The president, Dr. Allison, then made a short address, in which he stated that the burning of the former residence last June was one of those unfortunate accidents for which no one could be blamed; that several things in the construction of the building conduced to its rapid coasumption of the flames. These weak points had all been remedied in the present edifice, and he believed and hoped it might last through the 20th century. From the fact of Chas. Pickard recently opening a stone quarry on York street, they had been enabled to put up a much handsomer building without undue expense. Dr. Allison said, in closing, that the ceremony of the corner-stone was to be conducted very briefly, as all work on the building had to be suspended, and this meant loss to the contractors, Rhodes & Curry of Amherst, N. S. The stone was placed by Dr. La thern, who used the silver trowe, that participated on a similar occasion when the first residence was erected in 1893. The usual box placed with the stone contained calendars of the institutions, photos, coins, newspapers and magazines, and on top was placed a stone tablet, a kind which Mt. Allison has exclusive use of in laboratory assaying. The corner-stone box preserved from the burned building was put on the opposite side of the tower.

IN MEMORIAM

A Red Letter Day in the History of the Woodstock Free Baptists.

Marbel Tablet in Memory of the Origina Members of the Church Unvailed-Only One Surviving Member.

WOODSTOCK, N. B., Nov. 5 .- This is a red letter day in the history of the Free Baptist denomination in Woodstock. It was observed by special services in the church, and the unveiling of a marble tablet in memory of the original members, only one of whom survives. Rev. Joseph Noble of Woodstock, and he preached at the service this morning. The tablet is of Italian marble, about 4 1-2 by 2 feet, manufactured by John Gallagher & Son of this town. The four corners are bevelled, in one corner beirg the date. 1834, and diagonally opposite, 1899. The other corners have Maltese crosses. In the main part of the stone is written as follows:

Members - Simeon Baker, Samuel Raymond, Amos C. Tolford, David Marston, John P.Longee, Hugh Baker, Toseph Noble, Stephen Parsons, Mrs. Stephen Parsons, E. M. Truesdale. Deacons-Stephen Parsons, Elisha

Organized 1834 by Rev. Samuel

Baker. Clerk-E. M. Truesdale. Erected 1899.

The lettering is done in vermillion, and is the work of George Lee of this town. There was a large congregation. Besides the pastor of the church, Rev. J. W. Clark, and Mr. Noble, Rev. Jos. Parsons of Marysville was present, especially for the occasion. Miss Annie Fisher was organist, and she performed her duty satisfactorily, aided by the efficient choir of the church. In view of the fact that of the founders of the Woodstock church one only remains, and that this service was particularly to commemorate their work, the hymn with these two verses was exceedingly appropriate:

"The fathers, where are they? The sainted usen of God, Who once their hearts aglow with love, These hills and valleys trod.

The fathers are with Thee, Thy glory they behold, As now within the pearly gates They walk the streets of gold."

The main interest in the service centred around the words of the eighty-year old preacher, Rev. Joseph Noble, who, as Mr. Clark pointed out, was one of the main organizers 65 years ago. Mr. Noble based his remarks on Deut. viii., 2. Among other things he said:

"I am a charter member of this church, the only survivor of the ten who first united. Sixty-five years ago last August nine brothers and one sister were banded together in a carpenter's shop, at the lower corner in this town. The shop had been vacated, ship God. A revival commenced through the influence of two Methodist ministers who had been working in Houlton. No place was open for them. There was a Methodist chapel, but the minister of that day did not care about leaving the beaten track. So began the work in this town. Sixty-five years ago there were ten members, and I notice that on the register today there are between ten and twleve hundred names. They have been gathered into the church instituted in the old carpenter shop. Of course we had struggles and conflicts. Referring to my own work, I may say that I have administered the ordinance of baptism to 1,500 persons. There have been three churches erected, the first between this and the usper corner, the second near by this, destroyed by fire, and then this beautiful building. Referring to the work of the only woman member, Mrs. Stephen Parsons, the preacher said that she reminded him, in the initial work, of Deborah, who did not appear too prominent out of regard for Balak. but whose counsel was eagerly sought, and whose wisdom did much to ensure victory. I have seen 67 conferences and have attended all. When this denomination started there were 40 rum shops in Woodstock, and I wondered at that time if there were that many Christians. Concluding, the aged minister said that this had been sixty odd years his home, and he had always had the interests of the town at heart. The unveiling of the memorial tablet then took place, the covering being renoved by Rev. Mr. Clark, pastor of the church. In a few remarks he dwelt upon the value of the memorial. and upon the excellent workmanship and the generosity of the maker, who had made the cost as small as possible. Rev. Mr. Clark was then inducted into the church. Mr. Noble addressed the pastor and extended the right hand of fellowship, and Rev. Mr. Parsons addressed the people.

