Doctor—Two hours of sleep before midnight are better than four hours after that time.

Lazybones—Fiddlesticks! Two hours of sleep after one is called in the morning are better than all the others.—New York Sun.

Breaking the News—Patient (bad pay)—What is my condition, Doctor?

Physician—My friend, my advice to you is, to pay your debts and prepare for the end.—Philadelphia North American.

Alas!—

A beauty sleeps b'neath you quiet grass
Who dreamed her face the world might not surpass:
Strength is her neighbor, but he boasts no more—
And over them the wind cries out "Alas!"

--Omar Khayyam (Le Gallienne).

"You will have trouble very soon," said the fortune-teller, attentively studying the lines in the palm, "with a tall, dark man. Be on your guard."

Mark how closely the fulfillment followed on the heels of the prophecy. Within three hours thereafter the fair caller's luter, a gentleman of Abyssinian extraction, struck was for higher wages.—Chicago Tribune.

An Ambition crushed.—First Small Boy—I ought you was goin' to wear your hair football style?

Second Small Boy—O! man said if I went 'roun' lookin' like a mop he'd wipe de floor wit' me.—Indianapolis Journal.

Sometimes varies His Talk.—Hicks—What a tiresome bore Stuffer is! He is forever telling about the things he has eaten. It's positively disgusting.

Wicks—Oh, you are too hard on Stuffer. Sometimes he is talking about the things he is going to eat.—Boston Transcript.

He cautiously—If I should propose, would you say "yes?"

She (more cautiously)—If you knew I would say "yes" would you propose? Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

"You are the only woman I have ever loved," he said.

"I wish I could believe you," she answered, "but all men say the same thing."

"Well," he persisted, "you are—are—the only woman I ever loved enough to tell that yarn to."—San Francisco Examiner.
