Discusses Marriage, Love, Business-Contract Angle

Suppose That Marriage Contracts Were Renewable After a Certain Space of Time and That Time Was Nearly Up—Would Your Wife or Husband Want to Renew the Partnership?—Ask Yourself Honestly.

Do you ever ask yourself if you give satisfaction as a husband or as a wife? Do you ever wonder if your husband or wife would pick you out as a life companion if he or she had a second choice?

Could you give a good reference if you were looking for another matrimonial job?

Every married man and woman are acutely aware of how far the poor, weak, blundering creatures they married are from the angels and heroes they thought they were espousing. There is nothing like domesticity for turning the spotlights on the faults of those with whom we live, and there is not a husband or wife who could not bring an indictment a yard long against his or her life partner without stopping to make a new inventory.

So much for the other fellow, but how about yourself? Suppose, Mr. Man, marriage was a business contract, entered into for a definite space of time, and the time was nearly up. Suppose you had found the arrangement profitable and agreeable, and were anxious to renew the contract. Do you ever wonder if your wife would sign on the dotted line again?

Of course, no man comes up to a girl's dreams. There isn't any such animal, but there are certain things every woman has a right to expect of her husband. Companionship. Consideration. Fair play. A fifty-fifty split on the perquisites as well as the penalties of family life. How do you check up on these things?

Do you think your wife would let herself be in for twenty years more of your society if she could help herself? She is human, you know, and has the usual human reactions. When you come home surly and glum, and sit through the whole evening in a frozen silence that sends the domestic atmosphere down below zero, or when you vent on your wife all the temper and irritability you dare not display to your customers or clients, do you imagine that she is passing a happy hour, and thinking how perfectly delightful it is to be assured of such cheery companionship the balance of her life?

You've seen many a lucrative business partnership broken up because one member of the firm was so disagreeable that the other would not put up with him at any price, and, believe me, Mr. Man, the same thing would be true of the domestic partnership, oftener than you think, if it could be terminated at will.

It is because men think they can't lose them that many husbands knock everything their wives do, and treat them with a rudeness they would not dare to show the cook. They would mend their manners if they knew that their wives would quit cold if things were not made pleasant for them.

And how about money? When you got married you founded the firm of Benedict & Co. Your wife put everything she had into that, body and brain and heart. She has worked harder and longer hours than you have to make the company a success. She has sacrificed more than you have.

Have you given her her share of the profits? Does she draw down a certain amount of money of her own every month, the just pay for her labor, or do you keep all the profits of the concern, and make her come to you like a beggar, for every penny she has? Would any man partner be satisfied to be treated the way you treat your wife? Would he renew a contract on such terms? And if he wouldn't, what makes you think that your wife is satisfied and desires to continue such a bad bargain?

Do you think you give satisfaction as a husband? A woman wants a husband to show her daily that he loves her. She wants tenderness. She wants appreciation. She wants her husband to give some sign that he still takes an interest in her, and looks upon her as something more than a kitchen adjunct.

How about it, Mr. Man? Have you kept the love fires burning in your wife's heart, or have you let them go out because you ceased to feed the flame? Do you pay your wife delicate little courtesies? Do you remember anniversaries and surprise her with some little thing she wants? Do you tell her she is prettier than any of the flappers, or are you one of the men who never take another look at their wives after their wedding day, or show them any little attention, and whose wives would drop dead with surprise if they paid them a compliment?

Take it from me, Mr. Man, there is many a husband who considers himself a good husband because he doesn't beat his wife and pays the family bills, whose wife wouldn't marry him again on a bet if she was given a new matrimonial deal. She would take a chance on a neomeister because she would figure out that she couldn't do worse than she did with number one.

And how about you, Mrs. Woman? Do you think your husband is satisfied with you? He is a human being, too, and he has a right to be married, with good food and cooking and the kind of piece mother used to make. He expected to have a wife who would be thrifty and economical and a helpmate to him.

When he comes home at night to an ill-kept house and sits down to a dinner that would give an ostrich indigestion, do you think that he thinks that you are playing fair with him, or wailing on your part of the bargain? When he comes home to find you extravagant bills and he sees himself being sold into slavery to shopkeepers, don't you know that he wishes he had the having you prosecuted for having misappropriated the firm's money?

Do you suppose any wife gives satisfaction who is a neurotic creature full of morbid fancies; or who is a high-tempered shrew whose tongue keeps her husband in perpetual fear; or who is a whiner and a complainer, or who is dull and stupid; or who is too lazy and inert to even keep herself properly dressed?

