Did They Bury a Dummy?

A Startling Story from New Brunswick, N. J.

Rumors that Defaulter Hill is Alive and in Good Health.

A Wax Figure Took His Place in a Coffin—His Defalcation Placed at $26,000.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Jan. 27.—A meeting of the stockholders of the Jamesburg Bank, whose cashier, T. Wilton Hill, has been declared an embezzler for a large amount by Bank Examiner Stone, broke up in the greatest disorder yesterday upon receipt of information, alleged to be reliable, that Hill is not dead, and that a wax figure was placed in the coffin which was believed to contain his body.

Some credence was placed in the story when the fact was recalled that no one but Hill's immediate family were present at the interment. A local physician had been called in when Hill was stricken with grip, and no one was admitted to the sick chamber. When Hill's death was announced but little time elapsed before the body was laid in the grave.

The rumor that Hill is still alive has been intensified by the report that he has been seen within the past five days on Fourteenth street, New York, in company with a woman whose name has been closely connected with his defalcation. As Hill's life was insured for $20,000 a few days before he was said to have died, the company's agent in this city was preparing to pay the claim. Now he has announced that this will not be done until satisfactory proof of the death is given.

The result of the allegations is that it has been decided to open the grave and ascertain whether it contains Hill's body or a dummy. The local lodge of the Royal Arcanum is doubly interested in this, as they allege that Hill committed suicide. If the coffin really holds Hill's body they may demand that an investigation be made to ascertain if he killed himself.

Bank Examiner Stone has excluded his investigation into Hill's accounts. He found that Hill had stolen $50,000 from the Jamesburg Bank. The stockholders are to be held liable for $15,000 over the amount realized from Hill's available assets. A vote taken by the stockholders on the question of the bank's continuance resulted in a tie.

Two-thirds of the stockholders have announced their intention of contesting any suits brought against them to recover the deficiency. It is not believed here that this effort on their part to save themselves from the fact has come to light that the bank officers had neglected to place Hill under bonds last year.

CHILI BACKS DOWN.

Her Reply to the Ultimatum of the United States Government.

The Right of Asylum Acknowledged—Arbitration Proposed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The Government has received a long answer from Minister Egan, conveying an offer on the part of the Chilean Government for the settlement of all existing difficulties with the United States. This dispatch confirms the statements made in the Associated Press despatch from Santiago, that Chile is prepared to withdraw the offensive note sent to the United States, to withdraw its request for the recall of Minister Egan and to submit the Baltimore affair to the arbitration of some neutral nation, or to submit the matter to the decision of the United States Supreme Court. There is reason to believe that the Chilean Government not only offers to withdraw the offensive note, but in addition offers to apologize for it. It also agrees to the position taken by the United States in regard to right of asylum and the safe conduct of refugees. Mr. Egan's dispatch was submitted to the Cabinet. It is understood that a difference of opinion was developed as to the propriety of accepting the offer without modification so far as it related to the submission of the question of Chile's liability for the attack on the sailors of the Baltimore to the arbitration of a neutral nation, or to the arbitration of the Supreme Court. Without reaching this decision, the meeting adjourned.

A Santiago telegram to the London Times says: In view of the disparity between the forces of the two powers, it would seem that Chili had no other resource than to make the sacrifice of dignity necessary to satisfy the more powerful nation.

VALPARAISO, Jan. 27.—Everything in Chili remains quiet, so far.

BLACKENED RUINS.

Destruction of the Metropolitan Opera House at Columbus—Other Conflagrations.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 27.—The fire that broke out yesterday in the large block of buildings at the northwest corner of Rich and High streets proved to be the most disastrous event experienced here. The entire block from Rich to Walnut and from High to Wall was gutted. The large brick building on the corner of Rich was entirely burned out and the Metropolitan Opera House was destroyed. Loss about $500,000; insurance about half that amount.

MEAFORD, Ont., Jan. 27.—Fire that started last night in Wilcox's shoe store—known as Andrew's block—destroyed the whole structure, including the City Hotel, a grocery store and barber shop, the telephone office and other places of business. Loss about $15,000; insurance on block, $7,000.

