

The Sleeping Beauty

Golden curls of daffodillies
Flash upon his dazzled sight;
Brow and breast of whitest lilies—
Never was so fair a sight!

Eyes of violet's deepest azure,
Breath of perfume from the south,
And he sees, with thrilling pleasure,
Just a rosebud, for her mouth!