W. B. Wells on Game Laws

Prominent Local Sportsman Writes a Letter to The Globe Pointing Out a few Changes which should be made in Game Regulations. ****

shown by sportsmen in the meeting of the Game Commissioners lately held at Toronto with a view to changes in the game laws it is quite evident that the laws are not far from right. It would be strange indeed if such were not the case, as the Game Commission has since its inception, been in touch with sportsmen in the different sections of the Province, and has endeavored to get at their views with regard to changes in the game laws from time to time. These views have been reported at the annual meetings, and such changes as the majority suggested were recommended and were as a rule acted upon by the Government. The deer subject is a much mixed one, involving a lot of different interests, and it is safe to say that no laws that may be passed will suit all classes of sportsmen and others who go to the northern woods in the Tall. The still hunter has his views of what should and should not be, and the hound man has views directly apposite. As to the feathered game with which we in southern Ontario are solely interested, the outlook from a general public point Globe: From the lack of interest ern Ontario are solely interested, the outlook from a general public point of view is not bright. The wild turkey, the king of game

The wild turkey, the king of game birds, has become extinct, so has the passenger pigeon, a bird that gave sport to anyone who could handle a gun in the old days. The ruffed grouse, commonly called partridge, owing to the cutting down of his favorite haunts, may also be counted out. Of the migratory game birds the woodcock is rarely seen, except in a few favorite localities. Snipe last season were more plentiful than last season were more plentiful than for some years, but the grounds fre-quented by them are mostly preserv-ed by clubs and individuals. Ducks of all kinds seem to be steadily deof all kinds seem to be steadily decreasing in numbers, owing, no doubt, to the increased number of shooters. They have to run the gauntlet from where they breed in the far north all the way to the Gulf of Mexico, where they spend their winters, and they are shot along the gulf cost by market hunters during the entire winter, and all their way up north in the spring until there was up in the the spring until the read of the fact datan are awakening to the fact states something is done to stop will see something is done to stop will be exterminated. Whilst all varieties are decreasing in number, the wood or summer duck is the only variety that has almost entirely dispressed. has almost entirely disappeared. I speak of St. Clair marshes, Rond Eau and Point Pelee. I have heard that there are considerable numbers of this beautiful bird in the back lakes about Ottawa. Blue wing teal are holding their own very well, as are the black duck; but the mallard, which at one time on the St. Clair marshes outnumbered the black duck, are becoming scarcer year by year UNIFORM OPENING DAY FOR

DUCK. The only change in the duck law apart from restricting the bag, which is very hard to enforce, and doing away with pump and automatic guns, would be to make the opening day Sept. 15th instead of Sept. 1st, day Sept. 15th instead of Sept. 1st, as now. This would give a uniform opening day for duck, snipe, wood-cock, plover, quail and partridge. Some have suggested even a later date for the opening of duck shooting, but this would deprive Canadians of their share of blue wing teal shooting, as they leave for the south about October 1st. The main reason for putting the opening day Sept. 1st years ago was to give us a share of the wood duck shooting: reason for putting the opening day Sept. Ist years ago was to give us a share of the wood duck shooting; they leave as a rule even earlier than the blue wing teal, but, as they are almost extinct, they need not now be taken into consideration.

The bird that has heretofore given sport to the general sporting splice.

The bird that has heretofore given sport to the general sporting public, and the one we must look to in future if we are to have any sport, is the quail. Many good sportsmen are rather pessimistic about the future of the gamey little bird. They say that owing to the cutting of the forests, the general cleaning up of the creek bottoms, slashings, brier patches, etc., etc., and also the substitution of the wire fence, with its lack of cover for the old snake rail Tence, with its weedy corners, the quail must undoubtedly follow the turkey and the partridge. I am, however, not inclined to take such a gloomy view of things, although at present, owing to two very severe winters, quail are very scarce in Essex, Kent, Lambton, Middlessx and Eigin—the quail counties. The law as to quail has been changed from time to time as was found necessary. At first there were two months open season; then it was reduced to six weeks, and again to one month. Last season an order in Council was passed prohibiting shooting for the year, and no doubt the Game Commission will recommend another close season, as birds are altogether too mission will recommend another close season, as birds are altogether too scarce to allow of any shooting this

Last spring the Government placed at the disposal of the Commission $1,000 to be expended in live quait to re-stock the quail district. Ar-rangements were made for the birds, Alies sejusdinos ssaidas eq espedoj sejulodine sejus pojim eq junq that no birds were got in. It is to be hoped that those in authority will make such representation to the be hoped that those in authority will make such representation to the proper authorities on the other side that birds will be allowed to come in another year. We send them moose and beaver for stocking purposes, and they should return the compliment. Clubs and private individuals have imported quail in a small way for the past twenty-five years, and it is considered by those best able to judge as the only way to keep up

Mr. Wm. B. Wells writes to the close: From the lack of interest hown by sportsmen in the meeting of the Game Commissioners lately and the Game Commissioners lately and the Game Commissioners lately shooters of the whole Province, and for those who take out licenses from the States as well.