DRESDEN, Ont., Jan. 27.—Fire started early this morning in Mrs. Hazlett's millinery store and dwelling, and rapidly spread to the next building, owned and occupied by Mrs. Mooney, and occupied as a harness shop and dwelling. ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 27.—The extensive plant of Borne, Schrymser & Co., lubricating oil manufacturers at Elizabethport, was almost entirely destroyed by fire last night. Still after still exploded, and the blazing oil floated out on the surface of Staten Island Sound. The wharves along the full length of the frontage were consumed; also the cooper shop and the barreling, filter and pump house. Forty-five thousand new barrels, many thousands barrels of manufactured oil and six immense stoves were destroyed as well. The loss aggregated $200,000; only partially insured.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 27.—Fire was dispatched from the French Church of the Assumption on Hamilton street. The pastor's house was wrecked, and frame dwellings occupied by nine colored families were destroyed. Not a vestige of the church property was saved. The loss is about $30,000. The thermometer registered 4 below zero and a high wind was blowing, so that the firemen suffered intensely with the cold, some of them being literally encased in ice an inch thick, which had to be broken by their comrades so that they could walk.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 27.—A fire in a row of tenement houses on E. 9th street last night narrowly escaped resulting in an awful catastrophe. As it was, one boy was burned to death and two of the houses were destroyed. Many women and children were cut off by the flames and were taken from windows by the firemen.

CATARINO E. GARZA,

For Whose Capture President Diaz Offers $300,000.

A so-called bandit force variously estimated at from 40 to 2,000 men is dodging about Southern Texas trying to elude the pursuing United States troops, while on the Mexican side of the Rio Grande a body of soldiers are on the lookout to prevent the elusive Garza from recrossing the river. The Mexican authorities brand him as a bandit, but Garza himself assumes the title of a revolutionist. President Diaz is distrustful by the Clerical or Church party, who are said to be in sympathy with the "bandit" on that account.

Garza is about 40 years old, is tall, robust, and of fair complexion, light brown hair, and wears a heavy mustache. His eyes are brown, and over his right eye he has a scar. He speaks English, and is a good marksman. It is well known that he has never been gained without such information. We usually think that all Mexicans are small and dark, but this particular one is light and over six feet high. He has quite a record, and has "killed his man" several times. He was born in Matamoros, Mexico. He worked in a printing office in Matamoros, but went to Brownsville, Texas, while still a boy. He attended the public schools there, and later went to the University of Mexico.

After being graduated, he entered the Mexican army, but was dismissed for gross misconduct, and to escape further punishment fled the country, crossing the Rio Grande to Palo Pinto. In Rio Grande he shot and killed a political opponent. Two customs officials were also killed there, and Garza, together with a noted contrabandista, were thought to have committed the murders. At Laredo he became involved in a quarrel with certain followers of General Martinez, who was soon afterwards assassinated. About the same time he edited a newspaper, and was through which he vented his hatred for President Diaz and the organized Government of Mexico. He had also been a sewing machine agent, and was for a time connected with the Mexican consulate in St. Louis, Missouri.

It was a year ago that this revolution began. Last summer he collected a little band of political refugees, contrabandists, and other types of lawless men to be found near the border, and crossed the Rio Grande to begin a career of robbery and pillage. At first he was successful, and being doing so very well, he was defeated. He escaped capture and fled to Texas, where he was kept in hiding by his friends.

It is a mistake to suppose that his presence in Texas has been known by the United States officials, for he is "wanted" almost as much by the Federal authorities of that country as by those of Mexico.

Death of Archbishop Langavine.

FATHER POINT, Q. Jan. 27.—Archbishop Langavine died yesterday afternoon after an illness of only five hours' duration. The deceased prelate was aged 71 years. He was the first bishop of the Rimouski diocese and his life work was here enacted. Two years ago, after a long episcopate, he resigned his see, and was thereupon appointed Archbishop of Leontropolis in partibus infidelium, being succeeded as bishop of Rimouski by Bishop Blais. The archbishop was a firm temperance advocate and he was a distinguished educationist. He was a brother of Sir Hector.

The Famous Downing Street Cat Is Dead.

