Serious Defect in the Municipal Bill

In the Council the other day Hon. John Harris pointed out a serious defect in the Municipal Bill now before the Legislature. Although the bill calls upon householders to connect their houses with street sewerage and put in water, Mr. Harris pointed out that there were a very large number of streets which had neither water nor sewerage in them, and that it was futile to borrow money to assist the poorer householder to do this when there was no water in their streets. He pointed out that the new water supply, provided four years ago, had not been distributed to the extent contemplated in the scheme, with the result outlined above. Further, that no provision was made in its present bill for the distribution of water along the streets which needed it, and that it was absolutely necessary to provide the means of putting water in streets before borrowing to put it in houses. He suggested that the monies to be borrowed should be differently allocated to provide the street water services which were lacking. Other defects in the present water services were also pointed out. The bill was sent to a Select Committee, and no doubt the Government and City Council will see the advisability of amendments such as Mr. Harris suggests. It is a pity citizens ever lost the experienced services of the Hon. J. Harris in the City Council.

Two Boats and Crews Adrift.

Last night Minister of Fisheries Piccott had a wire from Magistrate Miffen, Greenspond, saying that two boats and crews belonging to that place were caught in the slob, ice which was continually running around them. He asked that the Bloodhound or Iceland, then at Pool's Island, might be sent to the rescue, and asked the Minister to get the consent of the owners of the ships to look for them. It could be seen from this that the men were in a dangerous predicament and that immediate action should be taken to effect a rescue. The owners agreed to send the Iceland, and the next wire said that the ship was three miles off Sound Rocks. By the flash of the guns they imagined the men were seaward. At 12.30 this morning another wire was received saying that the ship had run into the harbor, blew her whistle and later bore off again. Another wire was received saying that the two crews had been picked up by the Iceland and brought into Pond. The men must have been out looking for ice-landmarks. They were in great danger for the boats could not be hauled over the slob, and if pushed through the planks would likely be chafed so badly that the boats would sink.

POLICE COURT NEWS.

To-day before Judge Knight three drunks were let go.
One Squires, of Broad Cove, charged with assaulting Irene Hooker, as he was going to the sealfishery deposited $30 until he returns to stand his trial.

Annie Mercer summoned Power for assault on the 6th inst. The girl alleged that while skating on Mundy Pond Power threw her heavily to the ice, hurting her severely. Mrs. Mercer, the girl's mother, also summoned Power for assault on the same date. She alleged that she went down to a house near the pond to ask Power why he injured the child and he hit her. Evidence which Power produced showed, however, that the woman had assaulted him, and that he did not lay a hand on her. The case was dismissed. Inspector General Sullivan in each case prosecuted. Mr. Frank Morris defended.

Durango Arrived.

The S. S. Durango, Capt. Chambers, arrived here this morning after a run of 14 days from Liverpool. From the start of the voyage the vessel had rough weather with heavy westerly winds mostly, and at times a mountainous sea; the weather was also cold and snow storms were encountered, while a few days ago the ship met a field of heavy Arctic ice. To run clear of it the vessel had to steam round to the Virgin Rocks, and after that made a good run to port. She brought one passenger, Mr. Ferguson, 800 tons cargo and some mail, and has 600 tons in transit for Halifax. She is a ship of heavy Arctic ice, and stayed away in the S. Durango some time ago, was brought back this trip and landed here. He says he wants to be a sailor and the officers on board say that he is a good chap and that he would make a fine mariner.

London, March 2.—King Edward yesterday made plea for universal peace—one of the strongest declarations of its kind delivered by an European monarch since Nicholas of Russia proposed his Hague peace plan. The King's words are regarded as of especial interest in view of the present German war scare.

It was when he received the Archbishops of Canterbury and York members of the church convocations this afternoon that he took occasion in replying to the York convocations address to say, among other things: "The concord of Christendom is unbroken and rarely in history has the idea of war seemed so repulsive or the desire for peace been more widely cherished throughout my empire."

His Excellency visited all parts of the ship including the men's quarters, saw for himself what conditions were and at once made himself popular with the crew. From the bridge he made an encouraging speech to the men lined up on the deck, and when leaving the ship His Excellency and Miss Dean were cheered time and again.

Motor-Bus Over a Cliff

Fatal Sequel to a Midnight Road Race.

A race between two motor-omnibuses on the high road near Compostella last night resulted in one omnibus being flung over a forty-foot cliff into a river. Two passengers were killed and five others seriously wounded.

A fete was held at Compostella yesterday which was attended by the peasants from all the neighbouring villages. Many motor-omnibuses and motor-cars were used to convey the excursionists to and from their homes.

When the merry-makers left Compostella to return home shortly after midnight some of the motor-cars engaged in races. An exciting contest took place between two omnibuses, each containing fourteen persons, and for several miles the vehicles raced side by side at top speed.

Finally, while descending a steep hill, one of the omnibuses swerved and dashed into the other, with the result that the second omnibus was diverted from the road. Before the driver could check its speed, it dashed over a rocky cliff, into the river forty feet below.

The cliff was so steep that the other excursionists could not go to the assistance of their unfortunate companions until ropes and ladders had been brought from Compostella. After thirty minutes' delay, rescue parties were lowered over the cliffs. They found the survivors of the disaster clinging to the partially submerged omnibus.

Two men had been instantly killed, while all the other occupants of the omnibus were injured, three men and two women being unconscious. They were kept afloat by their friends. —Lisbon, Wednesday, Feb. 23.
