THE ENGLISH CO-OPERATIVE STORES PROVE GREAT HELP

Foundations of Present Powerful Society Laid at Rochdale in 1843, by Weavers — Workmen Find Stores of Great Assistance in Supporting Families

When Harry Shaw was arrested in Cootlock, Quebec, the crowds in that little town cheered for him. It was said that the citizens felt grateful to him for having put the name Cootlock on the world's map. In England at present a memorial is being erected in Rochdale to the humble weavers who in 1843 took the steps that put Rochdale on the map. In this country what Rochdale has in the way of claim to fame may not be generally appreciated, but wherever co-operative trading on the English system has supporters there will be found a reverence for Rochdale somewhat akin to that felt by the residents of the Isle of Man for Hall Caine. Co-operative pilgrimages are made every year to the site of the "Owd Weavers' Shop," for the humble warehouse in Toad Lane that goes by this appellation was the starting point of a movement now supported by 3, 400,000 co-operativists in Britain, and a business aggregating about $600, 000,000 a year. Like many other great movements, co-operative trading was born of stress and trouble.
There was at the time an industrial unrest very similar to that agitating the masses in England today. The Chartist riots were at their height, the Ten Hour a Day movement was up in Parliament, the Socialistic doctrines of Owen were spreading, machinery was displacing hand labor, and the workers everywhere were in a ferment of discontent.

"The Owd Shop."

At this uneasy time twenty-eight weavers belonging to the Rochdale strikers met and decided to start a co-operative shop, where they could buy bread and clothing a few pennies cheaper. Each member was to contribute a pound, but most of them were so poor they could contribute only 2d a week toward it. It took them a year to scrape enough together to start a shop, the location being anything but ambitious. The "Owd Weavers' Shop" had but one room when it was first opened to a curious and suspicious public. Its rude table had only oatmeal, butter, sugar and flour to offer to the customer; and the price was open only a few cents below the market. In two years the "Owd Shop" was supported by seventy-four members, had $9,000 capital, and the yearly turnover amounted to $5,500. The weavers had planned better than they knew. Other manufacturing towns seized upon the idea, and societies sprang up, slowly at first, but as persistently as a dandelion rears its head from the earth. When the societies had got well established they discovered that it would be to their advantage to manufacture their own goods, and in 1850 they built their first flour mill. Then, as now, the merchants looked askance at the co-operative interloper, and sought to use their trade connections with manufacturers and wholesale houses to suppress its growth. But soon boots and shoes, cloth and other products were added. Then came a period of more rapid growth, in the number of local societies, and finally Parliament was compelled to take notice of them, and passed the "Industrial and Provident Societies Act."

The Soap Struggle.

The methods of the English cooperative societies are fairly well known throughout the world. The basic principle which has made them a success is the distribution of profits to members according to the amount of purchases made, and not according to investment. This has promoted patronage of the co-operative stores in a way that the basing of returns upon investment never would. For instance, the Leeds Society has 46,900 members, and during the last year the dividend amounted to 66 cents for every $5 share. It is not surprising that where the working men are so willing to unite, and share the burdens and responsibilities of conducting such business democracies, co-operative societies should be one of the important commercial movements of the day.

How important the network of British societies has become was shown recently in an action brought by a large soap manufacturing firm to compel one of the societies to sell his product.
Some of the big soap firms had made arrangements to form a combine, but it was fought by a London newspaper until the proposal was abandoned. The stirring of public feeling led to an increase of the co-operative soap trade by leaps and bounds, and in the effort to regain lost trade the soap firms tried legal coercion on the "Co-ops." The action was lost. Part of the popular strength of the movement now is due to the fact that while originally and still mainly a workingman's movement, many professional and business people find it good business to patronize the bakery, dairy, and grocery departments of the society stores.

"Jacks-of-all-Trades."