LONDON, Jan. 2.—The widely celebrated Downing street cat is dead, and that distinguished representative of the feline race is deemed worthy of an obituary notice in the morning newspapers of this city. The Downing street cat in the sentry box opposite the official residence of the Prime Minister, in Downing street, near St. James' Park. Nearly every Grenadier, Coldstream or Scots Guardsman in the service is said to have made the acquaintance of the cat while doing sentry duty at the spot referred to. The cat, according to tradition, was frequently noticed and fed by Mr. Gladstone, Lord Beaconsfield, William Henry Smith, Lord Salisbury and Sir Stafford Northcote. Her death was a tragic one. Two bull terriers worried her until life was extinct. It is proposed to give her a proper funeral and to erect a tablet to her memory.

The Fund for Evicted Tenants.

DUBLIN, Jan. 27.—John Dillon has written a protest against the attempts made by the landlords to prevent subscriptions being made to the fund for the benefit of evicted tenants. In Mr. Dillon's letter appears the past year's balance sheet of the fund. This shows that there was expended £45,220—the proceeds of Mr. Dillon's American tour and for his misdeeds. Mr. Dillon says that since August last the McCarthyites have furnished £11,456 to the fund, that sum being all the money received. There are, Mr. Dillon says, 7,500 persons who receive grants requiring the sum of £3,000 monthly. Giving to the lack of funds some of the grants have not been paid. He concludes with an appeal to the Parliaments to start a separate fund, and enter into friendly rivalry with the McCarthyites in relieving the tenants who have been evicted.

DEHORNING CASE CONTINUED.

Evidence for the Prosecution Completed and Defense Commenced.

Testimony of the Complainant and Wm. Hawkins, of Brownsville.

When court resumed in the dehorning case after dinner yesterday, Dr. Hutchinson was still in the box. Mr. Cameron read the views of the Agricultural Experimental Station of Wisconsin, that there were many economic reasons for dehorning cattle, to prevent injury, to prevent danger to human life and render shipping easier. He asked the witness if he would set his opinion against these.

Dr. Hutchinson—That question is very easily answered. The horns of Texas cattle are very different from those of some of the horns turn in and just about touch the frontal bone; they could do very little injury with such horns.

Q.—How can you tell that an animal is suffering? A.—One of the indications would be a rise in the pulse, but one cannot tell the amount of pain an animal is suffering. Some horses will stand up and endure an intense degree of pain. Some cows will drop their heads, others will show excitement, others will shake their heads and rub, and if the pain continues a length of time there will be a rise in the temperature of the animal.

Q.—Would it affect the quantity or quality of the milk if the pain only lasted a few days? A.—I could not say it would. The continued drooping of the head is a sure indication of sickness.

Q.—If the drooping does not continue there would be no sure sign of pain? A.—You cannot cut through sensory nerves without causing pain.

Q.—How would you tell if the quality of the milk deteriorated? A.—It would affect the proportion of butter fat in the milk.

Mr. Cameron—If the total loss is given at 4.62 per cent. per cow in six days? A.—That would be a loss of a pound a day for each cow.

Q.—If it shows the return of butter fat to the greater? A.—If the report says that we have a gain in butter fat as the result of dehorning in six days after—if the report says that the increase of butter fat comes from dehorning, it is the veriest nonsense. If that statement is made in the report it is a mile faster with his tail cut off.

Q.—What do you base your observations on? A.—Three cases came under my own experience. I served seven years on a farm, and my general experience in the city.

Witness said that there were blood vessels in the horn as well as in the linings, and that you could not cut into a horn without cutting a blood vessel, although they were very minute. It was just like boring into a man's tooth. A cow of a nervous organization would suffer just as much as a human being.

Professor Williams, that after the main nerves are cut there is little or no pain? A.—I do not; there is more pain in the smaller nerves than he admits. The bone of the horn is simply a prolongation of the frontal bone.

George R. Thompson, of Ingersoll, had been a butcher and had had a large experience with stock. He considered the operation as unnecessary. In shipping, the bodies not the horns took up the room.

Wm. Stirling, of Darabum, had never seen any injuries from cows hooking each other. The operation was cruel and unnecessary. Lorenzo W. Stevens agreed with the former witness.

