LOADING A CARGO VESSEL REQUIRES GREAT SKILL.

Down through the great oblong hatchways, bales, boxes and bags are descending swiftly at the end of bright manila ropes.

They are ravenous, these "pit-mouths" of the modern cargo-steamer. They swallow all you have to give them, and are still ready for more.

The mixture of goods being poured into the ship is almost unbelieveable. Biscuit candles, cotton cloth, cartridges—you are relieved to see that they are not marked "safety," nails—there is no end to what general cargo may include.

Much that is coming aboard is a mystery, but the stevedores know at a glance what they are handling. The professional stevedore's knowledge of what is inside a package is perfectly amazing.

It is a feat to organise the loading of general cargo in a big vessel. The rule is that the loading must be done at four or five ports before the ship is ready to "her marks," and that the cargo will have to oe discharged at various places, makes the job a great deal more difficult.

The trim must be considered. A ship must not be too much down by the head or the stern, and the cargo must be so arranged that unloading can be done from every hatch without waste of time—for time is very precious in the world of ships.

Over the rail comes a motor car in a sling as big as a small house. Hoisted by the derrick, it swings above the hatch till it is over the hatchway. Two men, cleverly handling their powerful machinery, lower it gently. It disappears down the cavern into the hands of the gang waiting below to swing it into its appointed place. The whole operation takes just three and a half minutes.

"Smartly done, that," you say admiringly to the seafaring man beside you.

"All in the day's work," he says, with the air of one to whom jobs of this description are mere trifles.

Eczema On Hands For Two Years Cuticura Healed

"For about two years I suffered with eczema on my hands. It started with small scales and then turned to a rash and was very sore and red. It itched terribly at times and kept spreading until my fingers were covered with it. I could not put my hands in water nor do any work. I did not get much sleep at night on account of the irritation.

"I used other remedies without much success. I saw Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertised and sent for a free sample. After using it I purchased more and in a month's time I was completely healed." (Signed) Lawrence Chauvin, West Chazy, N. Y., Sept. 27, 1924.

The Originals in "Stepping Out"

World famous Originals (Dumbells) Quartette coming to Nickel. Bertram Langley, Thomas Dunn, Gus McKinnon and Jerry Brayford, appearing for the first time in St. John's the week of May 18th with Canada's world famous soldier entertainers, The Originals (formerly known as Dumbells.)

"Stepping Out" is the title of the brand new revue presented this season by the ever popular Originals, Canada's own soldier entertainers, the cast of which comprises many Original Dumbell favorites. Theatregoers from coast to coast who have witnessed performances of these clever artists before say the new show is unquestionably the best of all the soldier productions. It is one continuous scream of laughter throughout.

The "Boys" will be in St. John's the entire week of May 18th at the Nickel theatre with some smashing song hits, brilliant skits and sketches, and the usual merrymaking numbers so popular with Originals' shows. "The Love Trail" and "The Dancing Lesson" are two of Gene Pearson's big hits this season, while his latest gowns are dreams of the modiste's art, more beautiful and brilliant than ever. Gene Pearson is this year recognized as the greatest male soprano before the public. The leading comedian is the inimitable Bob Anderson, already an established star whose easy natural humour is a riot. It is a long time since Canadian audiences have seen a better exponent of humour, and also a long time since we have had one so versatile as John Willie Shufflebottom, and in the song numbers "With his toes turned up" and "That's another one gone," Bob is a scream. His appearance as an old woman telling about her departed husband simply stops the show with laughter. Another extremely popular member of the Originals Company is Lionel Broadway, the new juvenile.

The revue opens with a re-union of a number of ex-service men and swings along in the same snappy manner as all other Originals' shows. One part of the programme conveys a musical comedy while the last half is in the form of revue. Alan Murray's dancing; Leonard Young's portrayal of the dignified "Duchess"; the singing of the magnificent quartette; Norman Blume's characterization of the frolicsome curate; and Jimmy MacDonald's breezy funmaking, are all delightfully refreshing and new and old friends alike are assured of one rare treat of the season in "Stepping Out."

BUICK BEAUTY

When you ultimately own a Buick, you will appreciate its beauty even more than you do now.

Now, when you see one parked in front of some fine home or passing on the highway, you see only one of the many features which have made Buick the most widely owned of quality motor cars.

A Buick owner knows that the outward beauty of this famous motor car, pleasing as it is, is only the visible evidence of inner beauty and perfection.

He has an engine with an extra reserve of power, the famous Valve-in-Head. His car understands its steering wheel more readily than any car he has driven. The mechanical 4-wheel brakes stop it firmly and safely. No car is built more reliable, more staunch, or more sure of itself. Nor is there another that is serviced so carefully or so nationally.

There are more than a million of these Buick owners. There would not be, if Buick had not, through many years, produced motor cars of superior performance and uniform excellence. Buicks are beautiful in every sense in which the term "beauty" ever is used.
