OTHER naturally thinks of the possibilities of the fabric shrinking in the wash. It is therefore a relief to her to know that the fabric will not shrink or lose its charm if Lux is used for its cleansing.

Durability, charm of colour, quality of texture, the freshness of newness—these re preserved to all good fabrics washed with Lux. A packet of Lux-a bowl of warm water-and dainty hands can cleanse delightful fabrics in a delightfully easy manner.

The beautiful pure Lux flakes are whisked into a creamy, bubbly lather in an instant. Gently squeeze this cleansing foam through and through the soiled texture - then rinse in clean water and hang to dry. Lux cannot harm a silken thread. It coaxes rather than forces the dirt from

A National Loss.

A great national loss is sustained the suspension of twenty-five per ent. of the newspapers of Canada. he weekly papers in the towns of ne Dominions have rendered splenid service to the state in the past, and were capable of continuing that service until the mounting cost of production made it impossible for them to go on. In the past they formed public opinion free from the influence of big business, and in conformity with the convictions of the editors. The country needs just that kind of independent advocacy of political principles. Where amalgamations have taken place—and in scores of cases that has been the resultthe paper that remains becomes neutral. The most successful publisher under such circumstances is the one who can follow closely the example of the Laodiceans, who were neither hot nor cold. If the editor has strong views on any public question of a controversial character he cannot express them without offending one half of his subscribers. This, he fears, means a loss of patronage that his treasury cannot meet. Consequently the virility of the provincial press is seriously impaired, and the people ofced back upon a few big papers, published in populous centres.

It all tends to a semi-monopoly of the press, a loss of independent, and practical impossibility to have public questions discussed from the local standpoint. Nothing is more necessary in a democracy like Canada than free, untrammelled press. But unfortunately as time passes the hobbies on the press become more obvious and restricting. A newspaper has come to be regarded as a commercial enterprise solely. A publisher must, of course, make enough money to pay his accts or go out of business. But an editor who is compelled to keep one eye on the till has only half his sight to give for public servivce. And unless a newspaper is giving such service it erely cumbers the ground. It seems too much to expect that rices of paper, postage and wages will ever fall to the point that will enable suspended publications to resume. In the general interest that s unfortunate.-The Sentinel.

> There is no man outside the United States who knows America better than Lord Bryce, who was our Ambassador in that country for six years. All his life he has been a student of America, and his work, "The American Commonwealth,' is known all over the civilized world.

Credited with the ability to speak dozen languages, Lord Bryce entered Parliament forty years ago, and was once described by the Speaker as "a walking encyclopaedia." Mountain-climbing was always his favourite hobby, and he was the first Englishman to climb Mount Ararat. He is alert and brisk, and it was once said of him that "he walked down Whitehall at the pace of a man who has left a roll of bank notes in the oking-room of his hotel."
