A RUSH TO ALBERTA.

The American railroads expect a heavy flow of emigration to Alberta this year is evidenced by the rates they are quoting to Alberta. Points from the American centers. The American lines have already given favorable rates to Texas and other southwestern States, but recognizing that the people want to come to Canada to supply the rates to the western provinces on an equal footing and sometimes doing even better. The C.P.R. is cutting rates to meet the demand. As an example, return tickets from Chicago to Macleod and equidistant points for $40, whereas formerly the single fare was $45. The C.P.R. and Manitoba, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie ( Soo) lines are quoting $38 from St. Paul to Lethbridge for a few days in February, and thereafter on certain days of the month. Hard times in the States has made it impossible for the tenant farmers to make it pay and hence they are looking for cheap land. Southern Alberta will receive the lion's share of the facts of last year's crops are placed intelligently before the people of the central and northern States.

The night was bright and mild, making mid-winter motoring in Alberta a pleasure not afforded many more southern countries.

GET BETTER PRICES FOR FISH THIS YEAR.

Fishing in the lakes in Central and Northern Alberta is one of the important industries of the homesteaders and settlers during the present winter, and the more successful of these fishermen are making good money at it. A small quantity of the fish caught in these lakes is disposed of in the city, but by far the larger portion is purchased by American fish syndicates and shipped south to the large cities in the United States, where there is a great demand for fish.

On the market square yesterday, a bluff, good natured Norwegian, who paid no more attention to the rather biting north wind than if it had been a balmy breeze off the Mediterranean, stood by his sleigh, in which were several hundred white fish, selling them to the passer-by.

"Fifteen cents apiece," said he in reply to the question of a dealer representative regarding the price of his fish, and he proceeded to enumerate the many superior qualities of white fish for eating at this season of the year, over that of other kinds. He had caught the fish himself in Pigeon Lake, Ontario, which he lived, and had brought them into Edmonton to dispose of them.

Danger of Depletion Once.

At one time there was grave danger of the stock of fish in the lakes about Edmonton becoming depleted. The settlers found such a good profit in fishing that they devoted the whole of their time to it throughout the winter. The competition became keener with the result that the supply of fish exceeded the local demand. Then came the American buyers, who purchased the fish they could find and shipped them out of the country to supply the insatiable demand in the large American cities. A few seasons would have seen no fish at all in Alberta lakes but the Dominion government stepped in and passed a regulation whereby everyone who fished in the lakes for fish for marketing purposes must procure a license, and that no one might fish who did not reside within a three-mile radius of the lake in question. This checked the wholesale slaughter of fish and has helped to preserve the supply.

(From Wednesday's Bulletin.)

The Legislature held two important sessions yesterday, the debate on the speech from the throne being carried through both with some vigor.