No man marries to get that kind of a wife, and every one of those ladies would be out husband-hunting if matrimony was a time contract instead of a life job.

What is your sort of "character," as they say at employment agencies, would your present husband or wife give you, Mr. Man and Mrs. Woman? It is a salutary problem to ponder.

CHARING CROSS CIRCLE NAMES DISTRICT DELEGATE

Special to The Advertiser. Chatham, Ont., Sept. 11.—The Girls' Mission Circle of Charing Cross held a successful meeting on Sunday, when Miss Flossie Sullivan was appointed a delegate to the district convention in Blenheim on Oct. 4. A letter from Mr. J. H. Childs, in which the reasons for the ending year were inclosed, was read by Miss Flossie Sullivan. Miss McLennan will have charge of the study book, "Building the Nation," and Miss Flossie Sullivan was appointed to bring before the meeting the work of the girls in training school. A paper by Mildred Storer, "The Herald," was read by Thea Asher, China report by Dorothy Horne, and home field by Alice Conlett. Miss Flossie Sullivan presented a paper on "Our Methodist Mission in Japan," and an excellent reading was given by Miss McLennan. The meeting was brought to a close with the Watchword.

CHALMERS Y. P. SOCIETY. Chatham, Ont., Sept. 11.—The topic, "Triumphs of the Cross," given by Miss Barbara Wrightman, was the feature of the meeting of the Chalmers Young People's Society. Miss Jean McCrea gave a splendid paper on "Some New Features in the Work of Our Foreign Mission Board," after which there was a social hour. Mr. Fred Brooksbank was in the chair, and a letter from Rev. Mr. Gosling was read by Edgar McCauley.

Mrs. George Edwards of Komoka Presides At Executive Meeting Held Yesterday in Tecumseh House.

MRS. FRANCES LAWSON READ, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawson, Yarmouth Heights, St. Thomas, who has been awarded a scholarship entitling her to a year's tuition with Mr. Frank Le Forge, the distinguished composer. The scholarship was awarded by the Vocal Art Science Studio, New York.

MR. AND MRS. MOORE MARRIED SIXTY YEARS

Celebrate Diamond Wedding At Home of Mrs. Wm. Shipp, Palmyra.

An interesting event of last week was the diamond wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Moore, held at the home of their daughter, Mrs. William Shipp, Talbot road, Palmyra.

Henry Moore and Maria Montgomery were united in marriage in 1863 in Dumfries Township, Brant County, by Rev. Mr. Miller. A few years later they moved to Newville, Talbot road, where they resided until ten years ago, when they sold their farm and retired from active life.

To this union were born five children, four of whom are still living. They, together with eleven grandchildren and three great-grandchildren, were present at this gathering. Although of a quiet nature, Mr. and Mrs. Moore were the recipients of several telegrams and greetings from old friends. Despite the fact that Mr. Moore is 82 and his wife 81, both are enjoying good health and are very active for their years.

Those present included: Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Bell and Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Watts of Shelburne, Mr. and Mrs. Alex. McDougall and family of Southport, Mr. and Mrs. William Eberle and family of Palmyra, Mr. and Mrs. William Shipp and family of Ridgeway, and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Moore and family of this city.

Fashions by Wire

Special to The Advertiser. Copyright.

Paris, Sept. 11.—Evening blouses are trimmed with fur at present, and most elaborate materials, such as brocade velvet, are used for some of the restaurant costumes.

Everything Rebuffed.

Paris, Sept. 11.—There is almost no end today of the variety of fashions. One of the newest ideas, however, is to have the topknot on a skirt run slanting upwards to meet an ornament on the hip.

Skirts Are Shorter.

London, Sept. 11.—As it is today, if you want a normal waist line you may have it. If not, your waist may continue as low as you wish. As for the length of skirts, they are shorter if anything.

Fantastic Bandeaux.

London, Sept. 11.—Bandeaux are growing more and more fantastic each day. There is the bandeaux of velvet shirred and set, like a crown low on the head. There is also the bandeaux of satin black velvet ribbon, widely plaited to show its two colors.

Puffy Under Sleeves.

New York, Sept. 11.—The sleeveless gown has given rise today to the under-blouses of crepe de chine or chiffon, of puffy, balloon-like sleeves. Thus, one may be both sleeveless and sleeved, and in style on both counts.

Hosiery Is Striped.

New York, Sept. 11.—Hosiery is taking unto itself a multiplicity of stripes. These stripes vary in width and in color. One stocking is gold, shown here today in a shop window, is finely striped with lavender. A green is striped with gray and tan with black.