GAME PRESERVES. Much has been said against the monopoly of game preserves, but to my mind the only salvation of game in the thickest settled districts is game preserves both large and small.

In other words, we must come to the Old Country idea of things or have no game. The general public is too much like Max O'Rell's Engis too much like Max O'Rell's Englishman: he is always looking for something to kill. He never thinks of saving or preserving. His motto is, "If you don't kill it someone else will," and he takes a long shot, thinking that if he does not kill or wound the bird he will make it wilder for someone else. The club or game preserve man, on the contrary, as a rule, has some idea of saving as a rule, has some idea of saving something for another year. I must confess, however, that it is very hard to get some of the old-timers to fall in with the new ideas. They befall in with the new ideas. They began their shooting when game was plentiful, and no one had to give a thought to the future supply. The question with them after a day's shooting was always "How many did did you kill?" and not "What sport did you have?" That day is passed now, and the future generations of shooters will have to pay more attention to saying propagating and tention to saving, propagating and preserving or they will have nothing

Dr. Samiers' Latest Report.

Ottawa, Aug. 11.—Dr. William Sauzders, director of experimental farms, wiring from Indian Head. N. W. T., to the Deputy Minister of Agriculture at Ottawa, says: "Have seen wheat fields from Brandon to Manitoba boundary. Found them very promising. Straw of fair Jength where land is heavy, shorter in lighter soil. Heads everywhere of good average size. Crops are said to be excellent, both south and north of the C. P. R. lines. The general belief here that the present crop will be unusually heavy seems to be well founded."

The ship America, which took out the expedition was crushed in the ice early in the winter of 1903-4, and lost with a large part of her coal and provisions.

The 37 members of the expedition who returned to safety are all in good health, despite their privations and trying experiences, and their prolonged imprisonment in the Arctic, the expedition having been severed from all communication with the outside world since July, 1903.

Rescue Was Timely.

Anthony Fiala of Brooklyn, N. Y., the leader of the expedition, in a brief statement, says:

"The rescue was most timely. By my order, the America wintered in Neplitz Bay, where, early in the winter of 1903-4, the ship was crushed in the ice and became a total loss, together with big quantities of coal and provisions.

"When my little boy was three months old his head broke out with a rash, which was very itchy and ran considerable watery fluid. We tried everything we could, but he got worse all the time till it spread to his arms, legs, and then to his entire body, and he came near dying. It itched so he would scratch till the blood ran, and a thin yellowish stuff would be all over his pillow in the morning. I had to put mittens on his hands to keep him from tearing his skin. He got so weak he took fainting spells, and we would think him dying. He was almost a skeleton and his little hands were thin like claws.

He passed his early life there or at the town house of the family on the shores of the Bay of Quinte, and was educated at the Tren-ton High School. He entered the business of the firm—that of engine before he was twenty, and when the extension of their trade made it advisable to remove the firm's manufac-turing business to London, as the most convenient centre, Mr. Baker came to England in 1876 as their representative, and is now chairman of the firm of Joseph Baker & Sons, Limited, of Willesden Junction and City road, with branches in Australia, the United States, and Canada. In 1895, when Lord Rosebery resigned his seat when Lord Rosebery resigned his seat on the London County Council for East Finsbury, Mr. Baker was elected his successor, and has since represent-ed the constituency at Spring Gardens. He has taken great interest in the municipal control of tramways, and shortly after entering the Council visited America and prepared a care-ful report on tramway systems in use visited America and prepared a careful report on tramway systems in use there and on the Continent. For ever a quarter of a century he has been well-known in the constituency for philanthropic work, and in connection with the establishment in London of the Adult School Union. At the general election of 1900 he unsuccessfully contested East Finsbury against the late Mr. Richards. In 1878 he married Elizabeth Balmer, daughter of Mr. Richard beth Balmer, daughter of Mr. Richard Moscrip, of Morebattle, Roxburghshire.

What a Stye Is

A stye is in reality a little abscess which forms at the margin of the eyeof from inflammation of the glands or collocles. It is met with chiefly in delite children, but occurs sometimes in dults where there is a general depres sion of the health. The best plan is to thathe the eye frequently with hot wa-ter and to apply from time to time a tread and water poultice. After a time he abscess comes to a head ursts, and there is an end of it. A succession of styes may be taken as succession of styes may be taken as an indication that a thorough course of tonic treatment is necessary, and such remedies as cod liver oil and from and quinine should be taken fre-