Mr. Parsons said that Mr. Clark was not an angel. Any one could see that by looking at him. He needed the creature comforts of life, and it was the duty of the people to supply these. The congregation should recollect also that a minister was not omniscient. He could not know of every sick or infirm person unless he was told of them. A sick person notified the doctor and the friends, but expected the minister to

ST. ANDREWS.

Anniversary of the Consecration of All Saints' Church.

Brief History of the Ecclesiastical Parish for the Past One Hundred and Thirteen Years.

ST. ANDREWS, N. B., Nov. 1 .- On unday last, the anniversary of the consecration of All Saints church, hirty-two years since, was celebrated At the morning service the curate, Rev. E. W. Simonson, in his sermon, made special reference to the event, which he prefaced by the statement of a few points in connection with the history of the church and parish, substantially as follows: The first Church of England clergyman who visited St. Andrews, then a town in which there were two hundred houses, and streets regularly laid out, was the Rev. Samuel Cooke, early in the year 1786. The first regularly established rector, Rev. Samuel Andrews, came, later in the same year, from Wallingford, Conn. United States, he being one of the Loyalists. He brought with him from the church in which he minstered in that town the British coat-of-arms. presented to him by the congregation on his departure. It was placed in old All Saints church, on the wall, next which was situated the pew set apart for the use of the officers of the British garrison, who occupied Fort Tipperary. On the demolition of the old church, it was removed to the new one, where it now is fixed over the inside of the main entrance door. The first church was built between the years 1786 and 1788. The last Lord's day service held therein was on October 27th 1867, and the last service of any kind, the reading of the Litany by the late Bishop Medley, on the morning of October 30th. Next day, the vigil of All Saints, October 31st, the new church was consecrated. A procession in the following order was formed at the old Madras school room: Rev. W. Q. Ketchum, rector, and his assistant; a number of visiting clergymen, Right Reverend H. A. Neeley, Bishop of Maine, U. S.; Right Rev. John Medley. Bishop of the Diocese of Fro ton, wearing their robes, followed by the members of All Saints church corporation, who marched from thence to the new church, where the consecration service was performed, by which the new and better building was set apart for the worship of Almighty God. A large congregation were interested spectators of what to the parishioners of All Saints was a most joyful event. When the old church was torn down the best of the lumber was saved and used in ceiling the new. Most of the pew-holders in the old church, became pew-holders in the new, have joined the great silent majority. Some of the hymns sung at the consecration service were sung in the anniversary service on Sunday last. None of the members of the choir of 1867 were present. A most unique feature in the history of Ail Saints and the parish of St. Andrews is that since the organization of the church in 1786, covering a period of one hundred and thirteen years, the services have been regularly maintained under three rectors only, viz.: Rev. Samuel Andrews, Rev. Jerome Alley and the present beloved and venerable Rev. W. Q. Ketchum, D. D., canon of the Cathedral at Fredericton. At the evening service, conducted by Rev. E. W. Simonson, God Save the Queen was sung in place of the usual anthem. This is the first anniversary of the consecration of All Saints from which the rector, Rev. Dr. Ketchum, has been absent, he having gone to visit the death-bed of his old

BUTTE CITY.

The Reception of Montana Volunteers Returning from the War.

Two of the Soldiers Hail from New Bruns wick-One is Harry Dorman from St. John-Something About Other Provincialists.

