Whatever the House of Assembly may be, as at present constituted, there is a very different tone used towards it by the Council, and the editor of the Times, who must know something of the Council's opinions; he speaks of the Assembly as composed of a set of "vulgar mountebanks and needy adventurers," the Council in conference address "an earnest desire to preserve that good correspondence with the Assembly which the best interests of the Colony require should subsist between all branches of the Legislature" (vide Gazette, 24th ult).

We do not wonder, that the editors of papers in other Colonies should be puzzled to know what is the real state of parties in this Country; when the Times has confounded the politics and character of His Excellency, with those of the Assembly.

The legal adviser of His Excellency, may certainly, in some cases, have had a wish to appear as "one of us," particularly as there exists a striking difference of opinion between our Lawyers on the subject of Common and Statute Law; or "Select Cases" verses "Special Pleading." This we think may have been evinced lately by some appointments in the Notary way.

We do not despair; we think that there is native energy enough in this Island, to get itself represented in the Government, and to command a share of the patronage that is at present confined to foreigners who are the mere importations of yesterday; and on whom is lavished all the patronage that the executive has to bestow.

We think the native population would have a preponderance of advocacy in the Newspapers of the Island, if the conductors of those papers would perform their duty to their country. The "Patriot" calls itself Native, but the principal Editor is a native of the Emerald Isle—The "Newfoundlander" is Native, but unfortunately confines itself more to British, than to Newfoundland politics.— The "Times" is native, but its Editor is of the Emerald Isle. The "Ledger" is native, but its Editor is an Englishman. The "Gazette" is native, but it has to record few Native appointments. The "Mercury" is native, but its Editor is an Englishman. The "Sentinel" is Native. We are Native, but our feeble efforts will want the support of our contemporaries, before the patronage of government will be extended to those of the Natives who deserve by talent or character a participation in the benefits that ought to be derived from a Local Representative Government; or before the Native interest will share fairly in the representation of the Country.

We understand that a writ was yesterday served on P. Morris, Esq., at the suit of B. G. Garrett, Esq., High-Sheriff, for a libel on the character of the latter Gentleman said to be contained in a Speech delivered in the House of Assembly by Mr. Morris, which speech was afterwards printed, in pamphlet form, by order of the House.—Damages laid at £1000.—Newfoundlander, November 2.
