could swering smile. nct understand all that was in his mind at that moment, for by the brook he was symbolising to himself the line of seperation which society drew between them. She offered him her hand with a look which told of some gladness at his two. We are going abroad." coming; and then they both stood silent -a silence which was full of a strange double conciousness a silence charged with suggestion, which neither of them cared influence you attributed to me." to break. Was it merely the knowledge that they shared the secret of Mr. Lockhart's will which gave them that feeling of standing alone and separate from all will tell Bertie what I say. We are would not produce that result? It was Beatrice who-woman-likeits thrall sooner than the more massive the doctor has ordered her away." naturn of the man was apt to do, She turned a little towards him as she spoke ' How is Bertie ?' she asked. "He is growing stronger. But his illness has been serious:" "Do you think that his health is gen- of his yoice. erally delicate ?" said Beatrice, with a resolute plunge into prosaic detail, which yet she felt herself unaccountably anxious to set aside. "Not usually. He has had a great illness afterwards, then the excitement illness afterwards, then the excitement of coming home, the burning of his Dr Airlie. He is a man that would heshouse, and Lord Morven's rejection of man's mind has worked during the last his proposal—it has all tended to pull him down ."

"You speak of his house," said Bea "Yes. Why not?"

"It is-not his."

"Possession is nine points of law,

"And it is always to remain in Bertie's

Anthony was silent for a moment. under his foot with some impatience.

ownership or non-ownership of Glenber- became a little agitated as he spoke—"a vie effect Lord Moryen's decision with case—in which that influence was foundknew no bing of it, and dated not count respect to Lady Lilias Ruthven's mar- ed upon-a crime."

"I do not know. I suppose that it are we'red at las., with caution. "I have would—to some extent. Morven would instance," said Beatrice, with some nursed are mony folk that I diona mind. not be any the more likely to give his haughtines. Missess Douglas, she wad hee been the consent to the marriage if poor Bertie person to tell ye, but she's died, puir was not even the laird of Glenbervie. body, en' Mc Bertie was ower young to But that consideration ought not to I wanted you to understand that Dr. weigh with you."

"It does weigh with me- to some extent, as you say," rejoined Anthony with ent." Mrs Pirie.' And then he dismissed the a smile. "But I have another reason subject from his mind as an utterry un- for delaying my decision. After all, I Beatrice in a doubtful tone. But Anhave known Bertie for a very short thony returned no answer. His eyes

Beatrice listened and watched him eag-

"Yes?" she said at last.

"I know I may trust you," said Anvi' Miss Janes an' used to come aboot thony, with deliberation. "I know that our place when I was a lassie. Ay, Mr I may tell you what I would not tell any. brought them face to face with the very Bartie's use nair live his moitier that a body else. You will not betray me. while's like a bank, I'd gae through a Well, I hold what are called odd views Dr Airlie was also taking his walks nuckie pain and sorrow to keep Mr about property. I think no man has a abroad, and had come-by accident or Berie in his air. I wish D. Airlie and right to it who cannot use it rightly. I design?—to the spot which Miss Essilhappen this gait the day; I'm just sea. should take away without a grain of mont loved to frequent. He glanced ryin' to line a crack wi' bim about a' compunction every acre of land from the quickly from one to the other; his face lese things. An' be tell me that he man who sees in it nothing but a means of amusement. He should use it for the pression as he did so; but in one mo-

"But you are not a Socialist, are thinner than it had been when he saw spice of he self, with a view of life and it does not always cure. Esquire it last; but then he had not often seen it bearing that expression of thought, that had ever been presented to her bedies and malarial fever. After that

A great deerhound was croaching at her monits before I decide. Even if I were | Cora (chewing on her last caramel)low howl when Anthony moved his hand him penalless, you know, Miss Essil-

'So much the better. That will relieve me of a great responsibility." "Mr. Lockhart," said Beatrice, "I very generous or-"Or a great hypocrite ?" said Anthony only trying to be just."

"And that is a harder matter than to She began to walk slowly through the wood, and Anthony walked at her side.

Presently she spoke again. "I must tell you what our movements are likely to be during the next week or "Indeed? Bertie will be sorry. "Lilias is sorry too. It is Morven's wish-not ours. You see I have not the "I am sure of your good will-your good wishes at any rate." "Yes, you may be sure of that. You the world? Surely so trivial a cause going to Switzerland for change of air and scene. My cousin Lilias has not been well; she has grieved over this sepbroke the silence, growing restless under aration-and over Gerald's death-and

> "Dr. Airlie ?" "Yes."

"Ah. I thought as much." "Do you not like Dr. Airlie, Mr Lockhart?" said Beatrice, struck by the tone

"I do not trust him. I have reason to Wall Tints, dislike and distrust. 1 thought at one time, Miss Essilmont, that I could tell you the whole story, but my lips are Hanging Lamps, "Not usually. He has had a great deal to try it—his wound in India, his could tell you a story that would give itate at nothing to further his own ends.

> "I have sometimes thought so," said Beatrice, rather reluctantly, "but I have never found him personally anything but kind and agreeable. He has great influence over Lord Morven. It seems especially great just now."

