"You see the song writer is more or less bound to become weary of his songs long before they are published. He gets tired of them in fact often enough while he's throwing them together. I have heard that there are some well known writers of books who refuse utterly to look at their writings after the stuff is put into book form. after the stuff is put into book form. It's the same way with most song writers of my acquaintance, including

SOAP POWDER

As ASEPTO is an antiseptic preparation, it is a germ-killer as well as the best soap powder made. Odorless, harmless to clothes and hands, most economical. ASEPTO makes the best soft soap. Dissolve a package in boiling water, pour in two gallons of water, stir and let stand until cool. This gives two gallons of soft soap for 5c.

is mind, he noticed the tab that was still lying on the table, held it carelesty for a moment, then instinctively by reached for his fountain pen. Back at business college they had awarded him several prizes for penmanship, and he could write if he couldn't talk. And this was the evening during which he had decided to ask her the big question that was troubling the very soul of him!

The fountain pen was now moving heistatingly across the blank paper, ultimately framing beautiful doves and birds and drawing lines possessing true curves. Then the hand began moving faster and faster. He looked up for an instant and she was sliently watching him. But his hand never wavered. Two, three or four years ago, was it, since he had last done this. It mattered not, It seemed but as yesterday. And then it was all done, all except that central, vacant space. There was a place there to write something.

In an easy chair gnashing his teeth and longing for people to come and visit him, so's he could kill 'em. "Well, the gang herded the forty and odd street planos in front of Dresser's house and had 'em all start 'Two Little Girls in Blue' together in about forty and odd different keys and temporate the words were not new, but indeed more ancient than all of the others.

The pen dropped to the table, and with both arms outstretched he lifted with the substrate of the orchestral reversion of the or comfortably at the second story windows of a tidy groggery on the corner across the way from Paul's house, where with liquid refreshments and things they could enjoy the contemplation of how Paul was feeing about it. "The din was something that never was and never will be equalled on this or any other continent. It was one hideous hellish wail as of 1,800,000 eternally lost and damned souls. "Instantly the awful uproar began they saw Dresser, whose chair was by the window of his second story front room, yank up the curtain and glare down upon the street below. He shook his firsts and bawled out of the open window, but nix, the Sicilians had their instructions and they went right on with some more of "Two Little Girls in Blue."

"There are times when I wouldn't mind being deaf," said Harry Williams, the song writer. "I mean the times when I have to listen to my own songs.

"Not that the songs aren't all right in their way. I'm not knocking them. They're good enough songs of their sort, but other folks can listen to 'em if they must and will. I'm sick of them. They give me the times whe as ame miserable experience. Take the folks that I meet socially at their homes, there and in other cities. What is the first thing they do—genierous scuisltoem and begin to whack out my songs and to sing 'em. Of course I ought to be pleased when they do the plano and begin to whack out my songs and to sing 'em. Of course I ought to be pleased when they do thappy. It's up to me to smirk and look amably self-conscious and flattered and all like that, but when I look that way I'm the most brazen fraud that you ever saw or heard of in all your born days.

"I became so sick of the song within a couple of months after it was published that I actually went to Europe to get away from it, and then I found 'em all singing and chanting and hollering it in the London 'alls!

"I nudged out of London, and in Paris I found 'em bawling it in all the cafes chantants. Then I went to Berlin, and the first thing I heard wheu I got there was a military band poomta-ra-ra-ing that infernal song at a park concert. Then I streaked to the Austrian Tyrol, where I got away from the fool song for a little while at least.
