meal continued without interruption for a few more minutes; then his lordship exclaimed: 'A beastly draught!' and wheeling around in his chair called on his valet to close a door which had been left open near his lordship's seat.

"Again I watched him, then, repeating the exclamation he had uttered, I wheeled around in my chair and gave a similar command to the valet.

"There was a silence, his lordship's brow netted, his lips closed, and he gave me such a hard and inquiring look that I trembled from head to foot.

"At last he spoke, his voice not harsh, but determined:

"See here, William, are you imitating me?" he asked.

"Oh, no, your lordship," I stammered out.

"Well, what does this mean?"

"Only, your lordship, that I am doing what father told me. He said I was to watch you at the table, and do exactly as you did."

"His lordship laughed merrily, then turning to his guests, said:

"I am taught a lesson. I must not do that which I would not have others do."

Then closing the story with his little visitor, Mr. Gladstone said:

"Little man, always be careful never to do anything because other people do it, unless you are certain it is good and pleasing unto God."

A BEAR "RAPPER."

All summer the bears kept stealing out from the woods, and trampling down the plants in Uncle William's garden. At last they killed two of the best sheep in his flock.

"They are wise old bears," said Benny, "and I don't believe is it of any use to set traps for them."

And so Uncle William found when he had fixed the traps in the most inviting manner. When he watched for the bears with his rifle, which had brought low many a wild animal in those big Maine woods, they

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

Few People Know How Useful it is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

staid at home. For a whole week not a sign of a bear was seen.

"There are some young cubs in the woods that they are hiding," said Uncle William with a smile. "And if they get as greedy as such fellows often do, we will have them all."

But the days slipped by, another sheep was missing, and Benny shook his head as he said:

"The bears are just laughing at us out in the woods."

"Do you want to hear them?" asked his uncle, as he took down his best rifle.

"Yes," smiled Benny. "It has been so cold for several days that I'm
