Protection vs. Consumption.

National wealth is to be gauged by production rather than by consumption. Imports may be taken as indicative of a country's capacity ; but they may, at the same time, be emblematic of its poverty. Excess of imports over exports implies a process of depletion. The imports of British Columbia have ever been alarmingly disproportioned to its exports ; and, worst of all, these imports exhibit such a large proportion of what should be produced in the country as atterly to forbid the idea of healthy prosperity. It follows that one of the vary first objects of legislation should be to encourage and promote production. There are various classes of production in this colony, amongst the chief of which may be mentioned agricultural, mineral, forest and marine. On the eastern side of the Cascade Range agricultural development has long since overtaken demand. How far it has fallen short of the demand on but there need be no hesitation in affirmthis side is too plainly exhibited by import returns. It was scarcely to be expected, however, that agricultural productions would thus early make themselves visible in the exports of the colony. It would have been highly gratifying to find them equal to the demands of the country. But the fact that we are sending nearly half a million a year out of the colony in payment of supplies which should be produced from our own soil and ample grassranges is scarcely creditable or indicative of healthy progress. In mineral productions the case is necessarily and, to some extent, happily otherwise. Of this class gold mining has doubtless absorbed supreme attention, and this, we ing that, while they felt the country was not venture to assert, in disproportion to prepared to work out that system of governmerit and justice. Without wishing in ment, they bore willing testimony to the in-telligence and high standard of individual any degree to depreciate the importance qualification of the people of British Columof that interest to which the colony may almost be said to owe its existance-to. bis for self-government. They only opposed it upon the ground that the communities which most of us owe our presence on were too small and scattered to work out the Pacific, it may be permitted us to point to another department in mineral such a system successfully. We regretted at the time, and have regretted ever since, that these gentlemen should have got on what we conceive to be the wrang side of an important question, but we must protest against the unfair light in which it is sought development which would scarcely appear to have enjoyed its full share of recognition and legislative encouragement. It will be readily understood to exhibit their conduct-especially as one of them happens to be absent from the country. hat coal mining is referred to. The gold seeker may, indeed, worship at the shrine of Cariboo; but it is at Nanai-As to whether or not Dr Oarrall intends be ing a candidate for the representation of mo that commerce must kneel. Her Cariboo at the next election we have not coal stores will regulate commerce and distribute power on the North Pacific. Doubtless the development of these stores of untoid wealth and power has been slow and somewhat limited in the past ; but that must alone be attributed to the absence of demand. As yet San Francisco has been her sole market, and there her coal is met by an unfriendly tax of $1 25 per tcn. With the consummation of Confederation, the completion of the Canadian Pacific Railway and the consequent convergence here of the great steamship lines which will plough the surface of the Pacific like a field, all this will be changed. But, notwithstanding these unpropitious conditions and influences, Nanaimo produc. tiveness has not been unfelt in colonial prosperity, as it is not undescernable in colonial exports. Nanaimo has been os modest in her demands apon. public attention and legislative appropriation, that her real worth bes been in some danger of being overlooked. She has been doing her part so quietly and unosteutatiously that she has not, perhaps, attracted her tull share of attention. During the three years since Union Nanaimo has shipped 219,096 tons of coal. which represents a money value of close upon a million and a half. Thus Na-naimo may not unfairly be regarded as one of the most important, if, indeed, she may not be accounted the most imimportant, producing commanity in the the passengers for Poget Sound are Gov. united colony.