(Special Correspondence of The Sun.) BUTTE, Montana, Oct. 28.-Monday was a great day in this city. It was the day of the return of the Montana volunteers from the Philippines. Elaborate preparations had been made and something over thirty thousand dollars subscribed to pay the expenses. In so far as expending the money was concerned, the celebration was a huge success, but from a citizen's spectacular point of view, it was a huge failure. Arrangements for transportation from San Francisco to this city had been made with the Oregon short line for $15,000, the soldiers to be here on Monday morning at 9.30 o'clock. It was near two o'clock in the afternoon when the last section arrived-the three sections being only ten minutes each apart. Ladies had worked all day Sunday preraring the big banquet for the 800 men, and had everything in readiness to serve at 10 o'clock Monday morning. Some 40,000 people from all parts of the state crowded the disembarking point from about 9 o'clock in the morning until about noon, when no information being obtainable, the men, women and children left by the thousand thoroughly disgusted, besides being chilled through. streets after three days' snow, followed by rain, were knee deep in mud, and the thermometer was at the freezing point, so when the first section pulled in there were not over 5,000 people present. The blowing of steam whistles and the booming of carnon soon brught the crowd out again. As the men were mustered out in San Francisco the officers had practically no control over them, and it required the greatest exertions of prominent citizens to get them in line to march to the banquet. An it was two or three hundred strolled off with friends and relatives. It was 4 o'clock when the banquet was over, and then the men, after much confusion, formed up to receive their medals of honor. But before this they were reated to a number of speeches by politicians, and only darkness put a stop to the oratory. A big street parade had been a feature of the programme, in which all trades organizations, secret and social societies, military organizations, etc., were to take part. They were all on hand, but left in disgust, and the thousands who lined the streets from early morning until dark in the hope of meeting the soldiers and giving them a hearty cheer, wended their way home, sad and disappointed and strong in condemnation of the management of the whole affair. Then to make matters worse, the night parade fizzled out, owing to nobody turning up to take part, outside of the commercial travel-Of course the decorations and iluminations throughout the city were grand, while the principal arch, surmounted by a plaster paris statue of the Goddess of Liberty, and lighted by 800 incandescent lights, was said to be the equal of the New York Dewey arch. It cost $4,200. There were several Canadians among the soldiers, but only two, so far as I could ascertain, natives of New Brunswick. One was Guy N. Churchill, a brother of Frank E. Churchill, manager of Hennessy's clothing department, and a native of Woodstock. Like all the others, he lost considerable flesh, and while declaring he does not regret his experience, says he would not want to indergo the same hardship again.

The other man hails from St. John in the person of Harry Dorman, son of Fred Dorman. Harry was in the rough riders. He left home while a mere boy, and is now a fine robust man and looks in the pink of health. He is comfortably situated with his brother Charley, the old St. John base ball player, at Missoula.

Tyler Thompson, an old St. John boy, came over from Missoula to witness the day's celebration. Tyler would talk St. John and of the days gone by by the hour. Thomas L. Martin, an old Fredericton boy, was also in the city from Helena. Tom goes east next month and will visit his old home. A short time ago I met Father Cushing of Gloucester county, N. B., in this city. He resided in St. John previous to the big fire and indeed was there on the memorable 20th of June. He likes Montana very much, and may accept a parish here. He went to Missoula a few days ago, and today a despatch appeared in one of the papers of this city from Missoula as follows: "Rev. Father Cushing of New Brunswick, who has been in Missoula for severa days in quest of a young lady who was formerly a member of his parish, has abandoned the search, not having been able to find any clue that will lead to the discovery of the wherabouts of the woman. Her name was O'Neill, and she last year married a man named Decan. The last letter that she wrote to her family was from Missoula, and the clergyman had hoped that he could ind her here An In Old Kentucky company, travelling in its own cars and carrying its own horses, was here this week. C. K. French, a well known St. John favorite, was stage manager, and H. B. Bradley played Tom Wise's old char-acter. Charley French made many enquiries after friends he had made in St. John.

Modjeska was the star attraction here for two nights and a matinee this week. Reserved seats were three dol-lars, and the "gods" paid one dollar. The house was crowded at each performance.

A Boston letter to the American Lumberman says: "Spruce continues to advance, and another advance is prelicted shortly, as the pulp manufacturers are now buying in all the available spruce timber land, which in the course of a few years at the present ratio will make spruce a very scarce article."