Originally the whole co-operative scheme in Great Britain was conducted on a cash basis, but more recently the credit system has crept in. The Kinning Park Society in Glasgow has adopted the strict rule that any account not "paid within the calendar months" will be taken out of the member's shares and small deposit accounts, and no dividend will be payable on such account. Inasmuch as every member of this society must own at least five shares of $5 each, and do at least 140 worth of business a year, the society is virtually guaranteed against bad debts. The range of what such society may undertake is shown by the following notices recently sent out:

The society now undertakes the removal of household furniture. For terms, please enquire at the grocery branches.

"The committee desires to inform the members that watch and clock and upholstery repairs are now being done at the Bridge street warehouse, also the refitting of stockings and sox."

Dental work and photographic work have been added, and the following rather ambiguous bulletin has just been issued: "Members can now have their lives or house furniture insured against fire or burglary." A house agency has been established, and part of its duty is to operate cooperative homes where members seeking a fortnight's rest can go.
These homes are especially a comfort to convalescents. In an entirely different English wholesale society cures bacon in Tralee, makes butter in Bissington, chocolate at Luton, packs raisins in Denia, Spain; raises tea in Ceylon, runs steamboats from Holland and Spain to Ireland, and, besides, conducts a multitude of activities comparable, on a lesser scale, to the multifarious activities of Canada's greatest railway corporation.

THE BOUNDARY
OF NEW BRUNSWICK

To The Editor of the Standard
Sir:

With reference to your remarks on the Ashburton Treaty in your issue of August 8th, I am very sorry to copy of an article I wrote recently on the subject, for which you will see that the British Claim to the disputed territory had no foundation and that Lord Ashburton did very well to get what he did for Canada.

Your obedient servant,
D. MILLS.

Progress in St. Stephen.

(Courier.) Negotiations are in progress for the purchase of land and the erection of twenty new tenements in St. Stephen at an early date. This would mean the opening of a new street in Dukes ward and the partial supply of a very pressing need. Outside parties are interested and have secured options on the land desired.

A PROBLEM FOR THE EDITOR.

It has been asked whether stepping on a man's corns gives provocation for sweating. Answer: Keep the toes clear of corns by using Putnam's Corn Extractor. It's the best, 25c. at all dealers.

Buy this oven-tested flour

Your oven will certainly produce more bread and better bread as a result of our oven test.

From each shipment of wheat delivered at our mills we take a ten-pound sample. It is ground into flour. We bake bread from this flour. If this bread is high in quality and large in quantity we use the shipment of wheat from which it came. Otherwise, we sell it.

The baking quality of flour sold under this name is therefore an exact certainty. Buy and benefit!

GETS DIVORCE AS RESULT OF MIDNIGHT RAID

MRS. PEARL WOOLFORD LEWIS.

Mrs. Pearl Woolford Lewis, of Washington, D. C., has been granted a divorce from Frederick Cecil Lewis, private secretary to his father, Mr. Herbert Cecil Lewis, editor of the Army and Navy Magazine. She has also obtained the right to resume her maiden name, Pearl Woolford.

In the testimony taken by a court examiner of the District Supreme Court an exciting tale of a midnight raid on an apartment in a fashionable apartment house was told by the pretty nineteen-year-old plaintiff.

Philadelphia has a woman, chief market clerk who passed the civil service examinations with a higher average than all men competitors. Her salary is $1,000 a year and her duties will include the study of markets in other cities.

Six husbands who refused to support their wives in Philadelphia have been sentenced to the stone pile, and the county will pay the wives 65 cents a day during the sentence imposed.

The effect of two lace flounced falling softly and edged with lace and fliting at the waist with a crushed girle of satin is graceful, stylish and economical.

Milliners are combining the following colors: Brown and purple, blue and green, amber, Bordeaux red and olive green.

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA,
GAS OR INDIGESTION

"Pape's Diapepsin" settles sour, upset stomachs in five minutes.

Time it! Pape's Diapepsin will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour, gas or out-of-order stomach surely within five minutes!

If your meals don't fit comfortably, or what you eat lies like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion.

Get from your pharmacist a fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a dose just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, nausea, debilitating headaches, dizziness or intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stom-