"Yes. And he had great influence over Gerald Ruthven. Miss Essilmont. I would not for the world say anything Gerald Ruthven left it. There's nae charge, had been placed lock and key He looked down, and crushed the fern to disturb your confidence unnecessarily. but believe me, Dr Airlie's influence "Before I answer you," he said, "let not always an influence for good. I me ask you one question. Would the have known a case"—Anthony's voice

> "Mr Lockhart? It could not at any rate be founded upon wrong-doing in this

"I did not mean to say so," replied Anthony more humbly than usual: "but Airlie would use any means that fell within his power-good, bad, or indiffer-

"Morven trusts him implicitly," said were fixed upon the path-way he was He stopped suddenly and looked treading. There was a frown of peraway, as if considering what to say next. plexity upon his brow. How much or how little ought he to tell Beatrice Essilmont of the story that would show Dr

Airlie in his true colors ! And while he hesitated the opportunity was lost. A turn in the pathway man of whom they had been speaking wore a keen and even a suspicious ex-

(CONTINUED)

What the Ese? Why suffer a single moment, when you toothache, cramps, headache, and boiles 25 cents, Test boiles 10 cents,

Because the Charges Are Well Founded.

Mr. Cameron, M.P., having exposed the vile practices of so many of the Tory M. P.'s in grabbing timber limits, coal

She was silent-impressed, almost is Quicice is the popular cure for chill fever, and various other remedies had fai "So, you see," he continued cheerful- five bottles of Burdock Block Bitters

What makes you always twirl your can Mr. Merritt? Little Johnny (who Little Johnny (who i always around) - Because he ain't get any

A Fair Proposition.

There could be no offer mo o fair than that of the proprietors of Hagyard's Yellow Oil, who have long offered to refund every cent expended for that remedy, if it fails to give satisfaction on fair

In the history of medicines no prepa ration has received such universal com mendation, for the alleviation it affords and the permanent cure it effects in kidwith one of his rare laughs. "I don't think I am either one or the other. I am only trying to be just."

and diseases as Dr. Van Buren's Kianeys Cure. Its action in these distressing complaints is simply wonderful. Sold

SOME

SOLD CHEAP SAUNDERS

VARIETY STORE : Wall Paper, Decorations. Carpet Lining

Furnishings

The Cheapest House UNDER THE SUN West-st., next door to the Post Office.

Goderich, April 1st, 1886.

3 Sleepless Nights, made miserable by that terrible cough. Shiloh's Cure is the remedy for you. For sale by J. Wilson, Druggist.

BEWARE

OF WORTHLESS IMITATIONS goods, corded with jute, hemp, etc., offered and sold as Coraline by some unprincipled merchants trading on the reputation of our genuine. Caraline, we warn the ladies against such imposition by drawing their attention to the necessity of seeing that the

CROMPTON CORSET CO."

L. McINTOSH Next door to Rhynas' Ding Store, leeps constantly adding to his well-selected stock, choice

Fresh Groceries,

TEAS AND SUGARS A SPECIALTY.

In returning thanks to my customers for their patrouage, I would also invite any others wao will, to call and inspect my stock.

C. L. McINTOSH. South-West side of the Square Goderich, Web. 18th, 1836.

1886. SEEDS

The Largest Stock in Town.

CLOVERS.-Red, Large Late, Alsike, White, Lucerne, GRASSES.—Timothy Seed, Orchard Grass,
Kentucky Blue, Red Top, Lawn Grass, Kunngarian and Millet, Tares.
BEANS.—White, Golden Wax, Butter Beans.
OATS.—White Australian, Black Tartarian, Standard.
WHEAT.—Buckwheat, Odeswa, Fife.
CORN.—Canada Yellow, Early Minnesota,
Stowell's Evergraen Horse Tooth

CORN.—Canada Yellow, Early Minnesota, Stowell's Evergreen, Horse Tooth.
PEAS.—Field Peas, White Marrowfat, and Black Eyed, etc., Daniel O'Rourke's, McLean's Little Gem, etc.
FLAX SEED.—Flax Seed, Linseed Meal, Ground, Oil Cake.
MANGOLDS.—Mammoth Long Red, and all other kinds.
TUENIPS.—Swede, and an other popular varieties.

varieties. White Belgian, Red Field Intermediate, and all kinds of garden carrots.
Susflower Seeds, and all kinds of Field and Garden Seeds, carefully selected from the best houses. sunnowed the seeds, carefully selected from the seeds of the seeds of

Hamilton Street, Goderich, Goderich, Feb. 25th. 1885. 2026-4m F. JORDAN MEDICALHALL

GODERICH.

Has on hand a full stock of the following Paris Green,

London Purple Insect Powder

Hellebore. Guaranteed Fresh and Pure, and at Lowest

Fresh Bottled Lime Juice. Assorted Sizes.

Agent for the Toronto Mucilage Manufactur-Mucilage, Liquid Glue, &c

DR. JUG'S Medicine and Pills

PRESERVE YOUR SIGHT

FRANK LAZARUS (Late of the firm of Lazarus & Morris)

Renowned Spectacles and Eye Classe

These Spectacles and Eye Glasses have been used for the past 35 years, and given in every instance unbounded satisfaction. They are THE BEST IN THE WORLD. They never tire, and last many years without change.

—FOR SALE BY— Yates & Acheson.

HARDWARE MERCHANTS, GODERICH. FRANK LAZARUS, MANUFACTURE

28 Maryland Road, Harrow Road, LONDON, ENGLAND (Late Lasarus & Morris, Hartford, Conn.) No connection with any other firm in the Dominion of Canada,

Jan. 28th, 1885,