The Other Man's Handicap.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

I was talking the other day to a magazine writer about his work. He had been writing a story and was going to rewrite it the next day.

"Which do you like best to do?" I asked, "write or rewrite?"

"Like best?" he groaned. "Neither. They're both torture. I don't know which is worse."

"Torture?" I echoed. "Don't you like to write?"

He had to whip his brain all the time.

"Does anyone like to lash his mind into a thing?" he said. "I don't know how it is with other people but that's what I do. It's a harassing struggle all the time after better expression. Lots of people think a writer just sits down and lets the words flow out of him and then goes out and plays golf. It may be so with some of them but with me it's just whipping myself all the time."

"But surely you wouldn't be content to do anything else?"

"Wouldn't I?" he snapped. "There's times when I'd like to go out and dig in the streets and stop whipping my brain. And yet I suppose people envy me because I have a snap—a few hours light work a day."

He supposed exactly right. That was just what I had been thinking of when he talked—how often I had heard people envy him his nap.

He Don't Know What We Are Talking About

I think we are always envying people their ease or happiness, always saying, "If I were in her place, I'd do so-and-so," when we don't really know that their lives are easy or happy, don't know what we would do in their places, don't know what their particular hardships or troubles are.

The first time I ever went snow-shoeing I had a suggestive little experience. There was another woman in the party who was also new to the sport and she was very slow and very awkward.

I Was Sure I Could do Better But—I could not understand why she found it so hard. It seemed surprisingly easy to me. "She hasn't the strength," I thought to myself.

"There's something the matter with my snowshoes," she explained when we got home, "they keep falling off."

Confident of my ability to manage them, I offered to take them the next time. And behold I was much slower and more awkward than she.

If I hadn't put these snowshoes on I should never have known the handicap she was struggling under. Enough said.

Had a ship's anchor fall on my knee and leg, and knee swelled up and for six days I could not move it or get help. I then started to use MINARD'S LINIMENT and two bottles cured me.

"Which side should the lady take when going downstairs with a young man?" asked Esther.

"A man usually walks to the right of the woman unless by walking on the left he can protect or assist her in some way," answered her father.

THE TAXICAB

The taxicab is a four-wheeled device which carries passengers to the Union station and before leaving collects the price of a new set of tires. It is a distant relative of the hansom cab, but has improved considerably upon the bookkeeping methods of the latter.

Taxicabs are usually composed of automobiles which have been in the livery business for twelve years, but have been rebuilt with a fresh coat of paint and a new steering wheel. They contain two cubby holes, one of ample size for a lean passenger and his overcoat and another for the driver. These apartments are separated by a plate-glass partition, so that the driver may keep one eye on the passenger and detect any attempt to escape before the mileage has been counted. Some taxicabs are also supplied with a speaking tube and a cigar lighter, which should be used with care, as both are attached to the meter.

Starting to the novice who has been accustomed to receiving a round trip ticket from the station to the hotel for 25 cents.

The cost price of a trip in a taxicab is determined by the meter, which measures each mile travelled and converts it into bills of the largest known denomination. The ease and rapidity with which this is done is startling to the novice who has been accustomed to receiving a round trip ticket from the station to the hotel for 25 cents. It is a heartrending experience to step out of a snug and odorless taxicab and face the sterner, unrelenting gaze of a well-lubricated meter which is faster on its feet than the favorite in the 2:02 pace. Many a man, under these circumstances, has been obliged to return to the hotel and wire some loved relative for funds with which to appease the appetite of this merciless device.

Taxicabs are always driven by reckless persons who learned the trade by looping the loop in a bi-plane with the blind staggerers. These drivers become so expert that they can share the fetlocks of a furniture van at thirty miles an hour and roll a cigarette with the other hand. They are a valuable adjunct for the man who has four minutes in which to make the 10:45 train, buy a sleeper ticket and walk the full length of the yards in search of his car, and when it comes to accidents, their batting average is fully .430.

Nursing bottles should be so constructed that the inner surface should contain no corners to collect milk. After each feeding the bottle should be scrubbed with a bottle brush with soapy water and filled with water containing boracic until time to boil them before refilling with the next day's supply. They should all be scrubbed each morning before putting in a kettle and covered with cold water, and allowed to boil.

The best remedy for baby's cold is to give a dose of castor oil. Then apply camphorated oil under the nose, across the bridge of the nose and across the forehead. This often relieves the difficult breathing. Another method of giving relief is to wrap absorbent cotton saturated with melted white orange-wood stick for this purpose only.

The Gas Range!

The Gas Range means comfort for the housewife; shorter kitchen hours for her, and a cleaner kitchen. It is a great mistake to think that cooking with gas is expensive.

Whenever a woman becomes used to gas for cooking, thoughts of a coal or wood stove fill her with gloom. A Gas range is so much easier to operate, so efficient for all kinds of cooking, and so much cleaner, that the idea of going back to the old style methods is decidedly unpleasant. Yet in winter many housewives think they must use a coal or wood stove, because there is no other way of heating the kitchen. THERE IS ANOTHER WAY AND IT IS FAR BETTER THAN THE OLD. THE CLOW GAS STEAM RADIATOR WAY. May 23, if.

MADE IN GERMANY

There was a wondrous war machine, the most tremendous ever seen, with cannon, gun and submarine, and it was made in Germany. "A place we're seeking in the sun, and with our sword and bomb and gun, we'll rule the planet ere we're done." The boast was made in Germany. The ruler stalked with haughty tread, his eyes were ever seeing red, and bats were buzzing in his head; the bats were made in Germany. He kicked up war, and for long years he bathed the world in blood and tears, and startled all adjoining spheres, with weapons made in Germany. He took on enemies each day, and hailed them gladly in the fray, and shot them up with bales of hay, and sauerkraut made in Germany. Great Britain, Italy and France, and Russia—these he saw advance, and held them level with his lance, and bludgeoned made in Germany. And minor countries, group by group, went at the Kaiser with a whoop; he handed each a bowl of soup, which broth was made in Germany. "Since I am whipping all these skates," the ruler gayly cried, "weigh in! I'll take on the United States!" This boast was made in Germany. Soon Uncle Sam, incensed by wrongs, will seize him with a pair of tongs, and put him where his nobles belong—in boob house made in Germany.

Must Not Hide Behind Petticoats.

Washington, May 22.—Men seeking exemption from service in America's new selective service army because of their support of more than one dependent must be sure that the person they have in mind is "solely" dependent on them. Otherwise they must not "hide behind petticoats or children." This warning was given by Provost Marshal Crowder in explaining questions arising out of June 5th registration regulations. The mere fact that one claims exemption will not necessarily exempt him.
