ODDITIES IN PET NAMES.

Cat and Pig Are the Terms Coveted by French Women.

"If a man in this country calls his wife a cat the foundation is laid for a divorce suit," said the man who travels. "But a French woman takes the same word as a term of endearment. It's odd how the choicest phrases in the vocabulary of affection of one people are used for quite an opposite purpose by another nation. One of the most familiar and most coveted phrases of endearment among the French, for instance, is 'my little pig,' and 'my little puppy dog' is also well liked.

"But if the Frenchman were to call Mme. Narcisse 'duck,' as an American husband might lovingly call his better half, she would be very much offended. One of the oddest pet names that I ever heard of was that used by a famous German general, who always called his wife 'my little kernel of coffee.' They were divorced at last, however, and a cynic said that the general's pet name should have been 'my dear little stack of bayonets,' for the lady was said to have had a very sharp tongue. I know a devoted disciple of Walton, who, when writing to his wife while on a fishing expedition, calls her 'my dear little speckled trout.'"

Why Razors Get Tired.

"Do you know why we dip a razor in warm water before we begin shaving, and do you know why some ignorant men say a razor is 'tired'?" asked the barber. "Well, this is all due to the fact that a razor is a saw, not a knife, and it works like a saw, not like a knife. Examined under the microscope its edge, that looks so smooth to the naked eye, is seen to have innumerable and fine saw teeth. When these teeth get clogged with dirt all the honing and strapping in the world will do no good—the razor is dull and nothing will sharpen it. Then is the time the ignorant say it is 'tired' and stop using it, but the wise know it is only clogged.

"The wise, though, don't suffer their razors to get clogged. They dip them in warm water before they use them, and thus the teeth are kept clean. It is because a razor is a saw that latter doesn't soften the beard, as so many people think. It stiffens it, so that it will present a firm and resisting surface to the razor."

One Oculist's Advice.

"So you have been trying to doctor your own eyes," remarked the oculist as the patient removed the bandage, displaying an aggravated case of conjunctivitis. "In many cases you can cure yourself, but if you don't know what treatments to avoid you are liable to do yourself injury. Old housewife remedies are all right in their place, but I would advise you not to use tea leaves. They often give relief, but they bring on other complications. In fact, the 'tea leaf eye' is well known to the profession. The lid is puffy, flabby and lifeless. If you wish to reduce the inflammation in your eyes use hot water with a cloth. That is enough. Yes; you may add salt if you wish, but it is not necessary in most cases. Salt is merely an antiseptic and has no other virtue for eye lotions."

All Brushed Off.

A lady called at a chemist's shop, then, after examining one or two articles, remembered that she wanted some cosmetic for the toilet and turning to the chemist, asked, "Have you any bloom of youth?"

The merchant, over whose head more than fifty summers had passed, turned to one of his assistants and asked in a business way, "Have I any bloom of youth left?"

The clerk looked up with a quiet smile and answered, "I believe not, sir."—London Globe.

SILENCE!

The instinct of modesty natural to every woman is often a great hindrance to the cure of womanly diseases. Women shrink from the personal questions of the local physician which seem indelicate. The thought of examination is so horrible to them, and so they endure in silence a condition of disease which surely progresses from bad to worse.

It has been Dr. Pierce's privilege to cure a great many women who have found a refuge for modesty in his offer of free consultation by letter. All correspondence is held as strictly private and is sacredly confidential. Address Doctor R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

"Having used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery' during the past year," writes Mrs. Mattie Long, of Platte Valley, N. Y., "I can truthfully recommend these medicines for all female weaknesses. I have used several bottles of 'Favorite Prescription,' which I consider a great blessing to weak women. I was so nervous and discouraged that I hardly knew what to do. Your kind advice for home treatment helped me wonderfully. Thanks to Dr. Pierce."

Biliousness is cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

MR. JAMES BRYCE.

Mr. Justin McCarthy's Polar Opposite of British Historian.

Mr. Justin McCarthy says: James Bryce has, in face and form, the characteristics of a stalwart fighter. His forehead is high and broad, with strongly marked eyebrows, straightly drawn over deep and penetrating eyes. The features are all finely modelled, the nose is straight and statuesque, the hair is becoming somewhat thinner and more grey than it was when I first knew Mr. Bryce, but the moustache and beard, although they, too, show some fading in color, are still thick and strong as in that past day. The face does not look Irish; its expression is, perhaps, somewhat too sedate and resolute; but, on the other hand, it does not seem quite Scotch, for there is at moments a suggestion of dreaminess about it which we do not usually associate with the shrewd North Briton. Bryce is a man of the most genial temperament, thoroughly companionable, and capable of enjoying every influence that helps to brighten existence. Always a student of books and of men, he is never a recluse, and I do not know of anyone who seems to get more out of life than does this philosophic historian. The Parliamentary career of Mr. Bryce began in 1880, when he was elected as Liberal representative for a London constituency. Later, under Gladstone, he filled the important office of Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs. Later still he became Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, and in 1894 President of the Board of Trade. Long prior to his public life, he had published his great historical work, "The Holy Roman Empire." In 1888 "The American Commonwealth" appeared. He has traveled, and in 1877 published a narrative of his explorations in Transcaucasia, with an account of his ascent of Mount Ararat. In 1897 his "Impressions of South Africa" were issued, and within a few weeks we have had a volume of his brilliant "Studies in Contemporary Biography." Mr. McCarthy says that in the new effort now so sorely needed, to create once more a true Liberal party, England requires, above all things else, the constant service of such men as Mr. Bryce.

British Army Statistics.

A recently issued British Blue Book states that the regular army on January 1, 1903, was 324,653, consisting of 1,490 "Household Cavalry," 29,597 Cavalry of the Line, 1,610 Imperial Yeomanry, 34,959 Royal Horse and Field Artillery, 23,174 Royal Garrison Artillery, 18,757 Royal Engineers, 9,966 Foot Guards, 176,580 Infantry of the Line, 15,503 Colonial Corps and Indian Infantry, 8,443 Army Service Corps, 6,020 Army Medical Corps, 2,638 Army Ordnance Corps, 854 Army Pay Corps and 362 Army Post Office Corps. At the date mentioned 153,438 were in England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales and the Channel Islands, 95,475 in Egypt, China, Crete and the Colonies, including South Africa, and 75,740 in India. There were 4,311 desertions. Of the non-commissioned officers and men 195,080 were of the Church of England, 22,900 were Presbyterians, 14,284 were Wesleyans, 2,953 were "other Protestants," 46,883 were Roman Catholics, 159 were Jews, 2,459 were Mohammedans, Hindus, etc., and 26,668 were unreported as to religion. As respects race there were 213,873 English non-commissioned officers and men, 26,303 Scotch, 35,717 Irish, 3,190 born in India or the Colonies, 636 foreigners and 26,667 not specified.

The First Railway Motor.

The first railway motor ever built in this country to run in lieu of the ordinary train and engine is now running between Stratford and Southsea stations, says Lloyd's Weekly Newspaper. The joint line of the South-Western and London, Brighton, and South Coast Companies. Each car is 50 feet long, of the modern bogey type, with two pairs of wheels at each end, and in one body contains engine, luggage van, and first and third-class passenger compartments. The first-class compartment seats 12 persons, the third-class 32 persons. The motor-car can be illuminated by gas, and warmed in the winter by a special apparatus. The car runs every 10 minutes, the time of the journey being four minutes each way.
