

Protest with Kraft Dinner?

Finance Minister Allan MacEachen and his liberal cohorts could receive a less than warm reception at the Four Seasons Hotel this Friday.

A picket line has been planned for the $150 a plate fundraising dinner of the Liberal party of Canada.

Students will be setting up on the steps of the Four Seasons to protest the federal government's plans to axe $1.5 billion from the established programs financing agreement, a cutback which would have disastrous effects for post-secondary education.

The picket line will be essentially informational. Pamphlets will be distributed informing everyone of the students' position.

Amanda LeRougetel, chairperson of the Anti-Cutbacks Team (ACT) hopes that there will be a large show of support on the part of students.

"With an informational picket you don't need hundreds of people on the picket line ... but we want everyone down there who wants to go," she says.

Students will be meeting at the ACT office, room 240 SUB at 3:30 today to make picket signs. On Friday they will meet back there at 5:30 and then go downtown to the Four Seasons. Picketing will last until approximately 7:30.

"MacEachen will be inside eating his $150 a plate dinner while students are outside eating their Kraft Dinner with no cheese," says Matt Shaugnessey of the Federation of Alberta Students.

form of sheet music and texts, picked up by the bookstore," she says.

"Number one, it is not our responsibility to provide educational materials for students. That is the responsibility of the university," says Lunney.

A motion was passed expressing sympathy for the music students and a promise to negotiate with the University. Lunney hopes to have alternative proposals ready soon to help the music students.

"If we close the Music Store, it will not happen over night," Elise Gaudet, SU v.p. Finance, told council Tuesday night. "It will probably remain open till Christmas."

"The first solution comes in terms of how we choose to liquidate the stock of the Music Store," Lunney says.

"In the long term," she adds, "we will enter in negotiation with the university to ensure the bookstore picks up the need. The bookstore will probably pick up the textbooks but I suspect they won't pick up the sheet music."

"I'm really glad of the support after the motion was passed," Millions says. "I would like to see what happens with regard to the bookstore."

Another possibility is to have the slack taken up by another music store.

"We've received bids on it (the existing Music Store's inventory)," Lunney says. "There's nothing final yet." So far, the bid is for about $5000.

"I think it is important to bring the concerns of the students to the attention of the owners and hope they receive a similar service. They have already indicated they will."

Gordon Price is the person who has made the offer.

"Gordon Price is notorious for its bad service," was Spencer's reaction to this possibility.

Yet the Music Store's closure seemed inevitable.

"I take the closing of any operation very, very seriously," says Soper.

"Everyone realized that the store was in a probationary period. If it continued to express huge losses, it would have to go, and it did."

"I have clinched and closed with the naked North, I have learned to defy and defend; Shoulder to shoulder we have fought it out - yet the wild must win in the end."

Soft-spoken and smooth, its northern flavour simmers just below the surface, waiting to be discovered. Straight, on the rocks, or mixed, Yukon Jack is a breed apart; unlike any liqueur you've ever tasted.
