man of the sea.

Mr. Temple gave the house some amusement by referring to his vote of last night upon the motion for free corn. A special despatch from Ottawa says: "He denied that he had voted when his name was called the second time, and said members should stand up when voting instead of nodding like so many woodpeckers." At considerable expense, but we modestly think, with commendable enterprise, we present our readers with the above verbatim report of the speech of Mr.

Temple, our representative at Ottawa, on the great question of tariff reform which ston to this city direct each day, and that has been occupying the attention of the house of parliament for some days. Wass, the two boys who were seated upon a wharf fishing, when one fell into the water. His companion gallantly plunged in and rescued him. A benevolent gentleman who had hastened to the scene of the accident complimented the brave boy who had risked his life to save that of another. 'Is the boy your brother?' asked the gentleman. 'Oh, no, he is no relation to me at all,' was the answer; 'but I saved him because he had all the bait in his pocket, and if he'd been drowned I'd had to go home without any

Sir John Thompson, who took occasion to characterize Dr. Weldon's contention as absurd, said in effect that the coal lands of Nova Scotia belonged to that province, and the federal authorities had no power to interfere. ### CLEVELAND'S INAUGURATION.

By this time Grover Cleveland will be inaugurated president of the United States for the second time. But few times in the history of the republic have the democrats had the pleasure of electing a president, and to-day Washington is full of them, joyous over the inaugural ceremony. To-day is a red letter day in the United States, and marks an epoch in the history of that country. The long imperious rule of republicanism is at an end. Whether or no the principles, upon which the republican party is founded, are the source of the unparalleled development of that country, is a question of no moment. The people have spoken. They say that the present needs and present circumstances of the country demand other and broader principles. The interesting feature about Cleveland and his cabinet is and the chief evening's amusements were that they are the embodiment of this tier's "Snowbound." demand.
