

You Can Make Better Foods For The Children With "Beaver" Flour Than You Can Buy

Next to a returning Arctic Explorer, the hungriest mortal on earth is a growing boy. He is always ravenous. "He will eat anything". But why should he?

Right now is the time when his parent should be most particular about his food—to prevent injudicious eating and to protect him against unsuitable food.

Good, home-made bread, made of "Beaver" Flour—light, flaky biscuits made of "Beaver" Flour—these are real foods for growing children. "Beaver" Flour is a blended flour. That is, it is made of exact proportions of nutritious, beautifully flavored Ontario Fall Wheat and a smaller proportion of the stronger Western Spring Wheat.

It is both a bread flour and a pastry flour—and makes the real nutty flavored home-made bread and delicious pastry such as cannot be made with any purely Western Wheat Flour.

Just try "Beaver" Flour—and see for yourself how thoroughly satisfactory and dependable it is for all kinds of baking. Your grocer sells "Beaver" Flour or can get it for you. Dealers—Write us for prices on food, Coarse Grains and Cereals.

A PRECIOUS INHERITANCE.

The sound of the gate latch was heard, and footsteps were approaching the door; not the bounding step of Maggie, but a tramping tread, followed by a heavy knock, and the next moment a tall, large man appeared before her, asking shelter for the night. The pack he carried showed him at once to be a peddler, and upon a nearer view, Hagar recognized in him a stranger who, years before, had craved her hospitality. He had been civil to her then; she did not fear him now, and she consented to his remaining, thinking his presence there might dispel the mysterious terror hanging around her. But few words passed between them that night, for Martin, as he called himself, was tired, and after partaking of the supper she prepared, he retired to rest. The next morning, however, he was more talkative, kindly enlightening her with regard to his business, his family and his place of residence, which last he said was in Meriden, Connecticut.

It was a long time since Hagar had heard that name, and now, turning quickly toward him, she said: "Meriden? That is where my Hester lived, and where her husband died."

"I want to know," returned the Yankee peddler, "what might have been his name?"

"Hamilton—Nathan Hamilton. Did you know him? He died nineteen years ago this coming summer."

"Exactly!" ejaculated the peddler, setting down his pack and himself taking a chair, preparatory to a long talk. "Exactly; I knowed him like a book. Old Squire Hamplenton, the biggest man in Meriden, and you don't say his last wife, that tall, handsome gal, was your daughter?"

"Yes, she was my daughter," answered Hagar, her whole face glowing with the interest she felt in talking for the first time in her life with one who had known her daughter's husband, Maggie's father. "You knew her? You have seen her?" she continued; and Martin answered: "Seen her a hundred times, I'll bet. Anyhow, I sold her the wedding gown, and now I think of it, she favoured you. She was a likely person, and I allus thought that proud sister of his'n, the widdar Warner, might have been in better business than takin' them children away as she did, because he married his hired girl. But it's as well for them, I suppose, particularly for the boy, who is one of the fust young men in Wooster, now. Keeps a big store!"

"Warner, Warner!" interrupted old Hagar, the nameless terror of the night before creeping again into his heart. "Whose name did you say was Warner?"

"The hull on 'em, boy, girl and all is called Warner now—one Rose and 'Other Henry," answered the peddler perfectly delighted with the interest manifested by his auditor, who, grasping at the bedpost and moving her hand rapidly before her eyes, as if to clear away a mist which had settled there, continued, "I remember now Hester told me of the children; but one, she said, was a step-child; that was the boy, wasn't it?" and her wild black eyes had in them a look of unutterable anxiety, wholly incomprehensible to the peddler, who, instead of answering her question, said: "What ails you, woman? Your face is as white as a piece of paper!"

"Thinking of Hester always affects me so," she answered; and stretching her hands beseechingly toward him, she entreated him to say if Henry were not the step-child.

"No, marm, he warn't," answered the peddler, who, like a great many talkative people, pretended to know more than he really did, and who in this particular instance was certainly mistaken. "I can tell you exactly how that is: Henry was the son of Mr. Hamplenton's first marriage, Henry Hamplenton. The second wife, the one your darter lived with, was the Widdar Warner, and had a little gal, Rose, when she married Mr. Hamplenton. This widdar Warner's husband's brother married Mr. Hamplenton's sister, the woman who took the children and had Henry change his name to Warner. The Hamplentons and Warners were mighty big feelin' folks, and the old Squire's match mortified 'em dreadfully."

"Where are they now?" gasped Hagar, hoping there might be some mistake.

"There you've got me!" answered Martin. "I haven't seen 'em this dozen year; but the last I heard, Miss Warner and Rose was livin' in Leominster, and Henry was in a big store in Wooster. But what the plague is the matter?" he continued, alarmed at the expression of Hagar's face, as well as at the strangeness of her manner.

Wringing her hands as if she would wrench her fingers from their sockets, she clutched at her long white hair, and rocking to and fro, moaned, "Woe is me, and woe the day when I was born."