Slippers Are Ornate.

New York, Sept. 11.—Evening slippers remain as ornate today as before, frequently matching the brocade of evening gowns. The street shoes are inclined to cling to three colors—black, brown and gray.

EPWORTH LEAGUE MEETS.

The regular meeting of the Wellington Street Epworth League held this week was in charge of the missionary department, with Albert Dent presiding. The topic, "Growth of the Canadian Methodist Missions," was given by W. Boyce. Miss Eleanor Hodgins was appointed recording secretary, to fill the vacancy left by C. Hodgins, who is leaving the city shortly. An executive meeting will be held Sept. 13 to draw up the program for the coming year. Following the meeting a social hour was enjoyed. The Hyatt Avenue Society will be guests at the next meeting, and the program will be presented by them.

A new Grand Rapids ordinance requires a 70-degree minimum temperature for apartments, factories and office buildings.

ENGAGEMENTS

A charge of 75 cents for one insertion, or $1 for two insertions is made for notices under this heading. Orders for insertion of engagements must bear the name and address of sender and will not be taken over the telephone.

Final arrangements for the big fall convention of Western Ontario Women's Institutes were made yesterday morning at a special meeting of the executive held in the Chamber of Commerce board room, Tecumseh House, Mrs. George Edwards, president of the Canadian Women's Institutes, presiding. A new feature of the program this year will be the reservation of a full half-day for shopping in the London stores. The convention is being held on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, November 6, 7 and 8, in the Masonic Temple.

Outstanding speakers of the sessions will be Dr. Mary of Toronto, the first woman school inspector, her subject to be "The Part That Women Play in the Community"; Dr. Madge Macklin of the Western University staff, who will speak on "How the University Can Co-operate With the Women's Institute"; and George A. Putnam, superintendent of institutions for Ontario. Special musical numbers are also scheduled for the evening sessions. An interesting visit for will be Miss Ethel M. Chapman, who will conduct a girls' session on Wednesday afternoon.

To Banquet Delegates.

The City of London will tender a banquet to the visiting delegates at the Smalman's dining-room on the first night of the convention. The program in part follows: November 6—Morning, registration and luncheon; afternoon, Mrs. Buchanan of Thamesville to preside. Opening exercises by Bishop David Williams; reports by district presidents and report by Mrs. Bolton Fitzgerald of Thorncliffe on the last two years' work; a 5 o'clock banquet at Smalman's; evening—Mrs. George Edwards to preside, community singing, address by George A. Putnam, superintendent of institutions for Ontario.

November 7—Morning, left open to delegates for shopping with several committee meetings at the Masonic Hall; afternoon—Miss Ethel M. Chapman to preside, community singing, address by Dr. Mary of Toronto, first woman school inspector on "The Part That Women Play in the Community"; address by Dr. Madge Macklin of the Western University staff on "How the University Can Co-operate With the Women's Institute."

November 8—The president of St. Mary's branch to preside—community singing; discussion and question period, address by Mrs. Arthur H. Smith, convener of the Children's Hospital committee, address "What the Institute Means to Me," by a delegate from Wardens, discussion on possibilities of institute work.

WEDDINGS.

CHELEW—LIND.

The marriage of Miss Alice Shirley Lind, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Lind, to Mr. Arthur Clifford Chew, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Chew, took place Monday evening at 8 o'clock at the Bloor Street Presbyterian Church, Toronto. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a graceful gown of white crepe Romanine. She was a shower of pale pink roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Mary Lind was her sister's bridesmaid, and wore a satin frock in sweet pea shade with effective overdress of silver lace and tissue. She wore a huge hat of as-cinch velvet. Her bouquet was of as-cinch shades of mauve surrounded by pink roses. Mr. and Mrs. Lind of Los Angeles was best man. Mr. Corson Lind (brother of the bride), Mr. E. H. Veigh, Mr. Norman Kemp and Mr. Herbert Smeaton acted as ushers. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents in Highgate avenue, Mr. and Mrs. Lind received at the entrance to the drawing room. Mrs. Lind wore a becoming gown of black and white crepe Romanine with cut jet bead trimming, large black hat and corsage of pink roses. The bride's table was very prettily done with silver candelabra and silver shades, silver vases of Richmond roses and gypsophylla with the three-tiered cake in the centre of the table. Mr. and Mrs. Chew left for their honeymoon trip to Winnipeg, going on from there to the bride's parents' home in Highgate avenue, Mr. and Mrs. Lind received at the entrance to the drawing room.
