IMPORTANCE OF VARIOUS BY-LAWS FOUND IN RUIS

SIX MEASURES ARE BEFORE RATEPAYERS IN BATTLE IN LONDON

> Review of Provisions Which Will Be Helpful to Voters

Equally important in their general bearing upon the immediate future of Victoria as the verdict to be recorded London, Jan. 9.—That there were eight or more desperate men, armed with the most modern of high power automatic pistols, barricaded in the Sidney street house during last Tuesday's battle with the police and Scots Guards, was proved Saturday night when searchers found six additional charred bodies in the ruins. Two were found immediately after the battle.

In addition to the bodies, the police London, Jan. 9.-That there were Perhaps the most startling admission familiar, provides for the immediate of the police, however, is that the dead expenditure of the sum of $250,000 for men may have had no connection whatever with the recent tragedy in Houndsditch, when three unarmed policemen were shot to death by a band of robbers engaged in tunnelling their way into a large jewelry establishment. It is certain from evidence discovered in the burned fortress that the dead men were connected with the carlier Tottenham outrage, with the notorious bank robberies in Scotland that no contract shall be effective until another vote of the ratepayers shall have been taken on the scheme. The loan asked for in the electric light by-law is a very necessary expenditure, and for that reason it is supposed it will carry. and with a number of other daring posed it will carry.

and with a number of other daring crimes which Scotland Yard has been unable to fathom.

That the men were desperate foreign riminals there can be no doubt, but the beilef is lessening that they were notorious anarchists. In spite of this, there are many officials connected with Scotland Yard who still maintain that the men were merely engaged in counterfeiting and other bold crimes to secure money with which to carry on their propaganda of anarchism.

There is a very general expectation that the underground telephone by-law will on this occasion pass by the necessary two-thirds majority, as now that its provisions are understood it is admitted that the proposal is one very much in the interests of the city. It is significant that the mayoralty candidates are unanimous on the point of the desirability of passing the by-law. Wayor Morley in his annual report, published in the Times on Saturday, ventures the precicition that the underground telephone by-law will on this occasion pass by the necessary two-thirds majority, as now that its provisions are understood it is admitted that the proposal is one very much in the interests of the city. Saturday night, near the six charred bodies, the police found a number of ingeniously constructed time bombs, which had not exploded. The great care exercised in their manufacture has strengthened the belief of the adherents of the anarchist theory that the men were really anarchists. The officials declare they have secured evidence that there was on foot a plot to kill King George, either before, or at the time of his coronation in June.