From everyone save her grandmother Margaret had kept the knowledge of her changed feelings toward Henry Warner; and looking upon a marriage between the two as an event surely expected, old Hagar was overwhelmed with grief and fear.

Falling at last upon her knees, she cried, "Had you cut my throat from ear to ear, old man, you could not have hurt me more. Oh, that I had died years and years ago! But I must live now, live!" she screamed, springing to her feet; "I live to prevent the wrong my own wickedness has caused."

Perfectly astonished at what he saw and heard, the peddler attempted to question her, but failing to obtain any satisfactory answers, he finally left, mentally pronouncing her "as crazy as a loon." This opinion was confirmed by the people on whom he next called, for chancing to speak of Hagar, he was told that nothing which she did or said was considered strange, as she had been called insane for years. This satisfied Martin, who made no further mention of her, and thus the scandal which his story might otherwise have produced was prevented.

In the meantime, on her face old Hagar lay, moaning bitterly. "My sin has found me out, found me out; and just when I thought it never need be known. For myself, I do not care, but Maggie, Maggie, how can I tell her that she is bone of my bone, flesh of my flesh—and me, old Hagar, Warren!"

"It would be impossible to describe the scorn and intense loathing concentrated in the tones of Hagar's voice, as she uttered these last words, "and me, old Hagar, Warren!" Had she indeed been the veriest wretch on earth, she could not have hated herself more than she did in that hour of her humiliation, when, with a loud voice, she cried, "Let me die; oh, let me die, and it will never be known!" Then, as she reflected upon the terrible consequences which would ensue were she to die and make no sign, she wrung her hands despairingly, crying, "Life, life, give me life to tell her of my guilt; and then it will be a blessed rest to die. Oh, Margaret, my precious child, I'd give my heart's blood, drop by drop, to save you; but it can't be; you must not wed your father's son; oh, Maggie, Maggie, Maggie!"

When You Feel Cross

And are worried and irritated you can get the liver right by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Life is too short to be cross and grouchy. You not only make yourself miserable, but also those about you. Don't blame others. Blame yourself for not keeping the liver right. There is nothing in the world which will more promptly afford you relief than Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills. This statement is true. A trial will convince you.

Mr. Theo. Sevard, Lac aux Saules, Portneuf County, Que., writes: "I have found Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills the best treatment obtainable for indigestion and impure blood. They cured me of indigestion, from which I suffered for four years. This certificate is given without solicitation, so that others may not waste their money buying medicines of no value when they can get Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which I am convinced are the best. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents, at all dealers, of Edmanston, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Have You a Skin Rash?

Zam-Buk Will End It.

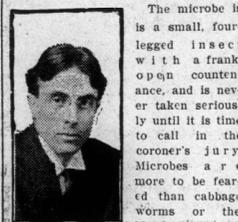

For skin rashes, eruptions, eczema, etc., either in adults or children, there is nothing known to science which equals Zam-Buk in the quickness and certainty of its curative power. Mr. Raymond Webber, of Allanburg, Ont., writes: "I have tried Zam-Buk for many ailments, and every time have found it successful. Some time ago I had a bad rash all over my body. I tried home-made salves, herb salves, and various home-made preparations, and these proved of no use, but when I tried Zam-Buk I was cured in a quarter of the time that I had been experimenting in vain with other preparations. On another occasion I had one of my fingers crushed, and in that case also Zam-Buk was the only remedy I used. It healed the wound splendidly."

"My boy had boils, and once again Zam-Buk brought about a complete cure. We have also used it as a household balm, for the injuries and skin diseases which are common to every person, and can say that in our experience there is nothing to equal Zam-Buk."

Zam-Buk owes its unique healing power to certain herbal extracts it contains. Unlike most ointments it contains no poisonous coloring matter, no animal fat, but is purely herbal. For eczema, piles, blood poison, abscesses, ulcers, cuts, burns, and all skin injuries and diseases it is without equal and should be in every home. 50c. box all druggists and stores. Use also Zam-Buk Soap, 25c. tablet.

MICROBES.

BY H. L. RANN.

The microbe is a small, four-legged insect with a frank, open countenance, and is never taken seriously until it is time to call in the coroner's jury. Microbes are more to be feared than cabbage worms or the bloodthirsty potato bug, yet people receive them into their homes and carry them around in their clothes without looking into their rating or asking any questions about their family connections. Microbes may be taken internally or externally, although as a rule they prefer to open a shaft in the human system from the outside. It has been discovered that when Cleopatra decided to die in two jerks of a lamb's tail she did not call in an asp, as reported by the Associated Press at the time, but that she picked out a red-blooded Egyptian microbe which had not killed anybody for several days. The descendants of this microbe are still roaming around and padding the vital statistics. The medical profession is in authority for the statement that the most deadly forms of microbe are those which lurk in the chair-drinking cup and the string bean moustache. The girl who does not care to be decorated with microbes to whom she has never been introduced should insist upon the shorn lip. There has never been an attempt to take a census of the microbes now flying their nefarious trade, but it is estimated that the rim of a tin cup will furnish standing room for 12,000, 600 adults, without crowding anybody off the edge. We have always suspected that the alleged locusts which went out to get Pharaoh and ate holes in his best suits were in reality the forefathers of the soul-kiss microbe. It is well known that the Kansas grasshopper, which could eat its way through a galvanized iron corn crib, was simply a late model of the microbe which destroyed the profile of the Sphinx. It is a bitter fact, that the only way to get rid of microbes is to pass one's days in utter seclusion and a kerosene oil shower bath.

