Getting Into Tune.

By RUTH CAMERON.

To every mother's son and daughter of us there sometimes comes days when "everything goes dead wrong."

We cannot seem to accomplish anything; we spoil whatever we touch; little happenings make us nervous; we find ourselves quarrelling with those we love the best; we cannot concentrate our minds on anything; the simplest questions confuse us; the most trivial difficulties fret us. In short, life seems a barren, and the whole outlook inexpressibly dreary.

Now to keep oneself at one's task when in such a mood takes a great deal of grit, but I sometimes wonder if it isn't misplaced grit. Such a thing is possible, you know. And to free oneself from one's task and give oneself a chance to get back into tune with the universe may be a far more efficient way of dealing with the situation.

There are many little ways of removing the tension which such a mood indicates. To my mind the very best is to lay down your work and go out doors. Nothing in the world tranquillizes the nerves like fresh air, exercise and change of scene. You do not have to be a marathon runner to be able to walk away from irritation and discouragement. I cannot tell you how many black moods I have walked off in the course of my life. It is a theory of mine that fan- quills would be enormously reduced if the parties to them would form the habit of taking a walk whenever they felt a storm coming. Grievances are left behind so quickly in the course of such a walk that even if one wanted to take up the quarrel on one's return, one would scarcely remember what it was all about.

Next to a walk, a good rest is the best way to get oneself back into tune with the universe. If you can, remove your clothes and take a good nap. You may hate to spare the time but it will not be wasted. Sleep has a marvelous way of changing the dreariest outlook and when you wake up you will go at things with a new courage which will add quite enough to your efficiency to make up for lost time.

When the fretful, inefficient mood has hold of one, it sometimes helps just to go upstairs, bathe, do your hair up anew and put on a becoming gown. Nothing gives a woman courage and confidence like the realization that she looks well. So, absurd as it may sound to massage ears, a half hour spent in this way will often help banish the unsatisfactory mood. Again, a half hour in a comfortable chair with an interesting book will sometimes give the needed relief from tension to both mind and body.

There is a time to hold oneself to one's work and a time to let up on one's self. Be careful not to confuse the two.

Happiness.

By GEORGE FITCH,

Author of "At Good Old Sivas."

Happiness is a special prize which generally is overlooked because most of us are too busy hunting for it.

The whole world is hunting for happiness. There are thousands of methods of doing this. One favorite method is to climb into an automobile and try to run the thing down. It is a much better dodger than pedestrians are however.

Another popular method is to put on glad raiment and hop through life in the embrace of society. As a rule, however, when a man puts on his low cut garments, and goes forth to hunt happiness he discovers that he has left it at home in his other clothes.

Great sums of money are often stored up in vaults and safety deposit boxes in the hope that happiness will break in like a mouse gnawing into a cheese and will make a nest there. But it doesn't often do this. Happiness can sometimes be bought with money, but it can be purchased just as often with a song or a smile. The men who laboriously accumulate a box car full of seeds to buy the same commodity which is picked up in the fields with the daisies by others are not showing a great deal of business sagacity.

Men often chase happiness clear around the world in yachts and half way to the moon in roof gardens. But it is like a dog. It is harder to catch than it is to cut off.

There is nothing easier, however, than to produce happiness in order to supply a deficiency in someone else's supply. Many a man who hasn't had any happiness in the shop for fifty years has gone out on the streets with a quarter and has produced several hours of the finest variety of joy. But he didn't buy it for himself. He bought it for some poor boy or girl.

It is very much easier in fact to fill some other man's home to the eaves with happiness than it is to grab of a full supply for yourself. However, those who have devoted much time and thought to producing happiness for others have usually discovered that they have been able to appropriate a considerable amount of it for themselves without being accused of grafting.

Weariness Changed to Vigor

That Played-Out Feeling Was Quickly Remedied and Health Restored.

Story of a Merchant Who Almost Lost His Business and His Health Through Neglecting Early Symptoms of Disease.

"My life for years has been of secondary character," writes T. B. Titchfield, head of a well-known firm in Buckingham. "Nine hours every day I spent at office work and took exercise only on Sunday. I disregarded the symptoms of ill-health, which were all too apparent to my family. I grew thin, then pale, and before long I was jaundiced—eyes and skin were yellow, my strength and nerve energy were lowered, and I was quite unfit for business. In the morning a lightness in the head, particularly when I bent over, made me very worried about my health. Most of the laxative medicines I found weakening, and knowing that I had to be at business every day, I neglected myself rather than risk further weakness. Of course I grew worse, but by a happy chance I began to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I was forcibly struck by the fact that they neither caused griping nor nausea, and it seemed incredible that pills could tone, cleanse and regulate the system without causing any unpleasant after effects. Dr. Hamilton's Pills acted with me just as gentle as nature—they gave new life to my liver, strengthened my stomach, and won me back to perfect good health. My skin is clear, dizziness has disappeared, and my appetite, strength, spirits are perfect."

Refuse anything offered you instead of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which are sure to cure. Sold in 25c. boxes, five for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers, or postpaid, from the Cataract Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Duty First.

The carelessness of danger which characterizes certain soldiers does not always extend to the persons about them. The French marshal, Bugeaud, was once dictating, very near a battlefield, a letter to his secretary.

As the general spoke the words of his letter, a bomb from the enemy's camp fell just in front of the door of the tent. The general went on talking, but the secretary seized his paper and half rose from his seat.

"Why are you stopping?" asked the marshal.

"The bomb!" gasped the secretary.

"Have I said anything about a bomb?"

"No—but—the bomb!"

"Now what," said the marshal, impatiently, "has the bomb got to do with the letter I am dictating to you? Go on with your writing."

He resumed his dictation.

This afternoon the prisoner will be sentenced.

Founded 1776

A remarkable and possibly not generally known fact is that one department of Robin, Jones & Whitman's business has been in successful operation for over one hundred and thirty-eight years—having been inaugurated by Charles Robin when he established his first fishing and trading post at Paspebiac on the Gaspé Coast of Quebec in the year 1776.

After many years of steady growth and various amalgamations with kindred concerns, this humble Paspebiac business of Charles Robin's has developed into the great fishery house of Robin, Jones & Whitman, Ltd., with activities extending throughout the Maritime Provinces, and transacting a large export trade to Brazil, to the West Indies, and to the European markets. An interesting review of this great industry and its last year's record may be had on application.
