Cost of the French Revolutionary War.—One thousand and eighty-two millions two hundred and four thousand four hundred and three pounds remain as the sum actually received and expended on account of the war with France, from 1793 to 1815. On an average of the twenty-two years, from 1793 to 1815, it was a war of expenditure of nearly fifty millions.

Law Changes.—The constitution of the Court of Changery, on Friday and Saturday, for the purpose of the arguments in the case of Wright and Tatham, presented a remarkable instance of the vicissitudes to which the members of the logal profession are subject. Lord Brougham sat as Changellor, who had formerly been one of the counseling in it, and Sir James Szerlet, the leader in the cases, lad now to address him as a Judge who had before been his junior at the trial in the Court below. Lord Brougham is said to have been a pupil of Sir Nicholas Tindal, who sat at his right hand; while Lord Changellor, who had formerly been one of the counselor, had conferred a silk gown.

Coals to Newcastle.—The old adage of sending coals te Newcastle has at length been verified by the arrival of a ship load of Yorkshire coals, despatched, in order to supply the pressing wants of the people of that two, occasioned by the long strike of the colliers in their neighbourhood.

Papers have been received this morning, from Van Dieman's Land, to the 20th of November, statement, relates to the trade of the Lord Changellor cannot be the colliers in their neighbourhood.

CONTAUNICATION.

FOR THE WEEKLY OBSERVER.

Mr. Eddar-4 observed the remarks in your last paper relative to the Captolus of vessels who had been consisted for a breach of the Act of Perdament, provided or the safe carrying of passangers from Great Britain to the Colonies, and also the inoffensive Inference you made respecting Captain Conneil of the Brig Leslio Cault, who hasing in like manner been guilty of the same misdemeanor, and being equally culpable with those who had been convicted and fixed at the last Cantt, you rightly suppose had only escaped for the inee, and consequently on his return here, would be a rested, and treated as the law directs.— No reasonable erson, Mr. Editor, would ever construe your remark not any reflection upon the character of Captoin Conneil, or suppose that it could lead in any way to imperent officers interested in twestigation such a matter of each his hours, and intended an erely to remind the proper officers interested in investigation such a matter of heir needly one in allowing Capt. Conneil to depart, and totaling him an envisible exception to others not more guilty than himself.

It would be ridiculous to say that Capt. Conneil was bound to delsy himself and detain his vessel, waiting he convenience of the Crown Officers for his prosecution; that your remark never inferred this is to evident for argument, and therefore in mading it, I conceive on only did your duty as the conductor of a Public paper.

on consider, since consider was not intended, and since fination, however lafty, could from the circum ances hardly conceive it. VERITAS.