THEATRE, TO-NIGHT.

The above charming romantic comedy drama of the eighteenth century will be staged at the Casino Theatre to-night. It is a particularly quaint and entertaining play, and the costumes of the period will make it a very realistic performance. The youthful vigour and interest in the work by the Joseph Selman Stock Co. will make the play a delight. The old-fashioned silk dresses and collure of the ladies, and the long bright colored coats, boots and wigs of the gentlemen add to the picturesque. The acting is specially commendable, as Mr. F. S. Barrett, who played in the original New York production at least 250 times, is personally directing rehearsals. Mr. Joseph Selman should make an ideal "David Garrick," and Miss Gertrude Arden a charming "Ada, while Mr. Barrett in the bluff old "Mr. Ingot," Mr. Harold Selman will be "Lord Chivo," and other amusing character studies will be contributed by Geo. Montserrat, Acton Thomas, Arthur Kelly, L. C. Murphy, J. O'Grady, Misses Tessie Lawrence, Kathryn Irving and Nancy Corwin. Curtain to-night at 9.15.

CURE CONSTIPATION.

You will be surprised how quickly HILL'S PILLS will cure you. They are mild in action. HILL'S PILLS go at once to the disordered Liver and Kidneys, and complete a cure before you know it. Remember they are guaranteed. Price 25c. a box at McMurdo's Drug Store.

OBITUARY.

There passed peacefully away at Burgoyne's Cove, May 6th, Henry Petley Pitcher, darling son of Matthias Pitcher, aged 17 years. Deceased was a student at Bishop Field College, where he was loved by the masters and boys. He was appointed by Supt. Blackall to take charge of a school at Snook's Brook, but on his return home after the Xmas holidays he contracted a severe cold, which brought on the disease which resulted in his death.—Com.

IN MEMORIAM.

Gertrude M. O'Rourke, Died May 2nd, 1912. R. I. P.

Again has the Reaper gathered a fair young life, and again carried off one whose brilliant talents and solid erudition gave promise of grand service in the cause of education.

On Thursday, May 2nd, Gertrude, youngest daughter of Mr. Michael O'Rourke, Holyrood, was suddenly called to her Eternal Rest. For some months she had been suffering from pulmonary disease but hopes of her recovery were strongly entertained by her parents and friends; it was, therefore, a sad shock when on Thursday morning a hemorrhage cut short the life, so precious to her parents, and so valued by her many friends.

Among the latter the Nuns and pupils of Littledele Academy rank foremost. At Littledele Gertrude studied and graduated with highest honours, having successfully passed Intermediate, Associate Grades, and also the London Matriculation Examination.

To the Nuns of Littledele, Gertrude was an ideal pupil, whilst her companions regarded her, not only as a model but as a ready helper in all the difficulties and problems of school life. "Gertrude O'Rourke will help you," "Gertrude showed me how," were frequent utterances in the old school days.

Clever to an extraordinary degree having passed London Matriculation Exam at sixteen, she yet was as humble and unpretentious as though she had barely plodded through an Elementary Course. Gentle and holy, yet firm and reliable, her was a disposition to ensure respect and esteem from all around.

We could almost wish the talents and excellent qualities, bestowed by the Divine Master, were permitted to bear a more abundant harvest, yet we know the Divine Omnipotence decrees all things "well and wisely."

Gertrude's crown is already won, and her example will be an incentive to those who had the privilege of claiming her friendship.

We deeply sympathize with her sorrowing parents, to whom the poet's beautiful lines are peculiarly applicable:—

"She is not dead, the child of our affection,
But gone into that school
Where she no longer needs our poor protection,
And Christ Himself doth rule."

SECCOTINE!

FOR STICKING EVERYTHING. In patent pin-stopper tubes. Vest Pocket Size, 10 cents. Large Size Tubes, 20 cents.

SECCOTINE is an intensely strong adhesive for joining new or factory surfaces in wood, leather, iron, delf, paper, pasteboard, cloth, glass, ivory, bone, etc., etc.

It is unequalled for office use. Being immensely stronger than gums or pastes, a much smaller quantity is required. It replaces glues and cements in the manufacture of small fancy articles.

The general uses of SECCOTINE are too numerous to mention. A tube goes a very long way, requires no heating or other preparation; keeps for years, and is always liquid and ready. It sticks, binds and cements all articles of all materials.
