among the students. OR isn't it more likely that UNB students actually have valid complaints and are using the Bruns to air their views? This is the only way to express their views in a professional manner so that the rest of the students will also be aware. There isn't room during Student Council meetings for all six thousand students to be present. We need the Bruns! The Bruns is a small publication. It has a limited reading audience and a tiny workspace. Why are there suggestions to reduce the office space when conditions are already overcrowded? Isn't that another form of consorship? Perhaps it is time for both Kim Norris and Jane Arnold to publish their positions on these issues before Student Council takes a vote.
