

Remarks on the History of the
M.G. Society of the Canadian Medical Society, M.G.

It is evident that the following series of notes were prepared by W. G. R. Meighen for his use in writing his history of the Canadian Medical Society. They are not in chronological order, nor do they follow any particular scheme. They consist of a number of short notes, some of which are very brief, others more detailed, and some of which are quite long. They are not intended to give a full account of the history of the Canadian Medical Society, but rather to furnish a sketch of the main events and developments that occurred during the period covered by the notes.

The notes begin with a short account of the early history of the Canadian Medical Association, followed by a sketch of the Canadian Medical Society, and then a brief account of the Canadian Medical Association. The notes are not in chronological order, but rather to give a general idea of the main events and developments that occurred during the period covered by the notes.

The notes end with a short account of the Canadian Medical Association, followed by a sketch of the Canadian Medical Society, and then a brief account of the Canadian Medical Association. The notes are not in chronological order, but rather to give a general idea of the main events and developments that occurred during the period covered by the notes.