CORRESPONDENCE

To The Editor of The MONITOR:

Sir: A visit to the family domicile during school hours in the big brick building overlooking the river, will prove very interesting to the visitor, and most encouraging to Principal Archibald and his staff of skilled teachers. The majority of parents and friends of the scholars do not take a sufficient and sympathetic interest in the very thorough teaching both in matter and methods of our capable teachers. The school is second to none in the Province from the point of view of efficiency. The members of the staff are to be congratulated on the very real interest they take in every individual pupil, in the splendid discipline maintained, and the fine results of their patient and painstaking endeavors. If Bridgetown school is typical of Canadian Public Schools, then I will say, that young Canada is receiving a great start toward life's ultimate goal, and our boys and girls will be sure to look back with gratitude in their hearts to the school years of their lives. Good schools are our best investment, and their products the nation's greatest asset; whereas the uneducated are a menace to society. Illiteracy is a great peril. We pride ourselves upon our cherished Democracy but democracy is only democracy when it is combined with education, for without education it is anarchy. In view of this fact the most economical insurance against revolt, or anything that menaces the place, prosperity and progress of the nation is, as a matter of fact, to afford adequate facilities for our youth to receive a thorough intensive schooling, to "make the grade" and finally to be graduated with "flying colors." Education is not a luxury, but a vital necessity.

I should add that to render the school curriculum adequate, compulsory physical education should be added; and no stone left unturned to popularize military training on the part of both boys themselves and of their parents.

It is to be deplored that some fathers and mothers evince little or no interest in the education of youths; by their very indifference they are mortgaging the future of their own sons and daughters. If my few lines have the effect of stimulating interest in our Public Schools, I shall not regret having brought to public attention one of the pressing needs of the present oratory.

101 YEARS OLD AND STILL SPR

Former Annapolis Royal Man Said He Never Was Sick That He Can Remember of.

(Halifax Herald)

Boston, June 1—James A. Rochford, of 38 Harriet street, Brighton, Mass., arose Tuesday morning at 6 o'clock, built a fire in the kitchen, prepared breakfast, washed the dishes and then, just because of his 101st birthday, took a stroll over to Oak Square, as in his custom on these annual occasions, "see the boys" and receive their congratulations.

"Never paid 10 cents for a doc all my life," he declared to the Boston Traveller reporter who came to see him just as he was emptying his ashes from the range. "Never was sick that I remember of," he added.

New England's most remarkable patriarch is a term that aptly describes Mr. Rochford. He is as spry as men still considered young. He worked as a carpenter up to six weeks ago, when his eyesight partially faded; he remembers incidents of his boyhood as clearly as though they happened yesterday, and he now looking for a house to reside in with space for a garden plot to take up his spare time and enable him to beat his record of last year, when he raised 22 bushels of potatoes and lot of corn.

His "spare time" comes between his household duties, for he is housekeeper for "ma," his partially crippled 84-year-old wife, and his he mate for the last 70 years, and grandson, Paul S. Rochford, works in Boston.

And these duties consist of preparing all of the meals, washing the floor and doing the washing and ironing. He had just completed ironing for the week when asked to tell something about his life.

He was born in Annapolis, Nova Scotia, May 28, 1829, the son of a British soldier, who was of French nationality, and a Scotch mother. When his father was discharged from the army they went to live on a farm in Bridgetown, Nova Scotia.

When he was 22 years old, he sailed he went to Bangor and worked in lumber camp, and then helped in the first telegraph line between Brewer and Calais, Me. He worked a year in Maine, and then went back home. He came to Newton Highlands at 25 years of age and worked as carpenter until his retirement.

He went back to Nova Scotia three or three times, but since 1881 he resided here.

"I can't see as well as I used to," Mr. Rochford said. "I can't read a house as well as I ever could. I gave up when my one eye went back on me. I read about every day during the daytime, but I don't read at night. I go to bed at 10 o'clock every night and get
