Canadian May Meeting With a Ready Sale, But the Price is Against It—Action Concerning the Steamship Project Deferred Until Earl Jersey's Report is Made With.

London, Dec. 24.—After having received all the honors that a sorrowing people could pay to the remains of a worthy and devoted subject, all that is mortal of Sir John Thompson is now on its way across the broad Atlantic to be laid in its final resting place in the land of his birth, that land whose destinies had been given his guidance for a brief space. The ceremonies which attended the removal of the remains of the dead statesman from the mortuary establishment in London to the train which had been prepared for the purpose of conveying them and the friends of the deceased to Portsmouth were of a simple though solemn nature. But those with which the remains were conducted from the train to the warship were such as to be ever memorable, not only to those who took part in them, but also to those who witnessed them. The scene presented would be a most striking picture to a painter of genius. The purple cape and hat of the Bishop of Portsmouth, who headed the procession, the black robes and white collars of the military and naval officers, the blue jackets and caps and white trousers of the detachment of sailors who walked on one side of the coffin, which was borne along on the shoulders of eight stalwart men of war, and the brilliant red uniforms of the members of the marine corps, who followed on the other, all with reversed arms, the solemn garments of the mourners, the brilliant uniforms of the naval and military officers and the gorgeous robes of the members of the civic companies, all brought to the rear, with the golden rays of a dazzling sun piercing through a cloud-swept sky and shining full on the procession as it wended its way to the ship, made a brilliant spectacle. In fact, the sight was more impressive than of a gala occasion than of a ceremony intended to show honor to the dead. Much regret is expressed in the illness of Sir Charles Tupper, which prevented him from carrying out his intention of accompanying the body of Sir John Thompson to Canada. Although his condition at first was such as to cause considerable anxiety among his friends, the latest reports show that he is improving rapidly and that there is no longer any cause for apprehension. The keen personal sympathy which Sir John Thompson has displayed in connection with this sad and sorrowful event has been gratefully noted by many of our people. Not only has he expressed his sorrow for Lady Thompson personally, but for the country of which the late Premier was one of the most distinguished sons, but she went herself to place a wreath upon his coffin, and has shown in every possible way how keenly she feels the blow which has fallen upon his family, as well as upon the Dominion.

Active Re-Entry Steamship Deferred.
Many people have been waiting for a very little progress is being made with the establishment of the new fast steamship service between London and Canada. But nothing definite can be initiated in the direction of forming a company and raising the necessary capital until the views of the Government in regard to Lord Jersey's recommendations are made known. The same measures will soon be taken to elicit an expression of opinion from the Marquis of Ripon on the subject, but it is believed that the report has not yet been considered by the Cabinet, and nothing definite is likely to be accomplished until about the time of the meeting of the British Parliament, which takes place on February 5 and 6 next.

The steamship question, together with other matters which formed subjects of discussion at the Ottawa Conference, were dealt with in Sir Henry Wrixon's paper before the Royal Colonial Institute two weeks ago, and that gathering will long be remembered as the last occasion on which the late lamented Sir John Thompson made his public appearance. Sir John Colomb and a few others, who were not able to see beyond their noses, raised the objection known to the Imperial Defence Committee, as they are pleased to call themselves, with a view to the Ottawa Conference and its recommendations. The meeting, however, was too enthusiastic and too thoroughly imbued with the colonial and imperial instincts to stand any declination of that kind, and there is no doubt that the meeting separated with an almost unanimous conviction that it is in the interests of the empire that the recommendations of the conference should be carried into effect.

Canadian Horses in London.
Considerable numbers of Canadian horses are now being used in London, some of the large omnibus and tramway companies preferring them to any others. Although the trade has been a subject of discussion for some years past, the class of horses in demand have not hitherto been sent over in any numbers. Mr. Hunting, the president of the Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons, who acts as the veterinary expert to the Canadian Government in London, made a report to Sir Charles Tupper last year as to the horses which would meet with the most ready market in Great Britain. Among others, he specially mentioned the "Vanner" and "Omaha" horse, and it is these varieties which have been so much in favor this year. Mr. Hunting's report, printed by the Department of Trade and Commerce, deserves to be studied by those connected with this industry, as there is a large market for such horses, and it appears that they largely go to Glasgow, but a good many also find their way to Crofton, a London suburb, and it is from that place that the large London companies purchase their supplies.

Canadian May Means Ready Sale
While writing of horses, it may be worth while to mention that good Canadian hay has also achieved a reputation among persons in London who control and work large studs of horses. Of course the price is rather against it just now, but there is no doubt that its quality will always secure a ready sale, if the price are such as to tempt Canadian dealers to send it to the market. It is interesting to note that the quality of the hay it appeared as though a prejudice was forming against Canadian hay, but it is from the fact that the inferior Russian and River Plate hay was being mixed with Canadian related and sold as the latter. This, however, was soon found out, and speaking generally, it may safely be said that Canadian hay enjoys an excellent reputation in the United Kingdom.

Not Buying Compressed Fodder.
A statement appeared in the United States and Canadian papers not long ago that the British Government had ordered a large consignment of compressed fodder from the United States. It was presumed, the army horses

An Important Decision Which Affects Many Canadians Who Fly With Other People's Money—Those Now in the Southern Republic Are Making in Their Shoes.

When Chief Provincial Detective J. W. Murray was at Buenos Ayres in pursuit of H. G. Altson, the defuncting private banker of Tottenham, he came across Tom O'Brien, the bucco-steerer, who was passing under the name of Colville, Doc Minton, another confidence man, Melius, the St. Catharines defaulter, and several other fugitives from justice, wanted in this and other countries. There was then no extradition between Argentina and England, and the United States and the Republic was a haven for these gentry. The unanimous decision of the judges of the Supreme Court of Argentina a few days ago in favor of the extradition of Altson and a most interesting and luminous exposition of the principles which underlie and control the international surrender of alleged criminals, it further authorizes the practical effect of leaving it open to Canada and other countries to request the Argentine Government to surrender a large number of defaulters and criminals now staying in the Republic. Among them are the names of Altson, O'Brien, and their fellows are naturally beginning to shake in their shoes.
