

A SURE RELIEF FOR WOMEN'S DISORDERS

10 DAYS' TREATMENT FREE

Orange Lily is a certain relief for all disorders of women. It is applied locally and is absorbed into the suffering tissue. The dead waste matter in the congested region is expelled, giving immediate mental and physical relief; the blood vessels and nerves are toned and strengthened; and the circulation is rendered normal. As this treatment is based on strictly scientific principles, and acts on the actual location of the disease, it cannot help but do good in all forms of female troubles, including delayed and painful menstruation, leucorrhoea, falling of the womb, etc. Price $2.00 per box, which is sufficient for one month's treatment. A free trial treatment, enough for 10 days, worth 75c, will be sent free to any suffering woman who will send me her address. Enclose three stamps and address: Mrs. Lydia W. Ladd, Windsor, Ont.

THE TRAGEDY OF GOLF.

What is fame and what is fortune, what are honors, tell me, pray, if you cannot get your wrists in and your body's bound to sway? What are all men's feeble praises for the brilliant things you do if you haven't any rhythm and you lack a follow through?

What is glory, what is money though you have it mountain piled, What are pomp and high position if your drives are always wild? What are all the things men value from the cradle to the grave if your left arm is a taylor and your shoulders won't behave?

What is worldly recognition, what is standing at the peak Of your chosen occupation, if you cannot play the creak? Where's the fun in being wealthy, where's the joy in being great if you've grown too fat to pivot and your shots are never straight?

Now happiness is something gold and silver cannot buy, Men have said it long before us, men will say it when we die, And how can man be happy with his money or his fame if he's doomed through his existence to a most indifferent game?

Fighting Fire Among Explosives.

On the night of April 14th, 1918, a fire broke out aboard the ammunition ship "Proton" at Port Said, and the Commander Walter Henry Calthrop, R. N., immediately proceeded to the scene, but the ship had already been abandoned by her crew and was ablaze in Nos. 1 and 2 holds. The forecastle was also alight and it was impossible to get down to the fore well deck owing to the heat. Knowing that the "Proton" had 24 tons of ammunition on Board Commander Calthrop decided to flood the ship, and for this purpose he obtained assistance and went down into the engine room and opened the sea inlet. He also tried to break the main sea valve cover, but was not successful, so he sent for a gunnery charge for the purpose of sinking the vessel, meantime warning all ships in the vicinity to get under way. He then returned to the "Proton," which was blazing fiercely forward, the sides being red hot as far aft as the bridge, and the bridge screen all alight. Boarding her with the first and second engineers they went below and tried to break the doors of the condenser with sledge hammers but found this impossible. By this time a picket boat had arrived with the gunnery charge, and it was decided that the ship should be sunk as soon as possible. The operation was accordingly carried out. Commander Calthrop displayed the utmost gallantry and disregard for his personal safety in making protracted efforts first to flood and then to sink the ship whilst exposed to continual risk of an explosion of the ammunition. For this service he was awarded the Albert Medal. His efforts undoubtedly prevented serious loss of life.

THE SLAYERS.

WALT MASON

The murderers, in countless scores, are loafing in a hundred jails, all hoping that the prison doors will open when their luck prevails. No doubt they think the law is rank that jails them, even for a time, for pulling off some playful prank like murder, or a kindred crime. In cosy cells the slayers sit; and all around them quiet vagans; rest-handed ladies calmly knit, and gory gents make horse-hair chairs. They loiter around in gilded ease, they labor not, and bear no yoke; they used to hang such birds as these long since, when justice was no joke. But now there's no such doom as that for those who butcher fellow-guys; the gloomy hangman's growing fat for lack of wholesome exercise. The murderers are borne to jail when first their crimes have made us stare, and there's some piffle, flat and stale, about the gallows or the chair. And then we turn our thoughts away, to other grafts, the coin we chase; and on the street, some pleasant day, we meet the killers face to face. They've been paroled or pardoned out, some witness flukes, some juror died; some enterprising legal scout has found a loophole, big and wide. And thus our modern justice runs where it's concerned with slayer or scoundrel; they're going now to purchase guns to kill some other delegates.
