No department of the C. P. R. has more care or thought devoted to it than the handling of baggage, for the traveler owes so much of his good temper and comfort to the knowledge that his trimks are handled carefully and delivered on time. The amount of baggage handled on so large a system is phenomenal—no less than 7,899,652 individual pieces being forwarded during the year 1916. There must have been quite a number of families on the move, for the list includes 28,309 to been quite a number of families on the baggage department. as in order to has a second delivery of milk from the farm to the city dweller passenger trains are used. The total number of milk cans forwarded during the year 1916 was J.162,472.

The most convincing proof of the care with which baggage is handled on the C. P. R. is given in the figures of claims paid on loss, damage, pilferage. Out of nearly eight million pieces of baggage handled, the amount paid on loss was only $1,791.79; on damage only $1,669.68; and on pilferage only $571.07, the cost to the company in these respects being only five cents per hundred parcels.

This is a record of which Mr. J. O. Added the propular capacity is grapped. The same of the care with which baggage is mandled on the care with which baggage is handled on the care with which baggage handled on the figures of claims paid on loss, damage, pilferage. This is a record of which Mr. J. O. Apps, the popular general baggage agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway, may well be proud, and is sufficient to show that the so-called "baggage smasher" has been entirely eliminated, if indeed he ever existed, between Digby, N. S., and Victoria, B. C.

APPEAL DISMISSED. APPEAL DISMISSED.

The appeal in the case of Clarke vs. Howlett, heard at Osgoode Hall before Chief Justice Meredith and Justices Lennox, Ferguson and Rose, has been dismissed with costs to the plaintiff. The action was brought in the county court to recover money claimed due on a contract for the purchase of cattle. J. M. McEvoy appeared for the plaintiff, and W. R. Meredith for defendant. Both parties to the action are residents of Caradoc Township.

Little Ones Especially Attentive When Teachers Tell Bible Battles.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church is nice, home-like family sort of a place ll of a Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. o be sure there is the stand, decorous rown-up congregation that anyone light expect in a proper Presbyterian hurch, but sandwiched in among these eople, are all manner of little folks, exens of them, who have come out ith fathers and mothers, big sisters and brothers, and even uncles, aunts, and cousins

Hunting Grounds.

Hunting Grounds.

Decorous, too, they are, these boys and boys, but about them, nevertheless, is an air of expectancy. The good time to come is what helps them to be so well behaved during the first part of the "grown-up" service. Things will happen which throw one off one's guard. For example, daddy who has been ushering the first fifteen minutes can't get into his own seat. He takes one directly in front. What more natural than to punch him in the back with your fist, just to let him know you are there, and glad to see him, especially if you are a small bay?

Juniors Withdraw. orous, too, they are, these boys Driver William Illingworth, former dontana cow-puncher and desperado, who was converted several weeks ago to the City Mission while in training lere with the 63rd Battery, has written he following letter since leaving, to Dvangelist and Mrs. Matheson:

Ty Dear and Loving Brother and Sister:

Sister:

Well, dear brother and sister, I can not call either of you anything else, for I never had friends like either one of you before. And say, I don't know how to express my thanks to you for your kindness towards me while I was in London, O, say, I have it over the boys here. They all want to know who was so kind to me, and I don't forget to tell them the City Mission, and they shut up right away. I told them that was nothing to what I have got. I told them if that suitcase was all I had got in the City Mission, they could have kept it, and, of course, they thought it was something good to eat or to wear, or something else.

But I have told them about my Christ and some of them hang their heads, while a lot of them just laugh. But while they are laughing on the inside. For I have Christ to laugh with, and why should I care how much they tease me. I have a friend. I am sorry to say that of all my companions in this bunch that they have put me with, there is not one who wants to hear of this great everlasting friend. And, oh, when I st here and think of how he has pardoned all my sins, and I guess we all know I was no saint, it makes me feel like licking everyone that insults him.

Well, brother, I want you to pray for me both at home and in the mission, for I will need all of your prayers.

Principal S. H. Radeliffe of the Normal School is the superintendent, who has been "called" to take charge of the St. Andrew's junior congregation. The striking part is the unity with which the sentences are repeated and also the distinctness. No mumbling A familiar hymn, illustrated, next appears, and after that the lesson for the day.

Well-Known Aplarist Reminds That Honey is Not Perishable, that there were announcements, one from a little man inregard to a boys' club, and one by a little woman concerning a girls' mission band. The collection followed, taken up by two boys appointed the previous Sunday. During this there was a tuneful "voluntary" from the masculine choir.

The Boys' Day.

It was truly "boys' day." The subject for the occasion was "King Saul," and the story of his life and reign was told simply and effectively by Mrs. D. C. MacGregor, the Leloved assistant supervisor, told, of course, with the help of the children.

It was twice as interesting to think that Saul fought the Philistines just where Britishers are fighting the enemy today, and that a London woman a few days ago had a letter from her son in the very place.

There was that thriller about Jonathan and his armor-bearer defeating the Phillistines single-handed with arrows and the help of the thunder, which made the superstitious Philistines think the armles of Saul were coming.

Then there was that incident in the career of the king where he disobeyed God and took the sheep and the cattle and lied to Samuel about it.

You could just see Samuel rebuking Saul and walking away from him and standard the cattle and lied to Samuel about it.

You could just see Samuel rebuking Saul and walking away from him and standard the cattle and lied to Samuel about it.

The Boys' Day.

The members about forty in numbers, presented interesting reborts indicating that the outlook for a good honey season this year was bridged here and instructive paper was read by D. Anguish. Lambeth, known throughout the province as the most successful aplarist in Ontario. He is regarded as an authority on the subject. His subject was "Preparing bees for the harvest, nectar, secretion and gathering of the same."

In giving advice to the beginner he used the following "dont's":

Don't take your bees out of the pack-indicating that the outlook for a good honey season

Higher Cost of Fabric and Rubber Causes Increase In Tire Prices

Owing to the tremendous advance in the price of cotton fabric and a considerable advance in the cost of crude rubber, the prices of Goodyear Automobile Tires and Tubes are advanced effective April 27, 1917.

As cotton fabric does not enter into the manufacture of automobile tubes, the increase in tube prices is considerably less than the advance on casings.