At 6:30 the court adjourned until this morning.

Dr. Hutchinson resumed this morning Dr. T. Hutchinson was recalled but no new points were brought out.

Detective B. B. Allen was the next witness called. He had accompanied Dr. Tamin, the first witness, to York's farm, where it was ascertained that 33 cattle had been dehorned. The defendant told him that the operation did not seem to hurt the cows. After the horns were cut off the animals were turned out of the stable. There had been nothing applied to the wounds. When he saw the cows six weeks afterwards their heads were covered with dirt as if they had been rubbing them on the ground.

This concluded the evidence for the prosecution.

THE DEFENSE.

Wm. Hawkins, of Brownsville, was the first witness put in the box after dinner. He kept on an average about 50 milch cows.

Q.—Have any difficulties arisen in the management of this herd to and from your pasture land? A.—If some of the weaker members of the herd are standing in front the stronger ones rush at them and gore them. The result is that the weaker are often injured. One of my cows had been disemboweled, another had been pushed against a gate post, and the pressure of the horn against her broke her hip-bone. One of his heifers had been hooked between the front leg and the body, and a wound over a foot long resulted. My cows are of about the same class as Mr. York's, native cows. Some of my best milking cows have legs and almost straight horns. I cannot call to mind one of them that could not do serious injury. One of my cows once caught another in the flank and did considerable injury before she could liberate herself.

Witness continued: I once had seventeen milch cattle in my herd. They did not suit me, as they did not milk as well as I wished. I then looked more carefully into the practice of dehorning. On November 29 last, Mr. Dillon, one of the defendants, and myself, dehorned 28 milch cows in 45 minutes. This included tying and untying the cattle. I got a can of tar and intended to apply it to the wounds, but next day I found a clot had covered them. Only 3 of the 28 horns discharged anything. In two months they were all practically healed up. The three that discharged started to discharge about six days after the operation and continued for probably three weeks.

Q.—What symptoms of pain do the animals evince during the operation? A.—At the first two or three strokes of the saw they seemed to wince a little and the eyes winked.

After that they seemed to stand quite contented. After the cutting was over they acted quite naturally, eating the same as ever. The animals that were inclined to fight before the dehorning acted the same, wanting to fight with those they did not know. Before the dehorning the cows fought in the stable when being put in. Now it is a perfect pleasure to put them in. Horns alone were the cause of the having to keep my cows and horses in different pastures. Dehorning secures the safety of children.

At Home.

The active members of the Y. P. S. C. E. connected with the Adelaide Street Baptist Church were invited by Rev. and Mrs. H. C. Speller to spend an "At Home" at their residence on English street, and as a result some 50 or 60 well-pleased people found themselves in the pastor's parlor last evening. There was no attempt at carrying out a "programme," though there was plenty of good music, numbers were wise and witty speeches, refreshments in abundance and enjoyment abounded. The kind and considerate host and hostess were equal to the occasion. They did their best to make each visitor feel at home, and succeeded admirably in their efforts. The meeting part somewhat of the "protracted" character, but this was excusable, it being such a thoroughly enjoyable gathering that no one wanted to bring it to a close. The young people voted Mr. Speller's "At Home" a grand success.

Foresters Enjoy Themselves.

One of those socials that tend to create such good feeling among members of a benevolent society took place last evening in the room of Court Brighton, 6507, when Forest Home Circle, No. 67, and the Junior Branch were entertained by the parent institution, the occasion being a reunion. Chief Ranger George Mansbridge occupied the chair and briefly welcomed the large gathering to the new hall. Short speeches were made by Secretary Harry Sutherland, Comp. Lily White and Bro. D. Spence, who spoke in behalf of Court Brighton Companions and the Juniors, all reporting a promising condition of affairs in each branch of Forestry. An interesting programme was introduced, consisting of songs, readings, recitations, harmonies, guitar and banjo selections, in which the following took part, the several numbers being given in a way pleasing to the audience: Bro. W. Peacock, A. E. White, L. J. Hessel, Wild, Westervelt, R. B. Tatham, Geo. Burrows and C. H. Tatham, and Comp. Lily White and Bro. D.
